GERMAN WAR TALK RAGES OVER MOROCCO

Press, Expecting French Proposals, Willing to Defy France and England.

BITTER AGAINST BRITISH

Fatherland's Most Incorrigible Enemies, Says Inspired Organ—Kaiser's Pacific Efforts Are Assailed.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 27.—The Franco-German negotiations over Morocco are destined unless all signs fail to reach a decisive juncture before another week has passed. Next Saturday, Sept. 2, is "Sedan Day"—that on which the Germans commemorate with fervor the anniversary of their annihilation of the French military power forty-one years ago. A good many journals fix this year's anniversary as the day when a decision will be taken, no less momentous for the glory of Germany than the day Napoleon III. surrendered to "The Old Kaiser" in 1870.

The French Ambassador, Jules Cambon, is expected to return from Paris to-morrow or Tuesday, and his negotiations with Foreign Minister von Kiderlen-Waechter, who is still in Switzerland, will be resumed, it is said, on Thursday. The new conversations will not, it is declared, be marked by the delays which have chiefly distinguished their futile predecessors because M. Cambon is returning with something closely approaching a French ultimatum, and it will be incumbent upon Germany to indicate her attitude with some promptness because the new French proposals will leave little doubt that they express the extreme limit to which the republic is prepared to go to buy off further German molestation in Morocco.

The inspired German press is already hinting at the possibility of a negative result from the new negotiations. The Fatherland, it is declared, faces such an eventuality without fear of embarrassment. The Kaiser's warships will simply continue to occupy Agadir and dare France and England to put them out. That would, of course, mean war. The Berliner Neueste Nachrichten says: "We await such a contingency with the calm of a nation which has in its armed forces the confidence which they deserve."

The most conspicuous feature of the affair is the violent and warlike epidemic of Anglophobism which is sweeping over the country. The Germans, facing what they call a "humiliating settlement" of the Moroccon imbroglio, blame "the impertinent meddling of the British Government" for their unanticipated defeat. Stronger anti-British sentiments than those now filling the German newspapers of all classes has seldom found expression. The Lokal Anzeiger, which is supposed, invariably, to reflect the sentiment of the Foreign Office, says one important lesson which Germans must learn from recent events is that "our most incorrigible and most restless enemy is not France, but on the other side of the North Sea." "Our real peril," the newspaper adds, "is in the policy of England, which misses no opportunity to embarrass us and hinder our progress in every direction." Similar strong language is employed by the semi-official Cologne Gazette, which declares that German public opinion is undoubtedly in a highly agitated state, owing to the anti-German manoeuvres of the British Government.

Throughout the Moroccan crisis the German war party, represented by the Pan-German press, has continued to assail the Kaiser for his reputed insistence upon an amicable settlement with France, no matter on what terms. The Emperor's speech at Altona on Friday, in which he declared the readiness of his royal sons to sacrifice their lives on their country's altar "if things became grave," is widely interpreted as the imperial answer to those detractors who insinuate that the Kaiser is for peace at any price.

KAISER FOR MORE NAVY.

To Keep for Germany Her Due Place, He Tells Hamburgers.

HAMBURG, Aug. 27.—The Senate gave a banquet to-night to the Kaiser, who, in the course of a speech on the effect of competition on international commerce, said:

"If we understood the enthusiasm of the people of Hamburg aright, I think I can assume that it is their opinion that our navy should be further strengthened, so that we may be sure that no one can dispute with us the place in the sun that is our due."

MAID SUES PROF. GRAY'S WIFE

Asks $15,000 Damages, Charging That Her Arm Was Crushed in a Door.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Aug. 27.—Mary T. Creed has brought suit for $15,000 against Mrs. Anna L. Gray, wife of Prof. John Chipman Gray of the Harvard law school. She alleges that while employed as a maid in the Gray household last Spring her arm was crushed by Mrs. Gray violently closing a door on it. The assault is said to have been the result of an altercation between Mrs. Gray and the Creed girl. The girl gave up her place, saying that her arm was permanently injured, and the suit is the result.

Prof. Gray is a Harvard graduate, with the degrees of A. M., LL. B., LL. D., and others, and is Story Professor and Royal Professor of Law at Harvard. He is Vice President of the American Academy and a member of the Massachusetts Historical Society. Mrs. Gray was Miss Anna Lyman of Boston before her marriage, which took place in 1873.

The Grays are prominent in Boston and Cambridge society, having a town house at 176 Beacon Street. Their Cambridge residence is in the centre of a beautiful estate which extends from Lexan Road, Cambridge, up [illegible] Street for a quarter of a mile.

CHAS. FROHMAN OUT AGAIN.

Leaves Hotel for First Time in Ten Weeks to Attend a Rehearsal.

Charles Frohman, who has been ill with articular rheumatism at the Hotel Knickerbocker for about ten weeks, was able to leave the hotel last night and attend a final dress rehearsal of "The Siren" at the Knickerbocker Theatre. It was the first time he has been out of the hotel, and almost the first time he has left his apartments since he was taken ill. About two weeks ago the company in "The Siren," the directors, and some of the musicians of the piece went to the hotel and gave a hurried rehearsal in one of the parlors, to which Mr. Frohman was brought in a wheel chair.

Yesterday he insisted on being present at the final dress rehearsal of the musical comedy, his first production of the season, and arrangements were made to take him from the hotel to the theatre with the least possible discomfort. Although considerably improved in health, the rheumatic condition has not left him, and particular care had to be taken to guard him against the dampness and draughts.

"The Siren," in which Donald Brian is to be the star, is to be produced to-night, but it is not thought likely that Mr. Frohman will attempt to be present. He has several other plays under rehearsal for production within a week or two, and it is thought that he will be able to take a more active part in their final preparation than he has done for his musical play.

STEAMSHIP HITS SCHOONER.

The Hellenes Loses Some Deck Gear and the Vessel a Boom.

On the arrival of the British freighter Hellenes at Quarantine last night, Capt. Graves reported that his ship had been in collision with an unknown schooner off Nobska Point on the Massachusetts coast at 3 A. M. yesterday. The steamship was about half a mile off the Point when the schooner was sighted dead ahead. The Captain immediately stopped his engines and went full speed astern. The bow of the Hellenes cleared the schooner, but her stern caught the jibboom of the sailing vessel and snapped it off short, in doing which a number of ventilators and considerable deck gear on the after deck of the steamer went by the board, but no one was hurt and no serious damage resulted.

Capt. Graves said that he stood by and sang out to the Captain of the schooner to ask if he needed any help, and the reply came, "We're all right, carry on."

WOOD'S HOLE, Mass., Aug. 27.—The schooner with which the steamer Hellenes was in collision off Nobska was the Jane Palmer, Norfolk for Boston, with coal. A thick fog and rain, it is believed, were responsible for the accident. The Palmer escaped with comparatively light injuries, the bowsprit being broken off at the knightheads and the attached headgear being lopped off at the point of collision and trailing in the water.

The Captain of the Palmer communicated with the agent of the Palmer, E. W. Clark, of Portland, Me., who arranged for the dispatching of the tug Orion from Boston to the assistance of the vessel. The Orion left Boston to-night. The Palmer came into this harbor unassisted to await the coming of the tug.

DESTROYER HITS NAVAL PIER.

Monoghan, Stuck Fast, Released by Water Pressure and Other Boats.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 27.—The Destroyer Monoghan, commanded by by Lieut. Commander William P. Cronan, U. S. N., will go to the New York Navy Yard for repairs. She has two large holes on her port side forward, and plates bent as a result of running at full speed through fifteen feet of two-inch planking, and then into as much more earth at the naval torpedo station on Saturday.

The Monaghan, a recent addition to the navy, had returned from the Boston Navy Yard when either her reversing gear became impaired or the wrong signal was given to the engineer or the signal as given was misunderstood, for the big craft which made thirty-five knots, and over during her recent final acceptance test, crashed into the pier.

Efforts to back her out under her own power failed, and the Destroyer Ammen with the naval tug Chickasaw and the station ferryboat Wave in tandem fashion failed to release the destroyer's bow. Finally the fire department of the station was summoned and with full presure of streams washed the bow of the war craft from the earth. This completed, the other boats released the destroyer. Workmen placed safe and temporary patches over the holes in the bow.

A Board of Investigation will soon look into the accident.

WHALES RACE STEAMER.

Tempted by Popcorn Cast Astern, Two Follow Ship Seventy-five Miles.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 27.—A seventy-five-mile race upon the high seas with two big whales, each measuring more than 150 feet, is reported as furnishing excitement to the 173 passengers of the steamer Boston, which arrived from Nova Scotia yesterday noon.

It was not until after the exciting race had lasted for eight hours, the story goes, that the two whales gave up the race. It was then after midnight, and scarcely a passenger was able to go to sleep. The Boston had hardly left Digby, N. S., when she encountered the whales.

Some popcorn was thrown from the steamer by children and the two whales eagerly made for it. Evidently expecting more, they clung to the ship. Sometimes they drew alongside, hardly an oar's length from the ship, or actually brushed up against it. Then they would race ahead. The whales were faster than the steamer and there was no prospect of leaving them behind. Occasionally more popcorn was thrown out, but this proceeding, while it for a time kept the pursuers to the rear, only made them more eager later.

WESTERN RUSH FOR A WIDOW

She Wants to Marry and Can Take Her Choice.

TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 27.—Answers by the bushel are going forward to a young widow of Massachusetts who, a week ago, wrote to Arthur Capper, editor, publisher, and Republican candidate for Governor, requesting him to find her a husband, a Westerner, big hearted, big bodied, whole souled. She said she did not like Eastern men, and longed for one who carried the free, wholesome atmosphere of the "great wide West."

The letter was published and the answers began to pour in by the next mail. As fast as they arrive they are forwarded to the woman. She is to pick out a few dozen of the most promising ones, and then Mr. Capper is going to do a little detective work, and find out all about the men in question.

GAMBLING BROKEN UP AT HEWLETT CASINO

Second Raid When All Games Are in Full Swing and a Fashionable Dance in Holly Arms.

TIP AHEAD OF FIRST RAID

Faro, Roulette, and Craps Going Strong When Raiders Broke Through in the Early Hours of Morning.

Special to The New York Times.

HEWLETT, L. I., Aug. 27.—A little bungalow that is only a few yards distant from the fashionable Holly Arms, and which is known as the Casino, was raided for a second time within a week early this morning, but the result this time was far different from that which followed the raid made early last Sunday morning. On that occasion the raiders came away empty handed. They captured not a single chip, they found two men reading newspapers; in fact there was nothing in the bungalow to indicate that it was the luxuriously furnished gambling palace that it was alleged to be, by those who gave the information against it.

This morning, however, the raiders, a different set from those who sallied forth a week ago, found the place in full operation, and the gambling paraphernalia which was captured, and later carted to Police Headquarters in Freeport, is estimated to be worth $20,000 or more.

No arrests were made this morning, since Clarence Fellowes, Jr., and Tom Nelligan, the reputed proprietors, who were found in the place last Sunday, were then arrested.

There was practically no evidence against Fellowes and Nelligan, and the impression around Hewlett was that their legal embarrassment would be short-lived.

The raid last week was made by County Detective George Tydeman of Nassau County and two deputies, and the reason they found the place barren and practically deserted was, according to those who made the successful raid this morning, because the place had been "tipped off two hours before the raid took place."

The search warrant of to-day was issued by Supreme Court Justice Scudder, the complainints being ex-Congressman William Willett of Far Rockaway and Harold S. Williams, a detective, who made affidavit that he had bought $20 worth of chips in the place and gambled them away; Rudolph E. Ganter, a friend of Williams's, and others. Justice of the Peace Gittens of Hempstead issued the warrant used last Sunday.

The bungalow is separated from the Holly Arms by an automobile roadway, which the entrance faces. A dance, attended by a majority of the young fashionable folk who are summering in the vicinity, was in progress at the Holly Arms when this morning's raid was made. The raiders were Constable Thomas W. Murray of Hempstead, John J. Dunbar, ex-Warden of the Mineola Jail; Chief of Police Arthur B. Wallace of Freeport, accompanied ex-Congressman Willett, and eight or ten other civilians.

It was about 1:30 A. M., and the dancers in the hotel were enjoying a merry two-step, when the raiders appeared unexpectedly in front of the bungalow door. The lookout saw them, and, according to Dunbar, he gave warning by pressing an electric button that rang a bell in the main gambling room. The lookout was too late, however, and in less than a minute the raiders had battered down the front door and were inside the place. Two roulette wheels were still turning, several men were standing around the crap table, and there was $8.30 still on the cashier's desk that had not been put away. The raiders also say that a faro game was in operation, and that other kinds of gambling were going on in other parts of the house.

The men in the place were all told to remain where they were. None of them was arrested. They were informed that they would be needed as witnesses, and would be subpoenaed to appear before Justice Scudder when the case of Fellowes comes up for a hearing to-morrow afternoon. They promised to appear.

The witnesses found in the place gave their names as James G. Harding, 7 Great Jones Street, Manhattan; James E. Rose of the Oneonta Apartments, 125th Street and St. Nicholas Avenue, Manhattan; Edward Hayner, 23 Liberty Street, Newark, N. J.; Walter S. Dunlap, 152 West Forty-fifth Street, Manhattan; William Stern, Hotel Lorraine, Edgemere, L. I.; Paul Trager, Hotel Astor, Manhattan; J. S. Meyers, 200 Fifth Avenue, Manhattan; Harry Stone, Eighty-sixth Street and Broadway, and Frank Miller of 152 West Forty-fourth Street, Manhattan. The police know the identity of all these men, and are certain that all of them will appear in court when needed.

That last week's raid was tipped off and that the warning came from Mineola those who engineered the successful onslaught on the place this morning say they are certain. They give the colored lookout as authority for the statement.

"You folks should have tipped us off like we was before," the lookout said, according to Dunbar and the others.

The raid temporarily broke up the dance that was going on in the Holly Arms. A heavy rain was falling, but that did not keep the dancers from going out to watch the excitement. At least 300 men and women in evening dress stood under umbrellas and watched the proceedings.

The bungalow was said to be splendidly furnished for its purposes. Its equipment compared favorably, the raiders say, with the famous gambling houses that used to exist in Manhattan before they were put out of business.

In a drawer in the cashier's desk the raiders found papers which seemed to indicate that a Mr. Alexander of New York had $100 due him from the house. One slip said Mr. Alexander owed $200, and the other gave him credit for $300. Another paper indicated that a Mr. Tunch of New York had $125 coming to him, a Mr. Frankel appeared to be in debt to the amount of $150.

The place was dismantled, and all the roulette wheels, faro layouts, books, and several bushels of chips carted to Freeport. To-morrow they will be taken to Justice Scudder's chambers in Brooklyn, where they will be offered in evidence when the case comes up for a hearing to-morrow afternoon.

All sorts of rumors concerning the nature of the protection that made it possible for the place to operate are going the rounds here. One rumor is that the house paid $900 to politicians for the privilege of not being molested, and it was one of the beneficiaries of this fund that is suspected of tipping the place off about the unsuccessful raid of last Sunday.

DETECTIVE'S TRICK ROBS HIM OF BRIDE

John Christman of Brooklyn Goes Riding and Father Whisks Away Wife of Two Weeks.

WAS MISS ANNA HIGGINS

Pair Had Eloped—Father Says Young Woman Is Seventeen, Husband That She's Eighteen.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Aug. 27.—John Christman, said to be of 814 Jefferson Avenue, Brooklyn, had rudely torn from his side at Millbrook last night his bride of two weeks, who was Miss Anna Higgins, daughter of a New York business man. The couple eloped from Brooklyn two weeks ago. Patrick Hughes, a retired Detective Sergeant of the New York police force, found them in Dutchess County. He arranged for the girl's father to come up yesterday, and then took her from Christman and turned her over to her father, who took her back to Brooklyn.

Young Mr. and Mrs. Christman were staying at the home of Perry Morse, who keeps Summer boarders, next to Recorder Goff's Summer home, at Washington Hollow. Yesterday the detective arranged for Morse to take his boarders for a ride and had Christman and his bride in the party. They reached the Millbrook railroad station just as the train for New York was ready to pull out. Hughes by a trick induced the bride to get out of the wagon, and the next moment she was seated beside her father in the train and was whisked away.

Christman is 28 years old. Higgins says his daughter is only 17; Christman says she is 18. He returned to Brooklyn to-night, planning to compel Higgins to give him back his wife.

John D. Christman, Sr., father of John D. Christman, Jr., said to have eloped with Anna Higgins, is a retired dye manufacturer living at 814 Jefferson Street, Williamsburg. He told a TIMES reporter last night that he had not seen his son since November last, and that he did not know and had never heard of Miss Higgins.

"I had a dye manufacturing plant in the Greenpoint section until about a year ago, when I retired from business," he said, "and for several years until that time my son was employed there. Since November he has been away from home."

Mr. Christman was asked if he had quarreled with his son. He replied that he did not wish to make any further statement at the time, but might have something to say to-day.

ACTOR STARVING IN PARK.

Ill from Hunger and Exposure When Policeman Found Him in the Bushes.

Famished and only half conscious, his clothes soaked with the rain that had poured steadily over the city all afternoon, Harry Smirl, an actor, was found in the bushes of Central Park last night, near the foot of West Seventy-second Street, by Policeman McDonald of the Arsenal Station.

The policeman saw his feet protruding from the bushes and, thinking it was a sleeping tramp, tapped him with his club. A groan was the answer, and McDonald called an ambulance. At the hospital it was said Smirl was ill only from want of food and exposure.

Smirl recovered sufficiently to tell his story. He said he was a member of the "White Rats" and three days ago came from Providence, R. I., to look for work. He was in hard luck, and yesterday, sick from want of food and sleep, and disliking the publicity of the park benches, chose the shade of the shrubbery, where he thought he would be unseen.

At the office of the White Rats, 1,553 Broadway, it was said Smirl was not now a member. It was remembered, however, that Smirl had been touring most of the principal cities in an acrobatic performance with a woman named Kesner as a partner. Smirl gave his age as 31.

WIFE QUITS LIEUT. MORRIS.

Daughter of George Miles Lee Wins Separation for Cruelty.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 27.—Friends of Annabel Lee Morris, daughter of George Miles Lee, inventor of the Lee rifle, have received word that she has received a decree of separation from her husband, Lieut. Robert Morris of the regular army, on the ground of extreme cruelty. They have been residing at Goat Island, near San Francisco, since their romantic courtship and marriage in Stonington, Conn., five years ago. They met in San Francisco eight years ago, and renewed their acquaintance in 1906, when motor launches on which they were passengers passed each other on the Connecticut River. After a fortnight's courtship they were married at Stonington and went to San Francisco. At the wedding breakfast Lieut. Morris cut the wedding cake with his sword.

The decree gives Mrs. Morris custody of their little daughter and Lieut. Morris of their four-year-old son. Mrs. Morris will return to the East.

TRY TO ABDUCT A MEXICAN.

Former Insurgents Said to Seek Hostages for Their Leaders' Safety.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Aug. 27.—A. N. Ruiz, former Constable of El Cajon, a man of property, was captured by five Mexicans near this city Thursday afternoon, bound, thrown into a two-horse buckboard, and driven toward the Tia Juana. When near the Tia Juana Bridge he loosened his bonds, sprang from the wagon, and sought the protection of four Americans working nearby. The Mexicans escaped across the line.

This attempt at kidnapping, it is asserted, is part of a plot by former insurrectos to capture prominent Mexicans and hold them as hostages for the safety of Gens. Pryce and Mosby. The police say they have frustrated several other attempts on prominent Mexicans, among them Dr. J. Diaz Prieto, Mexican Consul in San Diego.

PLEA TO EMPLOYES TO END UNION FIGHT

Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company Willing to Deal Liberally with One Body.

WOULD PAY DUES OF MEN

Asks for a Vote and Says It Will Recognize the Body with a Two-thirds Majority.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 27.—A proposition by which the rivalry existing between the two street car men's unions now represented in the ranks of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company may be abolished and all employes of the company become members of one organization, their dues to be paid by the company, was offered to the motormen and conductors to-day by the management of the company. The plan is suggested in a pamphlet signed by C. O. Kruger, President of the company, and Thomas T. Mitten, Managing Director under the new Stotesbury management.

It is left to the men themselves to decide by a two-thirds vote whether the company is to deal with the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America, the United Carmen's Association of America, or with the men as individuals.

The statement by the management dwells on the necesity of co-operation between the men and the company, and declares that it is essential that there be a greater degree of team work among the motormen and conductors themselves. "This it is believed," says the report, "can only be secured by eliminating that constant cause of disagreement due to the fact that there are now two rival labor organizations."

The management does not take a position either for or against either of the organizations, "but is desirous of securing a lasting peace and earnest co-operation of its employes by the path of least resistance."

The pamphlet states that upon application of either union a ballot of the employes will be taken and an agreement entered into by the management with such union as may receive a two-thirds vote of all motormen and conductors. In the event of an agreement being entered into with the men as an organization, the management states that there would be no necessity for "the wearing of union badges nor of the disturbing influences of organizers or collectors of dues, for the reason that the amount representing the dues of each employe would then be paid directly by the company to the organization."

The pamphlet further states that "there will be no grievance committee, but instead a co-operating committee, which shall be composed of a representative motorman or conductor from each division, the Superintendent of each division, together with the Superintendent of Transportation or his representative." The latter is to act as Chairman of this committee, and, in the event of a failure to reach a satisfactory adjustment of the grievances, final decision will be rendered by the highest official of the company and the highest official of the organization. If these men fail to agree, then they shall choose a third person, mutually agreed upon, whose decision shall be final and binding upon all parties.

Disagreements are not expected to be frequent, according to the management, as they point out that under the agreement entered into by them 22 per cent. of the gross passenger income is devoted to the raising of wages, and it will be to the interest of the men that this fund shall be as large as possible.

Leaders of the Amalgamated Association, which has conducted two costly strikes against the company, to-night declared that they were perfectly satisfied to leave the question as to which organization should be recognized to a vote of all the employes. They allege that the other organization is very much in the minority.

ROCKEFELLER COUNTS NOSES

Wanders About Cleveland Church to Estimate the Congregation.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 27.—While the contribution box was being passed at the Euclid Avenue Baptist Church this morning John D. Rockefeller left his pew to find out how many persons were in attendance. It is said he wished to see if the conditions under which he promised a big gift to the church were being fulfilled.

Slowly and methodically Mr. Rockefeller walked back and forth across the church scanning the congregation intently. He even looked up in the galleries. Again and again the keen eyes of the oil master swept the house, then, when the contribution was finished, he resumed his seat.

It was learned after the service that Mr. Rockefeler was trying to gauge the size of the congregation. He was keeping mental tab on the vacant seats and whether or not the congregations at the Euclid Avenue Baptist Church were growing larger or diminishing from Sunday to Sunday.

Not long ago when the subject of an institutional downtown church on a broad scale was broached to Mr. Rockefeller he told the church elders that if the attendance warranted such a church he would be willing to start a fund for its establishment.

COLTS IN AUTO MISHAP.

Axle Breaks on Machine Carrying Ethel Barrymore and Husband.

Special to The New York Times.

BRISTOL, R. I., Aug. 27.—A serious accident to Ethel Barrymore, her husband, Russell G. Colt; their child, Samuel Colt, and several friends was narrowly averted at 5 o'clock this afternoon on Burnside Street, when the forward axle of a touring car owned by Col. Samuel P. Colt, President of the United States Rubber Company and father of Russell G. Colt, collapsed. They were on their way to a tea at the home of Judge L. B. Colt.

The car had just ascended a slight grade when a forward wheel suddenly came off, the axle broke, and the forward springs tore a hole through the roadbed for about twenty-five feet. The car stopped within five feet of an electric pole.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell G. Colt motored here yesterday from Mamaroneck, N. Y., to attend a luncheon at Col. Colt's, and a tea at Judge Colt's this afternoon in honor of the engagement of Miss Primrose Colt, Russell Colt's cousin. In the car with them at the time of the accident were Judge Colt, Harold J. Gross, a nurse; S. Reed Anthony of Boston, and the chauffeur.

Shot Rapids on a Log.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Aug. 27.—While 50,000 persons looked on James Pollock, a riverman of Tower, Mich., successfully shot the St. Mary's River rapids to-day on a log. For his feat he received a purse of $35. In a canoe with Indian guides Pollock was taken to the head of the rapids. Six minutes later, after having been whirled about the thousands of gigantic boulders and often obscured from view, he emerged from the rapids without scratch.

J. R. KEENE IN HOSPITAL.

Veteran Financier Goes to Nursing Home in London by Doctor's Advice.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—A cable dispatch from London says:

"The health of James R. Keene, the veteran financier, is causing his doctor considerable anxiety, and to-day, upon his advice, Mr. Keene entered a nursing home, which is the English equivalent for a private hospital.

"It will be remembered that Mr. Keene made a very hasty exit, wrapped in a blanket, at the time of the Hotel Carlton fire. The shock to his nerves was very severe on that occasion. Since then he has been in the hands of doctors continuously.

"Upon quitting the Carlton Mr. Keene went to the Berkeley Hotel. Three days ago he had a relapse and appears unable to recuperate his strength. To-day the physician who has been in attendance upon Mr. Keene called a prominent London doctor in consultation, and it was decided that the aged financier should be removed to a private nursing home in Devonshire Terrace."

THE LUSITANIA SAILS.

Big Cunarder Brings Her Own and Campania's Passengers.

LONDON, Monday, Aug. 28.—Three trainloads of passengers left London at noon yesterday to join the Lusitania, which sailed at midnight from Liverpool.

The Lusitania is the first Cunarder to leave the Mersey this week. She takes, besides her own passengers, those who were booked for the Campania, the sailing of which has been canceled.

QUEENSTOWN, Aug. 27.—Owing to the Lusitania's delay, the steamship St. Louis took on board the mails intended for the former. The Lusitania will call here to-morrow for passengers, who include the members of the Germantown Cricket Club.

DUCHESS DE CHAULNES ILL.

Daughter of Theodore P. Shonts, Now at Cape May, Improving.

Special to The New York Times.

CAPE MAY, N. J., Aug. 27.—The Duchess de Chaulnes, who has been ill for the last ten days, is recovering, and was able to sit up to-day.

The Duchess, with her mother, Mrs. Theodore Perry Shonts, and her sister, Miss Marguerite Shonts, are staying at the Star Villa, where they have been since they returned from Europe a few weeks ago.

It was reported that Mr. Shonts was to spend his week-end at Cape May, but he did not come. He has not been here this season.

SUTHERLAND'S CRUISE.

Duke Is on His Way to the Great Lakes—Owns Much Canadian Land.

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., Aug. 27.—The Duke of Sutherland, one of the wealthiest landlords in Scotland, accompanied by Lord Desborough and Lord Charles Beresford, passed up the St. Lawrence River to-day in the Duke of Sutherland's yacht Catania, on the way to the Great Lakes.

The Duke has purchased large tracts of land in Alberta, Saskatchewan, and British Columbia, for the purpose of establishing tenant farms of the English sort in Canada.

EXPLORERS LOSE ALL DATA.

Prof. Tarr Almost Drowned When Skiff Capsizes in Alaska.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Aug. 27.—Word has been received here by friends of Prof. Ralph F. Tarr, the Cornell geologist, who has been leading an expedition in Alaska this Summer studying glaciers, that all of the data obtained, as well as valuable geographical instruments, were lost when a skiff in which Dr. Tarr and his party were crossing the big delta at Fairbanks, Alaska, capsized.

Prof. Tarr narrowly escaped death. With Prof. Ernest Martin of the University of Wisconsin he was conducting his third expedition into the glacial regions for the National Geographical Society.

$500,000 DEPENDED ON STORK

Ex-Congressman Connell's Nephew Is Now Happy and the Money Secure.

Special to The New York Times.

SCRANTON, Penn., Aug. 27.—The stork visited the home of Charles R. Connell, nephew of ex-Congressman William Connell, on Friday night. The baby's mother is displaying to friends a $10,000 diamond sunburst, the gift of the proud father.

Under the will of the baby's grandfather it was provided that if its father died without issue the estate was to go to the children of the former Congressman. Mr. and Mrs. Connell had been married eight years and were childless.

The baby's birth sets aside this proviso of the will, and $500,000 will remain in the other branch of the family, no provision having been made for its conversion in the event of the child not living.

DIVORCE FOR MRS. WESCOTT.

Captain in Marine Corps Accused of Cruelty—Wife a Baltimore Girl.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 27.—Mrs. Cora Isabel Wescott, well known in Baltimore society, obtained a divorce from her husband, Capt. Charles T. Wescott, United States Marine Corps, at Reno, Nev., yesterday. She had not been living with her husband for more than a year, and a greater part of that time had been a resident of the divorce colony at Reno.

In the divorce papers Capt. Wescott was accused of cruelty. It was also charged that the Captain tried to force his wife to embrace Christian Science. It is said that $125 a month would be the allowance for alimony, and that Mrs. Wescott will have the custody of their minor child, Fairabee.

Mrs. Wescott was born and educated in Baltimore. She was the daughter of the late Joseph Abrahams. At the time of her marriage to Wescott in 1900 she journeyed several hundred miles to meet him, as he was unable to get leave of absence to come to this city, where an elaborate wedding had been planned.

Capt. and Mrs. Wescott did not reside in this city for any length of time, as the young marine officer was transferred to several posts, among them being the Philippine Islands, San Francisco, and Cuba. It was while living in Manila that the first domestic trouble arose.

Capt. Wescott is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Wescott of St. Paul Street, this city, and he has many [illegible]

THEFTS OF $300,000 HERE THIS SUMMER

Police Lists Show an Unusual Number of Watches and Diamonds Stolen.

FEW ARE EVER RECOVERED

Pawnbrokers Notified of All Lost Property, but Declare That It Goes to East Side "Fences."

More than $300,000 worth of property has been stolen in this city in the last three months, according to the lists sent from Police Headquarters to all pawnbrokers in the city, and the lists sent out by the detective agencies and surety companies. Pawnbrokers say that more watches, diamonds, and jewelry have been stolen this Summer than ever before. Much silverware and clothing have also been stolen, but the full account of these losses will not be known until the Summer vacationists have returned to the city. A very small percentage of the stolen goods has been recovered.

The estimate of loss is based on the Police Department's confidential green lists, each bearing the signature of Commissioner Waldo. Since June 1, fifty-eight of these lists have been sent out from Police Headquarters. At first they were sent through the mails, but lately they have been delivered in person by detectives. Under former Police Commissioners detectives visited the pawn shops with typewritten lists, which they guarded with jealous care, notifying each pawnbroker verbally of the goods for which a watchout should be kept. After Waldo became Commissioner, which was shortly after the Grand Jury began its investigation of the crime wave, the more thorough but less confidential method of leaving with every pawnbroker a list of everything stolen was adopted.

The green list is an itemized statement of goods which have been reported stolen under the heads of watches, diamonds, jewelry, silverware, clothing, miscellaneous stolen goods, and "special" goods, the latter being goods for which especial scrutiny is requested. In addition the lists contain descriptions of goods which the New York police have been asked by other cities to keep a watch for.

Each item is listed under the date that it was stolen and is given a special number, tallying with the number of the complaint or inquiry on record at Police Headquarters. Each item is briefly described, but there is no reference on the lists as to where it was stolen, or what character of thief is under suspicion. The pawnbrokers are warned with the receipt of these lists not to accept anything listed lest they be regarded as receivers of stolen goods, and they are urgently requested to notify the police whenever a single item listed is offered for pawn.

At the end of some lists there is a space marked "cancellations" for articles that have been recovered, and an appended note requests the pawnbrokers to cancel such articles on their lists.

One fact which these lists reveal is that an insignificant amount of the goods stolen is actually recovered. Thus, in the fifty-eight lists issued between June 1 and Aug. 26, out of the 4,213 items recorded as stolen, only twenty-two are marked recovered.

Stolen Watches Number 788.

According to the lists, 788 watches were stolen during June, July, and August. Many of these watches were set with diamonds and pearls, and, on the average, were worth probably $30 each. This would make a total of $23,640 worth of watches alone. Of diamond jewelry, varying from a small diamond to six-carat solitaires and sunbursts and horseshoe pins set with eighty diamonds, there were 488 individual pieces listed. At an average of $100 each this loss would amount to $48,000. Under similar computation, 486 other pieces of jewelry, consisting mostly of pearl and other valuable settings, valued at $60 each, would amount to $29,160.

Silverware, in most instances, was listed by the number of pieces. The total was 969 pieces, but there were twenty items simply designating a "quantity of silverware," which, according to the pawnbrokers, means hauls of $500 each at least. The twenty lots were worth $15,000 at the least. Most of the silverware, according to the descriptions given, was marked. In the list of cancellations there is not one item relating to stolen silverware, however, and the assertion was made by several pawnbrokers that this silver undoubtedly went to receivers of stolen goods who possessed melting devices for their own use and quickly converted all silverware into bullion form.

There were 289 suits, overcoats, and dresses in the list of stolen goods reviewed. These, at $20 each, would amount to $5,780. Of miscellaneous goods there were 462 individual items. This list included typewriters, a case containing 433 mink skins, violins, oil paintings, a United States Signal Service aneroid barometer, a bone statue of a cow, phonographs, an engineer's transit, and a case of 150 meerschaum pipes. At $20 per item, these goods would amount to a loss of $9,240.

The thefts in other cities included 831 items. These were mainly valuable pieces of jewelry or wholesale robberies of razors, watches, &c. Their value is not included in the estimate of $300,000 for goods stolen in New York. The estimate does include lists of stolen goods being searched for by private detective agencies. A single notice sent out to the pawnshops by the Pinkerton Agency, for instance, gives descriptions of 2,274 rings. Most of these are very valuable. Besides, many detective agencies furnish no lists at all, their detectives making the rounds of the pawnshops quietly and putting checks on goods found in stock on which they have a legitimate claim. An estimate of $125,000 worth of goods sought by these private agencies, not included in the police lists, is considered conservative, and this amount, added to the valuations placed on the items in the green list, brings the total value of unredeemed stolen goods well over the $300,000 mark. One pawnbroker placed the estimate at half a million, but he had not thoroughly valued each item separately.

Loot Goes to "Fences."

When the new plan of providing each pawnbroker with these police lists was inaugurated shortly after Waldo was made Commissioner, it was hoped that practically all stolen goods would be recovered in the pawnshops. But, as a matter of fact, Commissioner Waldo's own signed lists of the cancellations show that less than 1 per cent. of the goods are recovered. The query as to where the stolen goods are [illegible] wise to bring it to the three-ball shops. They know that we are paying a $500 license and putting up a bond to do business, and they know that we can't take the risk of accepting their stuff.

"The fences are getting it. They have houses on the lower east side just filled with loot. They buy everything they can get cheap, and can fish up $50,000 to buy out a big haul, if necessary. All the crooks in the world flock to them, and New York is famous as an outlet for stolen goods. With the approaching Fall and Winter the lists of stolen goods will swell to six times their present size, as they always do in the cold months, especially after the Summer vacations are over. Why, if a tenth of the goods listed on the green lists were found in the pawnshops every three-ball keeper would be forced out of business.

"The fences are crooks themselves, and they deal with crooks and promise not to give them away. I have it straight that they have a lot of lawyers hired by the year to keep them out of trouble. The city is overrun with pickpockets, and that is why so many watches are being stolen. Most of the 'dips' are young men, from 16 to 25 years old, and they are the slickest things in town. Waldo's lists show that enough diamond jewelry has been stolen within the last three months to stock up 100 second-hand jewelry stores. Some of the diamonds stolen are so big that you could take a bite out of them and have enough left for a decent-sized ring. Will Waldo please show where all this jewelry has gone?

"Waldo has added work for himself and us by tacking on a list of goods wanted in other cities. I think it will keep him busy just to find what is daily stolen in New York."

It is said that the police have a way of arranging reports of stolen goods so that the amount stolen in a single day is difficult to ascertain. On July 28, for instance, an unusually large haul was made by thieves. In the list the items appear from Aug. 1 to Aug. 9. Likewise, an April robbery appears in an August list.

Among the items marked "special" this appears on the list of July 20, relating to goods stolen July 18:

> Diamond and pearl stole, 24 inches long, studded with pearls and diamonds, alternating. Pendant attached, also studded with diamonds. Platinum setting. Made by Tiffany.
>
> Open heart, scroll work, containing 51 brilliants, weight 2¼ plus 3-32 karat diamonds. Platinum setting.
>
> Crescent brooch, 23 diamonds. Scratch No. 38,263, made by Black, Stone & Frost.
>
> Lady's black morocco leather bag, round corners, 12 inches wide. Marked "M. P. McM." in gold, containing handkerchief, papers, and $8 cash.

Other items on the lists showing the extremes of a burglar's avarice, are:

> Gold medal, marked Police Department. Content medal.
>
>
> Gold hunting-case watch, marked "Sis" on case, and "From Mother to Sis" inside. Also a gold neck-chain, marked "Excellency, M. J. H., 1889."
>
> Gold hunting case watch, marked "G. J. B." on case, and presented to Grindell Jerome Burns, by his loving father on his twenty-first birthday, Nov. 18, 1904.
>
> Round oxidized silver watch, shaped like a ball, larger than a grape, but smaller than a plum.

MANY HURT IN TRAIN WRECK.

Spreading Rails Throw New Haven Cars from Track on Valley Division.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Aug. 27.—Many people were injured, eight of them probably seriously, to-night, when an express train on the Valley Division of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad was wrecked by the spreading of the rails.

The train is one that runs Sunday morning carrying people who wish to spend the day at the various shore resorts along the Sound, and returns at night. The train consisted of the engine, two baggage, and eight passenger coaches.

The engine was thrown on its side into a sand bank; the two baggage cars went down a thirty-five-foot embankment toward the Connecticut River; the first passenger coach ran into the tender of the engine and was badly splintered. It was in this car that most of the injured were found. The second passenger car was thrown sideways of the track, and the other cars turned in all directions, but remained upright.

[illegible] Mather, the engineer, was [illegible] the cab of his engine and had [illegible] but escaped with a [illegible] bruises. A baggage-[illegible] not known, who was in the first baggage car that went down the bank and which turned over on its side, escaped with a broken nose, and a brakeman on the second passenger coach has concussion of the brain.

Among others injured were Mr. and Mrs. J. Lawrence Colt of New London, elderly people, who were severely bruised and suffered from shock; D. B. Field of Hartford, back and leg injured; Laban Drehan of Springfield, Mass., minor injuries and bruises, and David Dunn of Norwich, minor injuries and suffering from shock.

The spot where the wreck occurred is isolated, and the only way of reaching the place is by automobile and train. Many of the slightly injured climbed a bank by the tracks and walked to this city, reaching here covered with the mud of the country road. They were cared for and sent to their destination by trolley and the third rail to Berlin.

The injured on the train were given first aid by two doctors who were on board.

The train was fifteen minutes late and was being run to make up the lost time. Spreading rails are thought to have caused the accident.

WRECK DEATHS NOW 28.

One Woman Succumbs to Injuries Received in Manchester.

MANCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 27.—One more passenger of Lehigh Valley Train No. 4, which was wrecked near here Friday noon, died to-day, increasing the number of victims to 28, and it seemed probable to-night that several of the 74 injured would succumb to their injuries.

Miss Mary E. Hassett, 25 years old, of 1635 Lehigh Avenue, Philadelphia, one of the 18 injured persons taken to the sanitarium at Clifton Springs, died of a broken neck. Her elder sister, Hannah A. Hassett, was killed in the wreck. A brother came from Philadelphia to-day and identified both bodies.

Mrs. N. M. Nixon of 2126 North Seventh Street, Philadelphia, is in a serious condition at Clifton Springs, and Mrs. H. B. Smith, who has been unconscious at the Thompson Memorial Hospital at Canandaigua since the wreck, was operated upon this morning, but is not expected to live. Several of the injured in Rochester hospitals are also in a critical condition.

The blood-stained doll taken from the wreck was returned to-day to Esther Taylor, 11 years old, of Lansdowne, Penn., who is at Clifton Springs helping to nurse her grandmother, Mrs. George D. Taylor of 812 Plymouth Avenue, Buffalo. The woman was seriously injured in the wreck but the girl was thrown through an open window by the force of the accident. She attracted much attention among the survivors by her remarkable calmness. When some one offered to look out for her and telegraph to her parents, she exclaimed, "Oh, I've already telegraphed my father and mother." She abandoned the doll yesterday to go to her grandmother's bedside, but it was taken to her to-day.

TRAIN DERAILED IN OHIO.

Engineer Fatally Hurt, but Only Two of 100 Passengers Are Bruised.

PIQUA, Ohio, Aug. 27.—Five coaches were derailed and Engineer Burton was probably fatally hurt to-day in the wreck of a southbound passenger train on the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railroad near Kirkwood, Ohio.

The train, which carried 100 passengers, was traveling at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour when the locomotive struck a defective rail and left the track, running more than 300 yards before overturning and dragging five coaches behind it. None of the coaches turned over. Twenty-five members of a dramatic company were in the train. Two actresses, Miss Agnes Hite of Toledo, Ohio, and Miss [illegible] of Cincinnati, were bruised.

Engineer Burton and Fireman Fred [illegible] remained in the cab until the [illegible]

RAINFALL HELPFUL AND MORE COMING

A Few Billion Gallons Added to the City's Reserve Supply That Has Fallen Low.

AUGUST NOT YET NORMAL

Rain in Next Two Days May Bring the Fall to Average Figures—Commissioner Encouraged.

"Generally fair Sunday," predicted the Weather Bureau on Saturday night, whereupon the heavens opened and an inch of rain fell upon the city, and what is more to the point, upon the Croton watershed. Rain to-day and to-morrow is the prediction, and if the signs have not again deceived the prophets, the middle of the week should see a somewhat brighter aspect on the problem created by the water shortage. Already the rainfall has made an appreciable difference.

Beginning with the storm which broke over the city at 11:30 o'clock Saturday night, by 3:15 yesterday afternoon a full inch had fallen here and a little more than an inch fell during the same period on the Croton watershed. Word from Chappaqua last night had it that the fall had been steady all day, and that it was still raining hard last night.

"It all helps," was the brief comment of Water Commissioner Thompson, referring to the effect of the storm on New York's dwindling water reserve, but he added the characteristic warning: "You know we need about a week of this."

The Commissioner, at his Summer home in Greenwich, received encouraging reports from the watershed. The rainfall of Saturday night and Sunday morning gave Manhattan and the Bronx between two and three billion gallons by way of reinforcement. This amounts to a five days' supply. It is not that that much water will reach the reservoirs, and so increase by so much the stored supply. It is merely that that amount has gone to swell the streams from which the direct supply is drawn, thus holding up for a brief time, at least, the necessity of a continued recourse to the diminishing reserve.

At the very least, it defers a while longer anything acute in the situation. It is the drawing on that reserve that hurts, and we have been doing that to a considerable extent this Spring and Summer. The reserve, after the downpour in the early part of June, amounted to about 54,000,000,000 gallons. In the interval it has dwindled to 32,500,000,000 gallons.

Wet as the last two days have been, August has not yet had her usual share of rainfall this year, although a hearty compliance of the skies with the predictions of the Weather Man might easily bring the month's total up to and even materially past the normal. Whatever rain does fall in the next two days will have the advantage from the water shortage standpoint of falling on thoroughly saturated soil, the kind of soil from which the rain runs off in great abundance. Already Chappaqua reports that the streams are visibly swelled.

The rain to-day should be our share of the storm which struck the South Atlantic Coast yesterday morning with real violence, and which was central last night between Charleston and Savannah, when hurricane signals were displayed at those two cities. The storm came in from the South Atlantic and is moving northward. New England should hear something of it to-morrow.

DAMS BREAK AT EGG HARBOR.

Cranberry Crop Ruined by Flood—Watchman Reported Drowned.

Special to The New York Times.

EGG HARBOR, N. J., Aug. 27.—An electrical storm and heavy rain struck this city at 1 o'clock this afternoon. For over an hour the rain came down in torrents. The creeks and streams, already swollen by the rain of yesterday, poured into the park lake until it overflowed. Suddenly the park dam gave way with a roar, and the water rushed on, carrying everything with it.

The negro watchman was seen to be caught by the stream and swept along, and it is believed he was drowned.

Tearing along, the water reached the middle dam, which guards the large Gloucester cranberry bogs. A large force of workmen were immediately stationed there to try to save the dam, but in half an hour the water broke through and raced onward, flooding the bogs and the entire surrounding country. Fifty pigs were caught in the rush and drowned. The dams and flood gates leading to the Mullica River were then opened, and to-night the water is pouring into the river.

The entire crop of cranberries has been ruined, the damage amounting to thousands of dollars. Dwellings along the stream are flooded.

Near Green Bank a portion of the shore road has been washed away, and the automobile traffic to New York has been blocked.

During the storm the lightning struck and felled large trees in rapid succession. In a quarter of a mile eight telephone poles were struck and demolished. In the business district of the town the streets were like rivers, and it was impossible to travel through them without knee boots.

RAIN TWO DAYS LONGER.

Then Will Come a Cool Spell, Says the Weather Forecaster.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Rains within the next forty-eight hours over the greater part of the country from the Mississippi Valley to the Atlantic Coast and in the Southwest are predicted to-day in a bulletin of the Weather Bureau. Strong winds are forecast off the Atlantic Coast in connection with the disturbance now off the South Atlantic Coast.

Following the passage of these disturbances the pressure will rise rapidly, and a change to considerably cooler weather will overspread the great central valleys and the lake region to-morrow, and the Eastern and Southern States Tuesday and Wednesday. This change probably will cause frosts in exposed places the first part of the week in the Northern Rockies, Northern Plains States, extreme Upper Mississippi Valley, and the upper lake region. Another disturbance is due to appear in the Northwest about Wednesday, whence it will move eastward.

NEW HONDURAN PLOT.

Letters Telling of Hidden Arms Lead to Two Arrests.

PUERTO CORTEZ, Honduras, Aug. 23, (via wireless to New Orleans, Aug. 27.)—A revolutionary plot against the administration of Honduras was unearthed on Aug. 19, when Theodore Hernandez and M. Ugorta were arrested. Letters were found, revealing the whereabouts of hidden arms and ammunition.

Hernandes was put in jail at San Pedro, where excitement is at fever heat. Ugorta was escorted to the capital, Tegucigalpa, under an armed guard and imprisoned there. Ex-President Davila, who was deposed by the recent successful revolution headed by Gen. Manuel Bonilla, is now in Salvador, and is supposed to be interested in the plot. The arrests were made by order of Provisional President Bertrand.

The letters mentioned that munitions of war were hidden near Pimienta, and that the first move against the administration was to be started at the election next October of Gen. Bonilla, the unopposed candidate for the Presidency. [illegible]

FALLS FROM BOAT, DROWNS.

John Gardiner Tumbles from His Own Craft in the Hudson.

OSSINING, N. Y., Aug. 27.—John Gardiner, 26 years old, a civil engineer employed in the office of the village engineer here, was drowned in the Hudson River to-day.

He owned a small motor boat and invited Wilton Smith and James Mason to take a trip down the river. They went as far as Scarborough, and on their return were about a mile off the State prison buildings when Mason and Smith went forward to hoist a small sail that Gardiner had rigged for auxiliary power. While thus engaged, Mason says he heard a splash, but thinking nothing of it did not look around. When he and Smith turned to go to the stern of the boat Gardiner had disappeared.

Looking back they saw him in the water not more than a couple of hundred feet from the boat. He was unable to swim, but was making a desperate effort to keep afloat. Neither Mason nor Smith understood how to handle a motor boat, and after they finally managed to stop the craft they were unable to get it going again to go back to where their friend was struggling in the water. Finding an oar in the boat they finally paddled back, but by that time Gardiner had sunk. Search was kept up for several hours, but the body was not recovered.

Gardiner leaves a wife, whom he married two years ao.

SWING OF BOOM FATAL.

Newark Man Is Thrown Into Lake Ontario in the Dark.

NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 27.—Peter Kemper, Jr., prominent in business and social circles here, was drowned in Lake Ontario, three miles from Pultneyville, late last night while cruising in an auxiliary yacht with friends. He was standing on the deck when the wind swung the boom over, hurling him into the water.

Mr. Kemper was accompanied by C. P. H. Vary, President of the First National Bank of Newark; R. A. S. Bloomer of Bloomer Brothers Company, and Henry Rogers. All were good sailors. The boat left Sodus Point for a cruise to Canada in the afternoon and went by motor power to the scene of the accident.

A shift had just been made off Pultneyville from motor power to sail, and Mr. Kemper was assisting the rest in making everything shipshape when the accident occurred. Every effort was made to find him, but the night was dark and his friends did not see him after he fell.

Mr. Kemper was President of the A. C. Bartle Lumber Company, and also of the Kemper Buck Manufacturing Company of Newark. He was a member of the Wayne County Bar Association and stood high in Masonic circles. He was about fifty years of age and leaves a widow and five children.

Drowns Swimming from Boat.

FREEPORT, L. I., Aug. 27.—John C. Dixon, 30 years old, of 1,581 East Ninth Street, Brooklyn, was drowned to-day in the bay off Point Lookout Beach. He and a number of friends, among whom was Jack Robertson of Hempstead, went out in a boat, and when a considerable distance from land Dixon said he was going to take a swim. He undressed and plunged in, but had been in the water only a moment when he called for help. He had been caught by the strong tide and was being swept rapidly away. His friends tried to save him, but failed to reach him, and he soon disappeared from view. The body was not recovered.

Drowned from an Excursion Boat.

John Omiester of 3,413 Park Avenue, the Bronx, one of a gang of laborers unloading beer kegs from the steamboat Thomas C. Millard at 138th Street and the East River last night, toppled off a narrow gangplank and was drowned. Charles Nelson, a deckhand, and Policeman Krams of the Alexander Avenue Station jumped into the river in an attempt to rescue him. The Thomas C. Millard had just returned from taking the members of the Jackson Club, the Democratic organization of the Thirty-fourth Assembly District, to College Point on the annual outing. Omiester's body was recovered late last night.

AUTO UPSETS CARRIAGE.

Man and Wife Thrown Down 40-Foot Embankment, but Escape Injury.

NEWTON, N. J., Aug. 27.—Willard Goldsmith and his wife of this place narrowly escaped death this afternoon while they were driving near North Church. An automobile came whizzing along the road, striking their carriage and hurling Goldsmith and his wife down a forty-foot embankment. The driver of the auto, instead of stopping to give aid to the couple, opened up the lever and the machine shot along the road and was soon out of sight. Goldsmith says he caught the number and will report the matter to the proper authorities. He says the auto bore the number 11,038 N. J.

Goldsmith was driving his own team when the accident occurred. The road is narrow at that place, and when the auto came along the driver sounded his horn and Goldsmith turned to one side. Apparently there was not quite room for the two vehicles, as the front wheel of the auto struck the carriage and overturned it. The occupants rolled down the hill to the bottom, but fortunately neither had any bones broken, although Mrs. Goldsmith was so badly shaken up and frightened that she had to be removed to her home in another carriage. She is now under the care of a physician.

SHOT BY ITALIAN GIRL.

Young Suitor, Who Cannot Recover, Told Her He Loved Her No More.

Mariono Gurrol, an Italian girl, 21 years old, of 50 Roosevelt Street, shot her suitor, Antonio Tesonona, 22 years old, of 122 East Twenty-third Street, twice last night when, as she asserts, he told her he did not love her any more, and was going to marry another woman. The doctors at the Volunteer Hospital say the young man cannot recover.

Tesonona had called on the young woman and they quarreled after he told her of his new love. As she grabbed a revolver and aimed it at him he ran out and down the outside steps. As he reached the bottom the girl fired, one bulet entering the back of his head and the other lodging in his side.

Desperately wounded, he ran from Roosevelt Street to Oliver, with the young woman, still flourishing the weapon, in pursuit.

At Oliver and Oak Streets stood Policeman Albrecht of the Oak Street Station. Tesonona ran up and fell into his arms just as another shot was fired. This one went wild.

"What do you mean?" shouted the officer as the infuriated young woman struggled to get at the wounded man, who was fast losing consciousness.

"He knows what it means!" she screamed, and again she tried to shoot.

The policeman grabbed the pistol, and the young woman broke down and wept hysterically.

Tesonona was supported to the Oak Street Station, where he fell in a faint. Dr. Savage was called hurriedly from the Volunteer Hospital, and after treating the injured man he attended to the young woman, who was on the verge of collapse. The young woman was locked up.

SHOT WRONG GIRL.

Kentucky Youth Mistook Her for Young Woman Who Had Jilted Him.

LONDON, Ky., Aug. 27.—Reports have just been received of a tragedy enacted last night at the country church near Oakley, Ky. Worshippers leaving after the services were startled by two shots, followed after an interval by a third.

Bert Allen had shot and seriously wounded Miss Christie Hensley and her escort, William Hurley, acting under the belief that he had fired on Miss Mollie Gibson, who had previously jilted him for his cousin, Edward Allen, of whom he [illegible]. FIND NEW WITNESS IN BEATTIE CASE

Prosecution to Investigate Huckster's Story That He Knew of Plans for Wife's Murder.

A FRIEND OF THE BINFORDS

Defendant and His Lawyers Consult on Cross-Examination of Detective Scherer To-day.

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 27.—A new witness was discovered by the prosecution to-day against Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., who is on trial at Chesterfield Court House for the murder of his wife while they were on an auto ride. This new witness is said to have asserted that he knew a day ahead of time that the murder was to be committed. His name is George Jones, a huckster, and he is alleged to have given this information in the presence of H. B. Chewning, a well-known contractor, and another man whose identity the prosecution has not disclosed.

Detective L. L. Scherer, when informed that Jones had said, "I knew about the murder the Monday before it occurred," expressed the opinion that the man might have made the remark as a boast. Notwithstanding this the prosecution decided to subpoena Jones and Chewning to appear at the Chesterfield Court House when the trial is resumed to-morrow. Jones is known to be a friend of "Claudie," a sister of Beulah Binford, the girl with whom Beattie was infatuated.

When Detective Scherer heard of Jones's alleged conversation with Chewning and another man he went to Chewning, who confirmed the story.

"Yes, Jones did say that," said Chewning to-day.

Later, when Jones, Chewning, and Detective Scherer were together, Jones denied having made any such remark, but Chewning reiterated that he had. Jones showed uneasiness when subpœnaed as a witness. The prosecution, however, is determined to probe thoroughly Jones's knowledge of the affair, particularly as it affects the Binford family. In fact, having built up its case largely on the Binford girl as the alleged motive for the murder, the State to-morrow will attempt to impress that point on the jury by producing witnesses to testify about Henry Clay Beattie, Jr.'s visits to her. Some light on the relations of Beattie and Beulah Binford also is expected by the prosecution from Mrs. Binford, mother of the girl.

Before pressing for testimony about the Binford girl, however, the prosecution will revert to-morrow to the story told on the stand yesterday by several boys of the car they noticed in the road while returning from a dance at Bon Air. The yellow-topped Buick automobile which the boys say they saw, it has been learned, is the only one of its kind in Richmond, and is owned by Beattie. An effort will be made to introduce this fact in evidence.

Young Beattie spent most of the day with H. M. Smith, Jr., and Hill Carter, his lawyers, who conferred with him about the cross-examination planned for to-morrow by the defense against Detective Scherer. Scherer to-night said he was ready for the attack, that he had read his own testimony of Saturday as well as all his previous statements concerning Beattie's conversations and acts immediately after the murder, and that he was sure he had not made a mistake.

The prisoner rested better last night in the city jail here than he did during his confinement in the narrow box cell at the Chesterfield Court House, fifteen miles away, where he will be taken to-morrow. As Beattie came away from there last night he told his companions that the rats had kept him awake.

Frederick Beattie and his sister, cousins of the prisoner, visited him early to-day, bringing a home breakfast, which the prisoner ate with a relish.

PLAN TO OUTFLY ATWOOD.

1,500-Mile Course Along the Mississippi Is Suggested.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 27.—Plans for an aeroplane flight of at least 1,500 miles down the Mississippi River in September, to eclipse the world's record just established by Harry N. Atwood, are well under way it was announced to-night. Two courses are under consideration. One is from St. Paul, Minn., to Vicksburg, Miss., 1,511 miles. The other is from Dubuque, Iowa, to New Orleans, 1,555 miles.

The purpose of the flight is to focus attention on the Mississippi on the eve of the deep waterway convention at Chicago, and to promote aviation interest in the Middle West, as well as to establish a new world's record for distance.

Albert Bond Lambert, President of the Aero Club of St. Louis, starter of three international balloon races, is Chairman of the temporary organization of the Trans-Mississippi Flight Association. He declares that the flight is practical.

The aviator selected for the flight will drive a hydro-aeroplane, which will enable him to follow the course of the river with impunity, landing on the river surface when fair ground is not available.

Rodgers Convinces Her of the Stability of the Aeroplane.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—Just to show her how safe flying has become, C. P. Rodgers, who won the duration prize in the recent aviation meet, to-day took his mother for a short spin.

Rodgers has had to fly against the wishes of his mother, who felt that death was waiting to claim her son at any moment. She was converted to-day, and shyly announced when she stepped from the machine that the ride was fine and that she would ask her son to take her again.

Mrs. B. F. Roller, wife of a wrestler, went with Rodgers about 3,000 feet above the earth. She was badly chilled, but said she wanted to make another trip.

Thinks He Is John D. Rockefeller.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Aug. 27.—A stranger, who declares that he is John D. Rockefeller, that he is 40 years old, and possessor of seventy-eight millions, was found asleep on one of the benches in the grounds of the State Hospital here last night. The man is believed to have escaped from some institution for the insane. On his undershirt are the markings "B. A. 62." He was examined by physicians and committed to the State Hospital.

Crushed as He Slept on Third Rail.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 27.—John Frank, 47 years old, of this city, was run down and instantly killed here early this morning by the third-rail train due here from Camden at 12:40 o'clock.

From marks found on the roadbed it is believed that Frank went to sleep beside the track with his head pillowed on the wooden guard covering the third rail. The arms that connect the circuit and give the motive power for the train had caught him and dagged him beneath the wheels.

Postal Savings in Big Cities.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—The receipts in the postal savings offices at New York, Chicago, St. Louis, and Boston, which opened for business on Aug. 1, it is announced at the Post Office Department, amounted to $250,000 at the end of [illegible]

ANXIOUS TO LEAVE ARMY.

Many Soldiers Purchase Their Release—Gen. Grant Is Puzzled.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Reasons which prompt so many soldiers to seek release from the United States Army by the purchase of their discharge is inexplicable to Major Gen. Frederick D. Grant. He commanded the Department of the East during the last fiscal year, and in a report to the War Department says that 623 applications for discharge by purchase were acted upon by his department during the year.

"It seems incredible to me," Gen. Grant says, "that so many soldiers, in times like the present, when industrial conditions in our country are not the best, should desire to leave the service and are willing to pay a sum, which to them is considerable, for the privilege of doing so. When one thinks of the generous provision the Government makes for its soldiers, this restlessness cannot be accounted for."

WILL STRIKE BACK AT TAFT.

La Follette and Norris to Present the Insurgent View Soon.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Mr. Taft's strong criticism of the insurgents in the Senate in his speech yesterday in Hamilton, Mass., will draw forth a quick reply. Mr. La Follette is still in Washington, but he said that he would have no comment to make until next Thursday, when he will address the Pennsylvania State Grange at Harrisburg. Not much later Representative Norris of Nebraska will speak at the State Fair, and both the insurgents are expected to repeat and develop their already severe assaults on the President.

There will be little, however, for Mr. La Follette to add to his denunciations. These have been frequent lately, both on the floor of the Senate, in private conversation, and in La Follette's Magazine, which he edits. He has not only assailed Mr. Taft's policies but his personal honesty, and has openly charged him with working hand in glove with large capital.

CABINET QUITS CAPITAL.

Huntington Wilson the Ranking Officer of the Government on Duty.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Every member of the Government, as officially understood, is out of Washington, and the task of heading the various executive departments falls to Huntington Wilson, Assistant Secretary of State. Mr. Wilson, in the absence of the Secretary of State, is often in full charge of that department, and several times already has been the highest ranking official left in the capital.

President Taft is at Beverly, Secretary of State Knox is at Belgrade Lakes, Me.; Attorney General Wickersham is on Long Island, Secretary MacVeagh of the Treasury is at Dublin, N. H.; Secretary Stimson is on Long Island, Secretary Nagel is in Massachusetts, Secretary Fisher is in Alaska, Secretary Meyer is abroad, and Postmaster General Hitchcock and Secretary Wilson have just left the city.

Mr. Wilson is the ranking Assistant Secretary, therefore the acting pilot of the ship of state. There are one or two other assistants to Cabinet officers in Washington, but they are simply waiting for an opportunity to take a rest. The fact that Congress remained in session until the middle of August kept the high officials in Washington much longer than otherwise.

TAFT TO MAKE 200 SPEECHES

To Prepare the Main Ones for His Western Tour in Next Two Weeks.

Special to The New York Times.

BEVERLY, Mass., Aug. 27.—President Taft will make nearly 200 speeches on his six weeks' Western trip, which begins on Sept. 16. For the next two weeks he plans to put a part of each afternoon into the preparation of the main addresses. For the big speeches he will discuss reciprocity, tariff, currency legislation, the peace projects, and conservation.

Beginning to-morrow, the rest programme goes into force at the Summer Capitol, and the President will break into the programme but twice in that time—on Wednesday going to Manchester, Mass., where he will preside at a meeting in the interest of Hampton Institute at the home of Mrs. J. F. Curtis, and on Thursday, Sept. 7, when he goes to the Connecticut State Fair at Hartford.

The President and Mrs. Taft attended services at the First Parish Unitarian Church to-day and listened to a sermon by the Rev. U. G. B. Pierce, Chaplain of the United States Senate and the minister of All Souls' Church at Washington, where the President attends. There was but a handful of people to see the President to-day when he entered and left the church.

Horace Taft of Watertown, Conn., arrived to-night at Paramatta, where he is to spend a week. Charlie Taft this afternoon motored to Boston, where he met his uncle, at whose school he is a student.

Late this afternoon the President and Mrs. Taft motored to Topsfield and Ipswich.

Secretary Hilles is expected to return to Beverly a few days before the President starts on his trip. The itinerary will be completed this week.

FARMER SHOOTS EMPLOYE.

Threatened with a Scythe, He Says, and Pleads Self-Defense.

Special to The New York Times.

HACKENSACK, N. J., Aug. 27.—Charles De Chimoney, 75 years old, a wealthy farmer of Rochelle Park, was arrested to-day on a charge of felonious assault upon one of his farmhands, Karima Stuper. The farmer declares he acted in self-defense, for Stuper was following him to the house with a scythe, having threatened to cut him in two with the weapon.

Stuper had refused to do certain chores around the farmhouse and De Chimoney discharged him. Then Stuper grabbed the scythe. De Chimoney started for the house as fast as he could with the enraged farmhand in close pursuit. The farmer called to his daughter to hand him his shotgun. She did so, and Stuper droped the scythe and started to retreat, but it was too late. The aged farmer pulled the trigger of the double-barreled shotgun. Stuper was only about twenty yards away and got the full charge of shot. His wounds are painful but not serious.

Justice Bratt put De Chimoney under $1,000 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury.

SLAYER LEE AGAIN CONFESSES

Man Who Killed Parents and Brother Now in Solitary Cell.

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ind., Aug. 27.—William Lee, confessed murderer of his father, mother, and brother at Booneville, Ind., is in solitary confinement in the Indiana Reformatory to-night. He reached the prison to-day from Princeton, where officers took him following the publishing of his confession last night at Evansville. He made a supplementary confession later in the night. This is largely a reiteration of the details of that given out at Evansville. He said he murdered his parents because he believed they had planned to kill him.

"I thought I would beat the old man to it," was the way he concluded his third acknowledgment of the butchery of his father, Richard Lee, his gray-haired mother, and his younger brother Clarence.

LOW LEVELS FOR 1911 ON 123 LISTED STOCKS

Steady Decline Set In Aug. 2, with Union Pacific Leading the Fall.

HIGH TO LOW RANGE WIDE

Reading Down 22¼ Points from Its High Mark of the Year, Steel 12⅞, and Missouri Pacific 23.

With forty-five new low records for the year made during the short session in the stock market on Saturday, a day's showing of declines only twice exceeded since the slump began, on the 2d of this month, August's stock trading to date has put 123 stocks to new low levels for 1911 out of the 201 issues which appeared in last week's market.

There remain only a few of the stocks which have been at all active since the first of the month which have not made low records in the present decline. In fact, out of the twenty-four active issues selected for the appended table to illustrate the extent of the movement, only four—Atchison, Canadian Pacific, Erie, and Southern Railway—are still above their low prices made earlier in the year.

The brief rise in July which immediately preceded the decline of this month had not been sufficient to bring prices back to those of the early months of the year, and the declines in August do not show anything like the same losses as from the highest prices of 1911, which in most cases were in January or February.

Union Pacific, however, which has declined 22⅝ since Aug. 1, shows a loss of only 3⅞ points more from its high point of the year, which was reached on July 22. United States Steel is down 9⅞ since Aug. 1 and 12⅞ from its high price, made on Feb. 6. Reading, off 18⅜ since Aug. 1, is off 22¼ from its high mark of 1911, made June 3. In contrast, Missouri Pacific, which fell only 8¼ since Aug. 1, is down 23 points from its highest price for the year, reached Feb. 15.

The decline set in steadily on Aug. 2, when the market suddenly became active, jumping from a day's total transactions an Aug. 1 of 178,896 shares to 450,583. With scarcely a recession, the slump reached its maximum on Aug. 10, when the day's business totaled 1,033,630 shares, which was the day of greatest activity this year. The activity continued in lessening degree until about the 17th, when activity lessened coincidentally with a stronger tendency in the market.

Early last week, before the declines set in again in earnest, the market was again dull, but by Friday, when fifty-nine new low records were made, business had run up again to close to 700,000 shares.

Compared to the Silent Panic.

The decline, because of the inexplicable liquidation, has been likened to the "silent panic of March, 1907," but an actual comparison of the two events shows that there is little real resemblance in the results.

Out of 220 active stocks in the decline of March, 1907, all but three made new low records during that month, and whereas the declines in the present month range up to 26⅞ points from the highest levels of the last six months, in March, 1907, declines of more than 50 points were common from the levels of the six months previous.

In March, 1907, for instance, Northern Pacific was off 117¼ from the high price of 1906. American Smelters was down 65; Amalgamated, 34¾; Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, 76¼; Reading, 70¼; Union Pacific, 72, and Great Northern preferred, 221.

PRISONER STARVING HIMSELF

Man Who Threw Woman Overboard Refuses to Eat—Confesses.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Aug. 27.—Determined, he says, to cheat a term of imprisonment, Charles Hopper of Chicago, who on Saturday night murdered Daisy Watts, better known as Grace Lyons, of Chicago by throwing her off a steamer in Lake Michigan, has refused to touch food or drink offered to him in his cell in the county jail at Grand Haven.

The tragedy is one of the few murders committed on Government inland waters in several years, and the charge of murder will be placed against Hopper in the Grand Rapids Federal Court. It will be the first case of its kind started here.

Daisy Watts was a member of a prominent Grand Rapids family. Hopper, in a confession made in the Holland jail before being taken to Grand Haven, declared that he committed the crime to prevent the woman from returning to the life of the underworld, which he says she was leading when he found her.

Hopper says he first met the woman about three years ago in a State Street apartment house in Chicago and fell in love with her, but she refused to marry him. Six months ago, he says, he met her in a Halsted Street Chinese dive. According to his story, she accepted his offer of marriage and he took her from the place.

Last Sunday she disappeared and he traced her to the same Chinese dive, where, he says, he found her smoking opium with ten Chinamen. She left the place with him, but they quarreled soon afterward, and on Saturday she went away. He traced her to the boat and boarded it. Another scene resulted, and the crime was committed near the Michigan shore.

"I am glad I did it," said Hopper, concluding his confession. "Now I know where she is. Those Chinese devils can never get their clutches on her again."

NEW CITY RULERS ACCUSED.

Trenton Commission Caucuses Before Official Sessions in Same Old Way.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 27.—While the new city commission is complimented on making a good start in the new government, it is also criticised for holding secret caucuses. In fact, the charge is made that the Commissioners are breaking the new law by private sessions.

The Walsh act provides that all meetings of the Commissioners shall be open to the public; yet the commission last week held two or three private caucuses before the meetings.

People who have been clamoring for a "wide open" municipal governing body say that the new practice is no different from the old Councilmanic caucus.

The Commissioners claim the right to [illegible] together on city matters, provided [illegible]

A WASHINGTON POST PARTY.

It Included Nine Popular Girls, and They're Back Safely from Europe.

Among the 597 cabin passengers arriving yesterday from Glasgow on the Anchor liner California was a "popularity" party of fifteen sent to Europe by The Washington Post. The party included two clergymen, nine Washington belles, a lawyer, a doctor, and two young men. They had traveled together through Belgium, Holland, France, England, Switzerland, and Ireland.

The most exciting incident on the trip, so far as the girls were concerned, happened in France. A Frenchman who traveled on the corridor train with the party became so infatuated with one of the girls that he went 150 miles beyond his station, and then after three days of impassioned courtship he made a formal proposal of marriage, and was kindly but firmly refused. He crushed his Hammerstein hat over his heated brow and was seen no more.

The party reached London when the strike fever was at its height and registered at the Royal De Kaiser Hotel. When they attempted to cross London Bridge in a bus they were held up by a crowd of strikers, who had overturned a bus just ahead of theirs. They did not stir out of their hotel for three days after that trip.

Two fast English motor boats which have been brought here to take part in races at Huntington, L. I., were carried in the hold of the California. They are the Tyreless III., owned by G. Pratt of England, and the Pioneer, owned by the Duke of Westminster.

TRY TO AVERT STRIKE ON HARRIMAN LINES

Railroad Union Officials Off to San Francisco to Confer with Kruttschnitt.

WAGES THE LESSER ISSUE

Recognition of Federation the Chief Demand—Illinois Central Workers Press for Terms.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—A conference to-morrow between the officials of the Illinois Central Railroad and representatives of the mechanical crafts employes, who have voted to strike unless their demands for recognition are granted, marks the first of a series of conferences to be held during the week in different cities, which will either settle or bring to a head the wide-spread unrest among thousands of shopmen in the employ of railroads. By the end of the week peace negotiations will be well under way or strikes, which will tie up the mercantile departments of the Harriman Lines and the Illinois Central, will be called.

President McCleary, heading a committee of the Illinois Central employes, will arrive in Chicago to-morrow morning. The committee will seek a conference with Illinois Central officials, and upon this meeting will depend whether or not there is to be peace or war on that road. Ninety-seven per cent. of the employes voted to strike last Saturday unless the Federation is recognized by the railroad officials.

On Friday a conference between the union leaders and Julius Kruttschnitt, Vice President of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific Lines, will be held in San Francisco.

J. W. Kline, President of the International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths and Helpers, left Chicago this morning for Cheyenne, Wyo., where he will meet the officers of the other crafts affected.

"There is nothing new in the situation," said Mr. Kline before leaving. "The matter simply depends on whether or not Kruttschnitt will recede from the position he has taken heretofore. Following our conference at Cheyenne we shall hold another conference with the General Chairman of the different crafts in San Francisco Thursday. Then we shall confer with Mr. Kruttschnitt and ask that we be given a conference with the general managers.

"If a conference is refused, there is nothing left but to strike. If the conference is granted with the General Managers, we shall proceed to see if an amicable adjustment can be reached."

Among the labor leaders whom Mr. Kline will meet at Cheyenne and who will accompany him to the coast are M. F. Ryan, General President of the Carmen's Union; M. O'Sullivan, President of the International Union of Sheet Metal Workers; Joseph Franklin, President of the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, and J. D. Buckalew, Vice President of the International Association of Machinists.

No telegrams were received to-day by President Kline regarding the situation, and this was regarded as evidence that the shopmen are willing to wait for the outcome of the San Francisco conference. There are eight trades in the Shopmen's Federation on the Illinois Central and Yazoo & Mississippi Railroads. They are: Machinists, boilermakers and helpers, blacksmiths and helpers, sheet metal workers, coppersmiths and pipe men, steamfitters and helpers, and railway clerks.

To each of the International Presidents of these trades a letter of protest has been sent by General Superintendent of Motive Power M. K. Barnum.

These letters state that no formal notice has been served upon their employes by any of the trades, according to contracts, and concludes:

> We therefore tell you that the Illinois Central and Yazoo & Mississippi Roads will consider a strike of employes, members of the organization you represent, as a gross violation of existing agreements, and a breach of faith. We insist that you compel a strict observance of the agreement now in force in all particulars.

It is understood that the Illinois Central Committee will receive instructions to-morrow from all the International Presidents and they will be peremptory orders that the committee must not exceed its powers. These powers are merely to ask the Illinois Central officials for a conference, and if refused, to notify the International Presidents, who will then take charge of the negotiations.

A dispatch received in this city to-night from Galveston says:

"Pending the conference this week, which is to determine the question of a strike of shopmen on the Harriman lines, men are being laid off in these and other branches of the service. Reports to-night indicate retrenchment measures which throws more than 3,000 men out of employment of the Southern Pacific, the Houston & Texas Central, and other Harriman lines. The policy of cutting down the forces extends to the various shop crafts of these lines, also to the yard and operating crews and to freight depots and to clerical forces. Complaint is made that the retrenchment which the officials say is absolutely necessary is done with a view of intimidating the employes or affecting the demands of the shopmen."

WHAT KRUTTSCHNITT SAYS.

Ready to Meet Union Officials, but Silent on the Federation.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 27.—Julius Kruttschnitt, Vice President of the Harriman Lines, arrived here to-night, and the centre of negotiations between officers of the Shop Employes' Federation and the railroad officials shifted to this city. Mr. Kruttschnitt said:

"Two hours before I left Chicago I talked with J. W. Kline, one of the federation Presidents, and we discussed the situation. At the conclusion of our interview I told him he was at liberty to make known to his associates what I had said to him. He told me it would be better to have that come from me first hand. He has not made that public, and I do not care at this time to say just what I told him.

"Last night I received a telegram from Kline asking me at what time I would meet representatives of shop employes in San Francisco. I replied I would be in San Francisco until Saturday. I have never denied an audience to any one."

"Will you meet with these men as representatives of the Shop Employes' Federation?"

"I don't know anything about the federation. That has not come up to me yet."

OFFICIALS HOPEFUL FOR PEACE.

Off for San Francisco to Confer with Kruttschnitt.

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 27.—The five International Presidents of the railway unions involved in the difficulties with the Harriman lines will meet Julius Kruttschnitt, Vice President of the system, in San Francisco on Friday, and endeavor to reach a peace agreement. J. A. Franklin, President of the boilermakers, and M. T. Ryan, President of the carmen, left for the West to-night. They will be joined by the other three Presidents en route—J. W. Kline of the blacksmiths, M. O'Sullivan, representing the sheet metal workers, and J. E. D. Bucklew of the machinists.

The union Presidents will not ask Mr. Kruttschnitt to settle the questions involved with them personally, but will request that he instruct the officials of the various Harriman lines to treat with a federated committee from each line.

The demands will be the same as those already granted by the big Eastern roads. Should Mr. Kruttschnitt refuse to treat with the five unions as a federated body a strike on the entire Harriman system will result. The various local unions have already voted to go out upon the order of the Presidents.

Mr. Kruttschnitt is now conferring with the officials of the system in the West, and at federated headquarters, in Kansas City, Kan., it is believed that a strike will be averted. Up to the beginning even a conference was refused, the Harriman officials stating emphatically that they would meet with the unions separately [illegible] the federation. A meeting is now conceded.

Mr. Franklin said to-day:

"I do not anticipate much trouble in getting together. Our demands are not unreasonable. The wage question is not involved save to keep wages uniform, and with the other roads signed up the Harriman system cannot afford to stand out."

Special to The New York Times.

PADUCAH, Ky., Aug. 27.—Fred McCreary, President, and W. E. Bowen, Secretary-Treasurer of the Federation of Illinois Central Railway Shopmen, and local members of the General Executive Committee left this evening for Chicago to meet the other federation officers and committeemen. Mr. Bowen will deliver the vote of the members of the Federation to the General Executive Committee, which will make an attempt to have a conference with Assistant General Manager Foley of the Illinois Central for the purpose of making known the vote to him. If the committee is rejected it will go into executive session and call a strike probably within the coming week. About 90 per cent. of the Federation favor a strike if the Federation is not recognized.

President McCreary stated before leaving that the Illinois Central Federation was working independently of the other Harriman lines. An effort probably will be made to have a conference with Mr. Foley on Tuesday.

MAY CUT OFFICIALS' SALARIES.

New Haven's Retrenchment Will Also Delay Improvements.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 27.—The policy of rigid retrenchment and economy announced last night by President Mellen for the New Haven Railroad was partially put into effect early in the present year, according to a prominent railroad man.

President Mellen gave THE NEW YORK TIMES an exclusive statement in November, predicting that 1911 would witness a decided recession in business, and that indications were that the crest of the business wave had already been reached. Early in January the railroad's decreased receipts assured him that his forecast was correct, and he started curtailing expenses. Already discharges in every class of employes have been made, and they will be continued in accordance with the policy announced by Mr. Mellen last night, in which he stated that the condition of business was such that every possible economy in the working force which could be effected would be ordered.

No reduction of wages has yet been announced. In most of the classes of workmen protection is given by agreements, which do not expire for years. In the cases of salaried officials, beginning with President Mellen, a cut of between 5 and 10 per cent. was ordered during the depression of 1907, and another may be put into effect before many months. Action looking to that end has yet, however, to be begun.

Specific projects which, it is believed, will be indefinitely postponed in accordance with the terms of President Mellen's policy, are the extension of the electric zone from Stamford to New Haven, the installation of an electric zone for Boston and its suburbs, and the building of several stations, notably the station costing about $2,000,000 in this city.

MUST TELL OF KILLING.

Mrs. Jerry Small Called Against Her Will in the Golden Case.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Aug. 27.—Unwilling and reluctant to take the stand, Mrs. Jerry Small, who is supposed to know of the events that preceded the killing of Mrs. George Golden by her husband, will be forced to tell everything to-morrow. Whether the young Kittanning merchant and church worker killed his wife in mistake for a burglar or by design is expected to be determined by Mrs. Small's testimony.

Mrs. Small will be asked concerning the supposed quarrel between the pair the night before the tragedy, and also regarding the story that she heard cries of, "Oh, George, don't!" and "This will settle it all!"

Feeling at Kittanning is all in Golden's favor, and the prosecution believes that this has caused Mrs. Small to be reluctant to testify. The attachment for her arrest was served on Saturday night. The defense also has habeas corpus proceedings under way to bring about the release of Golden. His lawyers declare that there will be plenty of proof that he fired from the bed, thinking that the white-clad figure at the window was that of a burglar.

The prosecution will depend largely upon the testimony of physicians given on Saturday. The course taken by the bullet and other circumstantial features were dwelt upon by Col. Fairman in his examination, and at the conclusion he declared that Mrs. Golden could not have met death in the manner described by her husband. Dr. C. J. Jessop and Dr. R. M. Tarr proved the most important witnesses along these lines.

The Small woman probably will be forced to give her testimony to-morrow before Justice Hill. The county is now taking up the case, although Judge W. D. Patton of Armstrong County insisted from the start that the private prosecutor retained by the family of Mrs. Golden would have to establish a prima facie case before the State took up the prosecution.

A BLACK HAND PUZZLE.

Men Who Shot Police Say They Also Hunted Blackmailers.

BOSTON, Aug. 27.—An investigation of stories told by four Italians arrested early this morning, following the shooting of three policemen as they were lying in wait for Black Hand operators who had demanded $1,000 of Mrs. Rosa De Angelo of Dorchester, occupied the attention of the police to-day. The prisoners say they also knew of the blackmailing plot, and were watching for the men to claim the money, and shot at the officers, who were in plain clothes, by mistake.

The police have found nothing to disprove the story of the men, and, pending the outcome of the injuries to the officers, have preferred no charge against the quartet.

Reserve Officer James C. Clark, who was shot in the breast, is the most seriously hurt. He is at the City Hospital in a critical condition, and it is feared he cannot recover. Policeman Arthur C. Cooper was shot in the back, but his condition is not serious. Policeman Bernard Doherty was wounded on the left hand while disarming the Italians in the dark. Clark and Cooper were shot from ambush.

ALASKANS PETITION FISHER.

Cordova Men Say Withdrawal of Coal Lands Has Paralyzed Progress.

CORDOVA, Alaska, Aug. 27.—Secretary of the Interior Fisher arrived from Catalla yesterday and received a rousing welcome. A memorial was presented to him asking that the coal lands of Alaska be sold in the same manner as other Government lands. The memorial sets forth that the withdrawal from entry of the coal lands has paralyzed progress in the Territory.

Secretary Fisher answered by assuring the Cordovans that he would give Alaska the fair treatment accorded any other part of the country that came under his jurisdiction.

THEATRE DEATHS DUE TO NARROW STAIRS

Those Leading from Canonsburg Opera House Were Only Six and a Half Feet Wide.

TWENTY-SIX WERE KILLED

Panic-Stricken Crowd Crashed Into Throng Waiting to Enter and Clogged Narrow Passageway.

CANONSBURG, Penn., Aug. 27.—The panic in a moving picture show in the Canonsburg Opera House last night cost the lives of twenty-six persons. Twenty-five members of the audience were seriously injured, and thirty persons suffered minor hurts.

According to survivors of the catastrophe, the panic started when at 8:15 o'clock the moving picture machine developed a defect. There was a sharp report from the machine, followed by a dense cloud of smoke as the electric fuse burned out. A small boy shouted "Fire!" at the same time starting for the narrow exit to the stairs. Bolus Dubrowski, a Polish miner and a giant in size, jumped from his seat and ran for the same door. In a moment there was a fighting throng from the audience on his heels. At the head of the narrow stairway which led to the street the miner tripped. As he rolled down the stairs he swept others from their feet, who were waiting their turn to enter the theatre, and soon there was a pile of persons at the foot of the stairs fighting like madmen to get out. Here is a revised list of the dead:

BABY of Mrs. Kelley, about 4 years.
BYRD, FRANCES, (colored,) 12 years.
CAMPBELL, Mrs. MARY ANN LAIRD, 45 years.
COLE, GEORGE OWEN, 42 years.
DUBROWSKI, BOLUS, a miner.
FISHER, LULU, 23 years, of Glen Campbell, Penn.
GIBBS, ELIZABETH, 6 years.
GLEDITSCH, ELIZABETH, 6 years.
GREEN, ELIZABETH, 4 years.
HILL, MURRAY, 13 years.
KAY, GEORGE, 15 years.
KELLEY, Mrs. BLANCHE E.
LAIRD, ANNIE, 8 years, daughter of Mrs. Campbell.
LANE, CARL, 24 years.
LANE, MARGARET, 4 months.
MARSHALL, Mrs. FRED, 35 years.
MASTIC, PAUL, 10 years.
McPEAKE, ARTHUR, 20 years.
MILLER, Mrs. CHARLES, of McKeesport, Penn.
NEISH, WALTER, 14 years.
NUGY, LUDWIG, 23 years.
RICHARDS, STELLA, 13 years.
RITTIGER, SYDNEY, 30 years; lived in Youngstown, Ohio.
ROBINSON, MARIE ELLA, 17 years.
SHANER, HAROLD, 13 years.
YOUNG, Mrs. CALLIE, 29 years.

The fight on the stairs lasted half an hour. Volunteer firemen, several policemen, and a few level-headed citizens fought hard to untangle the mass of men, women, and children at the foot of the stairs. Those unhurt and those slightly injured were pulled from the top of the pile. As they gained the street the rescued ones ran screaming like maniacs to all parts of the small town. Next came the more seriously hurt, and these were sent home or taken to nearby houses, while a few were sent unconscious to hospitals. Then the rescuers came to the silent forms of those who had reached the fatal stairway first. One after another, the victims, many of them women and small children, were carried to the sidewalk. All had been suffocated, and their faces wore expressions of terror.

Of the twenty-six dead, thirteen were children, seven of them pupils in the public schools. To-day it was decided by the school authorities to postpone for a week the opening of the schools. Arthur McPeake, who is among the dead, was passing the building when the bodies began to pile up at the door. The young man ran to the rescue, and was in the act of dragging a body from the pile when a man came hurtling down the stairs. He struck McPeake on the back, and the young man's neck was broken.

Sydney Rittiger was at the performance with his fiancée, Miss Lulu Fisher. Before entering the building they had stopped at a jewelry store nearby and Rittiger had bought the ring that was to have been used at their wedding. Both were killed. Wilmer Lane, an employe of the Canonsburg Pottery and a member of one of the volunteer fire companies, hastened to answer the alarm, and was working at the pile of bodies at the entrance to the opera house when he came upon the lifeless forms of his two children, lying beside his unconscious wife.

Samuel Lane of Morganza, not knowing that his son's family were at the theatre, had entered the building a short time before the alarm was given. He ran toward the stairs and was making his way down when he saw a child almost under his feet. As he stooped to pick her up he recognized his granddaughter, but at that moment he was caught in the mighty whirl and she was swept out of his reach and killed. He was seriously hurt.

Among the most seriously injured is Mrs. Minnie Lemon of Lawrenceville, Ill., who was visiting friends at Houston, near here. Mrs. Lemon was a spectator at the show, and was caught in the crush. To-night physicians believe that her mind is affected on account of her harrowing experience. Mrs. Lemon is at the Canonsburg Hospital, and cries continuously to be saved.

It is reported to-night that there were several baby carriages at the bottom of the stairway. It is said that these seriously handicapped the audience in the rush for the street. Coroner Heffran has announced that this allegation will be thoroughly investigated.

Manager Ferguson of the theatre endeavored to stop the panic. Accompanied by his wife, he started for the stairs when the first alarm was given, but seeing there was no escape there, made his way to the stage. Calling loudly to the audience to follow him, he led the way to the rear of the stage, and 300 persons escaped in this way.

Coroner James T. Heffran has begun a rigid investigation. He arrived at the opera house early to-day, and within a short time had selected a jury. He was shown through the opera house by Manager C. F. Ferguson and John C. Morgan, owner of the building. He will hold an inquest here next Thursday or Friday. Coroner Heffran will summon the Pennsylvania Department of Factory and Building Inspection to ascertain whether the laws of the State have been followed. Measurements taken by members of the jury showed the stairway leading to the second floor of the building, the main floor of the opera house, to be only 6½ feet wide, while the doorway at the bottom was not more than 8 feet high.

Services were held at all the churches here to-day, but the attendance was not large. In all mention was made of the disaster. This prayer was repeated by the congregations:

> O merciful God and Heavenly Father, Who hast taught us in Thy Holy Word that Thou dost not willingly afflict or grieve the children of men, look with pity, we beseech Thee, on the sorrows of this people. In Thy wisdom, Thou hast seen fit to visit us with trouble and bring distress upon us. Make us deeply sensible of the shortness and uncertainty of human life. Teach us to number our days that among the changes of this world our hearts may surely there be fixed where true joy is to be found through Christ our Lord.

The community is stunned by the disaster. The police and firemen had the dead removed to two improvised morgues in the night, and there the identification of the bodies was completed to-day. One by one the bodies were taken to their homes. Visitors came from the surrounding country in throngs, and morbid crowds followed the bodies from the morgues to their homes.

HARRISBURG, Penn., Aug. 27.—Immediately on receipt of news of the disaster at the Opera House in Canonsburg State Factory Inspector John Delaney telegraphed J. R. Patterson of Beaver Falls, Penn., Deputy Inspector for that district, to make a complete investigation without delay, and report to the Chief Inspector. The Factory Inspection Department has to do with the enforcement of the laws governing escapes and other regulations for the protection of patrons in moving-picture theatres and other public places. Capt. Delaney said to-day that, according to the records of his department, the equipment of the Opera House at Canonsburg was in compliance with the requirements of the law with regard to fire escapes.

SCARE IN McNAMARA CASE.

Crank Telephones to Gen. Otis and the Los Angeles Police.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 27.—A crank's threats telephoned to Gen. H. G. Otis, proprietor of The Times, to the effect that, unless he paid $10,000 for the defense fund being raised to aid the McNamara brothers in their trial for dynamiting the newspaper last Fall, he would be shot and his home blown up, caused a big stir in police circles last night.

Shortly after nightfall Gen. Otis told detectives that he had been called to the telephone at his home and informed that a hundred desperate men, adherents of the McNamaras, were about to arrive, and that they would make it their business to shoot him. He had paid no attention, but a short time after the same voice spoke to him over the wire, asking for instructions as to the best way of protecting him. Again he ignored the matter, but when the unknown called up a third time and demanded that $10,000 be sent to the corner of First Street and Broadway, he thought it might be well to get police advice.

Three detectives went out on the affair, but found nothing. While they were out a telephone call to Police Headquarters sent more detectives to investigate a statement that a band of desperadoes was making trouble in the vicinity of the General's home. They found nothing. Now two detectives are trying to find the crank who did the telephoning.

DOOM OF OLD TEXAS FIXED FOR TO-DAY

Broadside of Ten 12-Inch Guns from Dreadnought Delaware Will Be Poured Into Her.

TEST IN CHESAPEAKE BAY

Navy Men Expect Obsolete Battleship, Now Known as the San Marcos, Will Be Completely Shattered.

The old battleship Texas, now the San Marcos, will be under fire for the third time in her history this week. The first time the old ship was under fire was at the battle of Santiago, when she gained a world-wide fame as the ship commanded by the late Admiral, then Captain, "Jack" Philip. After that the Texas came home, but the only sister of the ill-fated Maine was obsolete even then, and soon passed out of the line into reserve. A year ago, when Congress voted to build two dreadnoughts to carry 14-inch instead of 12-inch guns, the Navy Department decided that the time had come for the Texas to change her name, so that the one which she had borne so gloriously might be given in turn to a new dreadnought, sister to the New York.

So they changed the Texas to the San Marcos, and the officials of the Navy Department wondered what to do with Philip's old ship. Last March they found a use for her. She was designated as a target to test the penetrating power of the twelve-inch shells used by the Atlantic fleet. The battleship New Hampshire got the job of bombarding the ancient battleship. Chesapeake Bay was the scene of the firing test, and when it was all over the San Marcos looked as if she had been through a dozen battles of Santiago instead of one.

Great jagged holes were torn in her defenseless armor-plated sides, her military masts were shot to pieces, the bridge where Philip stood when Cervera went forth to face his great defeat was riddled until it was a tangled mass of shattered steel, and her decks were piled deep in the débris made by the New Hampshire's shells.

Nobody who saw the San Marcos after that test believed that she would ever again face the fire of a modern battleship. The New Hampshire is not a Dreadnought, and now that the Atlantic Fleet has four ships of that type, it was decided some weeks ago that the time to find out what a Dreadnought could do to a battleship had arrived, and so they decided to patch up the old San Marcos and use her as a target for the Delaware, which represented the United States at the coronation of King George.

The test that will take place in the Chesapeake will be the first of the kind in which an American Dreadnought has figured. The firing is to take place some time to-day, and it is said that every one of the ten twelve-inch guns on the Delaware will be used. A broadside of the ten twelve-inch guns will be fired. This broadside will be the greatest in destructive power ever fired by a single battleship in the history of the navy. It is [illegible] that it will end the career of the old Texas forever.

The destruction of the San Marcos will be [illegible] of the Atlantic Fleet, and [illegible] in the vicinity of [illegible] fired her broadside of [illegible] steel, [illegible] the [illegible] steam for the southern drill grounds off Cape Henry for the regular Autumn practice.

Body of Missing Child in River.

The body of 2-year-old Isidore Rosenweig of 1,976 Second Avenue was found in the East River off the foot of Ninety-ninth Street yesterday morning by Patrolman Kuhlman. The father of the boy previously believed that he was kidnapped on Aug. 4.

PORTUGAL FACES FACTIONAL STRIFE

New President Has Heavy Task to Keep Peace with Separation Law Bone of Contention.

STRIKE TROUBLES GROW

40,000 Workers Are Now Out and Official Buildings Closed and Streets Patrolled by Troops.

LISBON, Aug. 27.—The political situation in Portugal is taking a serious turn. The Republican Party is now completely divided. The advanced element, under the leadership of Alfonso Costa, Provisional Minister of Justice, and the Conservative section under Antonio Almeida, provisional Minister of the Interior, and Senhor Camacho declared open war at thte elections for the Presidency, the Moderates winning the day.

The difference in the strength of the two sections is not great, and President Arriaga is devoting all his energies to conciliating the rival factions, but the chances of his succeeding are not considered rosy. It is probable that after the formation of a new Cabinet Parliament will be adjourned. The reopening of Parliament, however, is expected to lead to heated contests in the House. One of the chief measures of the new Ministry will be the redrafting of the separation law. Though this law is considered just in principle, it is complained that drastic clauses were inserted in it through the influence of Costa, who thereby gained the support of the extreme Republicans.

The general opinion is that the Government will be unable to resist the fierce attack of the adherents of Minister Costa, and in such case dissolution of the chamber will be inevitable.

Strikes are developing which threaten to have a serious effect on the country. Forty thousand cork cutters, lighter men, and general dock workers are now out. The Diario Noticias reports that at Moita, Almada, Aldegallega, Alcochete, and other villages opposite Lisbon, which are centres of the cork-cutting industry, the people are abandoning their homes in fear of sabotage. Acts of violence have already been perpetrated. Official buildings are closed and guarded by the military, and the streets are patrolled by the troops.

HUNGARIAN BAPTIST COLLEGE

Government Friendly to $100,000 American-Canadian Project.

VIENNA, Aug. 27.—The Hungarian Minister of Education has practically approved the project for the erection of an American-Canadian Baptist university, to cost $100,000, at Grosswardein. Only a few unimportant differences remain to be adjusted, and it is hoped the charter will be granted in October.

The plan to erect such a university originated with a Canadian pastor, the Rev. Joseph Wellinger, who traveled in Hungary in 1910. Finding strong local interest in the project, he undertook to raise the necessary funds in the United States and Canada. A landed proprietor of Grosswardein has presented an adequate site.

It is intended to train Baptist preachers and teachers, admitting not only Hungarians but students of other nationalities. It is expected that a number of Americans will be glad to avail themselves of the courses. The official languages of the university lectures and teaching will be Hungarian and German.

POPE GIVES AUDIENCE.

Pontiff Sees First Outside Visitor, Archbishop of Rio Janeiro.

ROME, Aug. 27.—The Pope this morning celebrated mass and afterward proceeded to the Vatican gardens, where he received his first visitor outside of the private circle since his illness. This was Cardinal Arcoverde de Albuquerque, Archbishop of Rio Janeiro, who came to pay his farewell respects, as he was leaving to-night for America.

The Pontiff appeared entirely recovered, interested himself in the affairs of the diocese, and ended the audience by bestowing the apostolic benediction on the churches in South America.

"MONA LISA" ON WAY HERE?

Two Men Carrying Panel Said to Have Sailed on Kaiser Wilhelm II.

CHERBOURG, Aug. 27.—In connection with the search for Leonardo da Vinci's famous painting, "Mona Lisa," which disappeared last Monday from the Louvre in Paris, the port police here have reported to the Paris headquarters that on Wednesday last two persons, one of them small and dark, carrying two framed canvases separated by a wooden panel sailed aboard the Kaiser Wilhelm II. for New York.

The Cherbourg police think that possibly the panel was the "Mona Lisa." The New York police have been advised of these suspicions.

ROME, Aug. 27.—Visitors to the gallery at Villa Carlotta on Lake Coma have recently remarked the disappearance of a fine copy of the painting "Mona Lisa," executed during the lifetime of Leonardo da Vinci. No one knows what has become of it, and the newspapers suggest a connection between its disappearance and that of the original from the Louvre.

FINNS PLAN PROTEST.

To Move Against Changes Foreshadowing Country's Partition.

VIBORG, Finland, Aug. 27.—At a meeting to-day of the most prominent men of Viborg, presided over by Judge Svinhufvud, President of the Finnish Diet, it was decided to call a meeting of all the parishes of Viborg Province to protest against the cutting off of Kivinebe and Nykirka parishes from the province and adding them to the Province of St. Petersburg, the draft of a bill for such purpose having recently been approved by the Emperor for submission to the Duma.

There is great agitation throughout Finland over this proposed measure, which is regarded as the first step in the partition of the country.

VENEZUELA RECRUITS ARMY.

Inhabitants of Falcon Take to Mountains to Escape Impressment.

WILLEMSTAD, Island of Curacao, Aug. 27.—Reports received from Venezuela say that the Government is recruiting throughout the Republic and that all persons capable of bearing arms in the State of Falcon are taking to the mountains to avoid being pressed into army service.

There is much talk of Dr. Rivas Vasquez becoming a serious candidate for the Presidency. Gen. Simon Bello, ex-President Castro's brother-in-law, left here to-day for Trinidad.

O'BRIEN SOON FOR ROME.

Ambassador to Leave Tokio Aug. 31—Denies Neglecting American.

TOKIO, Aug. 27.—The American Ambassador, Thomas J. O'Brien, who was transferred recently from the Tokio post to that at Rome, will leave here on Aug. 31. He will be a passenger on the new steamer Shunyo Maru, which is making her maiden voyage.

Mr. O'Brien has taken occasion to deny as "shamefully unjust and untrue" a story printed in certain American newspapers which have arrived here. The story originated in San Francisco and quoted Mrs. Carl F. Drury of Ohio as condemning the American Ambassador for his failure to take proper steps for her protection in a controversy which she had with certain Japanese garment makers at Yokohama.

Mrs. Drury, according to the printed story, complained that she had been assaulted by a Japanese bailiff when he came to serve papers on her in a civil suit which resulted from her refusal to pay for garments which had been returned to the makers for alteration. Mrs. Drury is quoted as criticising the Ambassador severely and asserting that she could get no satisfaction in her appeal to the embassy.

Ambassador O'Brien said to-day that Mrs. Drury had called upon him only once and that he had treated her with the utmost politeness and consideration.

David Starr Jordan, President of Stanford University, has arrived here. He will remain in Tokio for a month and deliver a series of lectures on the subject of universal peace.

CABINET POST FOR UCHIDA.

Japan's Ambassador May Get It When Saionji Forms New Ministry.

TOKIO, Aug. 27.—It is expected that the Emperor will intrust to Marquis Saionji the formation of the new Cabinet, the personnel of which will be announced early in September. In offering his resignation as Premier, Count Katsura recommended the appointment of Saionji, who is considered the man most fit to carry out the policies inaugurated by the former.

It is understood that Lieut. Gen. Terauchi will not retain the portfolio of the War Ministry, but will continue as Resident General at Korea. Baron Uchida, Ambassador to the United States, is regarded as the most probable candidate for the Foreign Ministry, but Count Komura may continue in that office.

IRONWORKERS STRIKE.

Men Who Make Doors and Things Like That Quitting a Shop at a Time.

A mass meeting of the Architectural Iron Workers' Union, which is affiliated with the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, was held yesterday at the Labor Temple, Eighty-fourth Street, near Second Avenue, to prepare for the enforcement of demands affecting 2,500 men for a fifty-hour week, a new minimum wage scale, and recognition of the union.

The architectural iron workers are employed in making iron doors, stairways, ornamental work, fire escapes, railings, gates, and other iron work for fireproof buildings, but have nothing to do with the erection of the buildings.

The meeting decided to enforce the demands by striking in a shop or two at a time instead of throwing all the members idle by a general strike. The demands have been made on the Employing Architectural Iron Workers' Association and refused, and it was reported by Daniel Haverman, business agent of the union, that its members are on strike in the shops of the East Side Iron Works, 167 Park Avenue, and Liberman & Sanford, Fifty-seventh Street, near Eleventh Avenue. The men ask for a minimum scale of 26 cents an hour. The wages now they say range from $1.25 to $1.75 a day.

The Housesmiths and Bridgemen's Union, who erect the structural iron, will support the architectural iron workers in their strike.

SAILING DATES OF ALL SHIPS.

Record Kept by Government Bureau for Use of Business Men.

For the benefit of merchants and business men throughout the United States the Department of Commerce and Labor will issue a table monthly giving the dates of departures of all foreign steamships from all ports in this country and the name of the line to which they belong.

Several firms have issued lists from time to time, notably the express companies, but owing to the changes made by the steamship lines without notice for alteration, they were frequently in error regarding the exact date of sailing. In its circular, sent out with a specimen copy of the first table for the month of September, it is stated that this new work of the Bureau of Statistics at Washington is at the request of business men and Chambers of Commerce in various cities, and with the aid of the different steamship companies it is hoped that the dates will be fairly correct. Through some inadvertence there is no mention of any lines running to Southampton from New York, while Manchester, London, Liverpool, Hull, and Queenstown are all included in the list.

The lists will be mailed to any address on application to the Department of Commerce and Labor at Washington.

REGISTER ROPE CUT.

Girl Arrested with Five Young Men Says Conductor Asked Double Fares.

Charged with acting in a disorderly manner on a Second Avenue surface car near Thirty-ninth Street, Elizabeth Martin, a nineteen-year-old girl, of 411 East Twenty-ninth Street, and five young men were arrested at 2:30 o'clock yesterday morning by Policeman Holup of the East Thirty-fifth Street Station and taken before Magistrate Breen in the Night Court.

Conductor Charles Schienbaum, who made the complaint, said that the prisoners, with about thirty other young men and women, boarded his car at Fifty-ninth Street, and when he attempted to collect the fares some one cut the rope attached to the register. Miss Martin declared that the trouble had started because the conductor had tried to collect the fares twice. She was discharged, but the others were held in $300 bail for examination this afternoon.

They gave their names as Edward Martin, 411 East Twenty-ninth Street; John Smith, 426 Secod Avenue; Francis Brown, 679 Second Avenue; Richard Shoulders, 347 East Thirty-first Street, and James Butler, 421 East Twenty-ninth Street.

BOY GANGS BATTLE IN ST. MARY'S PARK

Rocks as Weapons and Ash Can Covers as Shields for the Besieging Army.

NEIGHBORS CALL POLICE

When Missiles Fall Outside the Battle Lines and Smash House Windows—Three Warriors Captured.

Three very small and very tearful youngsters, whose fright ill-accorded with the warlike shields, made from the metal tops of ash cans and bags of stones, to be used as weapons, which hung from their arms and shoulders, were led into the Alexander Avenue Station, in the Bronx, last night by four big policemen. They tried hard to appear at ease, but their misfortune overwhelmed them, for of all the members of the 149th Street gang and their hereditary rivals, the St. Ann's Avenue gang, they alone had fallen prisoners to the police.

The captives had been taken when the policemen, led by big Cornelius Crumb, had swept down on the battling gangs a few minutes before in St. Mary's Park. There the battle of stones had waged fiercely for more than half an hour, the 149th Streeters again and again braving the fire of the St. Ann's Avenue gang as they stormed the hill in the park, almost opposite Beekman Avenue, on which their rivals had taken a stand.

Gang fights have been frequent in the neighborhood for several weeks. There has been no ill-feeling in the matter. The question has been a purely ethical one of superiority, and since previous encounters had failed to settle this to the satisfaction of all concerned, yesterday was selected by the opposing leaders for a battle to a finish. Plans were formed days ahead, and as a result housekeepers in the vicinity of St. Mary's Park, which is bounded by St. Ann's and Robbins Avenue and 143d and 149th Streets, have missed the covers of their ash cans. From these the rival armies manufactured shields, and for weapons they chose plain stones, which could be picked up in the streets or vacant lots. The time was set for shortly before 5 o'clock, and an hour before this the warriors began to assemble.

By vantage of a majority among the early comers, the St. Ann's Avenue gang seized the hill and prepared to defend it against the assault of the 149th Streeters. Had they had their choice the latter would have taken the hill, but with the arrival of their leader they organized quickly for a combined assault on the citadel. On the rising ground were some forty-odd boys, and as many more, none more than 14 and some less than 10 years old, gathered at the foot.

It was raining a light drizzle, and the park was deserted. Not a policeman was in sight. At a signal the assault was started, and under cover of a first flurry of stones the raiders dashed for the hill. Then stones began to fly thick and fast. They bounded from the ash cover shields and occasionally from the bodies of the combatants, but in the heat of the fray the warriors failed to notice that a goodly number also whizzed into the street, where presently there began to sound the crash of broken windows and the tinkle of falling glass.

John O'Brien, who lives at 360 Beekman Avenue, saw a rock come through one of his windows, and he narrowly missed half a dozen more when he stuck his head out the door to see what was the matter. It angered Mr. O'Brien, and he telephoned to the police. It was then that Crumb led a sortie against the rival armies. For an instant besieged and besiegers thought of making common cause against the police, but some one quailed, and presently the armies were flying for their various homes at top speed.

Last to hold their ground were the captives, Morowitz Swanson of 535 East 149th Street and George Levine, 346 Beekman Avenue, each 13 years old, and ten-year-old Henry Pape of 320 Beekman Avenue, and presently they were dragged to the station. According to the police a dozen windows had been smashed in St. Ann's Avenue and half a dozen more in Beekman Avenue. Therefore they charged their prisoners with juvenile delinquency, and locked them up.

Before supper time, however, hostages in the shape of deeds for property had been given, and the warriors were led home by their respective parents.

GIRL SHOT IN TENEMENT.

Boy Says He Fired at Two Men Who Attacked Him.

A fifteen-year-old Italian girl, Rosa Patrino, was shot as she stood in the hall outside her door on the top floor of the five-story tenement, 313 East 112th Street, yesterday afternoon. She is probably mortally wounded. The shot was not fired at her, according to the police, who say that an Italian boy, Philip Ceppaglia, of 346 Pleasant Avenue, declared that he fired at two men who had attacked him.

The boy had gone to the roof of the tenement with a pistol. The noise of opening the roof door attracted the attention of two men, whom he did not know. They followed him to the roof, threw him down the stairs, and continued to quarrel with him on the top floor. The boy then fired.

The men whom he accused of maltreating him gave their names as Salvatore Mandrino and Louis Pitraglia. They live in the house. Ceppaglia was arrested.

According to Coroner Feinberg, who took the girl's ante-mortem statement at the hospital, there had been numerous burglaries in the neighborhood of late, and complaints had been made about boys going on the roof. The janitor of the house had given instructions that no boys be allowed to go on the roof without permission, and the tenants felt it was to their own advantage to enforce the order. This led, the Coroner said, to Mandrino and Fitraglia stopping the boy.

Crusade Against Stray Dogs Demanded

Fourteen children have been treated for dog bites since the first of the present month at St. John's Hospital in Long Island City, and about twice that number have been treated at their homes by family physicians. A demand is now made for the cleaning up of packs of stray dogs which roam the streets of old Long Island City in search of food and which find hiding places in tracts of vacant and wooded ground. Of the fourteen children treated at St. John's, all were under 12 years of age.

KILLED BY A FIST BLOW.

Skull Fractured as he Fell to Sidewalk After Being Struck.

Joseph Benny of 168 East 126th Street and Joseph Roeminger of 165 East 126th Street, got into a quarrel early yesterday morning in a saloon at Third Avenue and 128th Street. They left the place after a few minutes and walked toward Benny's house, and when they were opposite it, Roeminger struck Benny on the jaw, knocking him to the sidewalk. Then he hurried away. Benny was found later, unconscious, by Policeman Stein of the East 126th Street Station, and a call was sent to the Harlem Hospital. Dr. Ritter, who responded, said that Benny's skull had been fractured when he hit the sidewalk and that he had died instantly.

Detectives Brenner and Curtayne searched vainly for Roeminger for an hour, and then went to his house, where he lived with his aged mother. She asked what the charge against him was, and wen they told her she said she would find him within an hour. The detectives, doubting that she would keep her word, shadowed her as she hurried to a house at 123d Street and Lexington Avenue, but fifteen minutes later, just as they had determined to search the place, she reappeared with her son and they went directly to the East 126th Street Station House. Roeminger declared that he did not know Benny had been injured by the fall. He was remanded to the Tombs on a technical charge of homicide by Coroner Hollenstein in default of $1,000 bail.

NO PIG FOR DOTZLER PICNIC.

Raised a Pet for Fat Man's Race, but It Ran Away and Was Drowned.

The Dotzler Association, which follows the lead of Alderman Frank J. Dotzler, will probably have to go on its outing tomorrow without a pig. For years a pig has been the feature of the Dotzler picnics, for it was a pig for which the fat men of the association raced at Duer's Grove in Whitestone.

The pig reared for this year's race got up to 92 pounds, and yesterday morning it was brought in from Winfield, and a committee was appointed to carry it to a lumber yard at the foot of East Third Street, there to wait until the time for going aboard the steamer Isabel Tuesday morning. Bill Butler weighs 305 pounds, Jack Probst weighs 290 pounds, and Jacob Gossman falls short of that by only a stone. These three were granted the honor of carrying the crate, while Alderman Dotzler, far heavier than any of them, brought up the rear with the rest of the committee.

The procession was moving along Third Street, when, between Avenue C and Avenue D, the crate door swung open and out jumped the pig. Before any of the fat men had time to sit on it, it trotted toward the river, and it kept on trotting despite the walls of the Alderman and the hue and cry of his followers. Once in the chase Probst laid hands on the flitting porker, only to see it wiggle free again. At the brink of the East River the Alderman all but fell in at the final lunge, the last effort, which failed, for the pig, the pride and pet of the association, fell into the water. It did not come out again.

FUR CUTTER A SUICIDE.

Oscar Neilsen Turns on the Gas After Seeing a Picture Show.

Oscar Neilsen, a fur cutter, who had rooms on the third floor of the boarding house at 33 East Twenty-eighth Street, committed suicide early yesterday morning. His friend, Yungor Wadell, who lived on the second floor of the house, discovered the body.

On Saturday night the pair had been to a moving-picture show, and Wadell left Neilsen in good spirits about midnight. In the morning Wadell went out of the house, and happened to look up at his friend's window. He noticed that it was closed tightly, and that there was much linen and other wearing apparel hanging about the edges of the window.

He returned to the house, and went to the third floor. The house is an old structure, and the door to Neilsen's room had sprung out of plumb, leaving a small crack under one end at the sill. In this crack a fur overcoat was stuffed, the end protruding into the hall for a few inches.

Wadell called James Forbes, whose mother owns the house. They pushed open the door. On the bed lay Neilsen, gas flowing from the jet over the bed.

Wadell said Neilsen was not in financial difficulties, and he knew of no reason for him taking his life.

BIT HOST AT THE PARTY.

Guest Chewed His Cheek, but Doctor Patches It and the Fun Goes On.

Peter Licollick was 27 yesterday, and he gave a birthday party in his home, at 263 Stanton Street. Charles Tomas Raincheck was one of the guests. By early evening Charles Tomas was having such a good time that he began to think he was running the party, and Licollick objected. Charles Tomas threw his arms around his neck, and bit a piece out of Licollick's right cheek about as big as a quarter of a dollar.

When the excitement had subsided some one sent for Dr. Ridge of Bellevue Hospital, and Detective Rittenberg and Policeman Wittenberg of the Union Market Station came with him. Dr. Ridge took ten stitches in the wound, fastening the piece of check back.

Rittenberg and Wittenberg took Raincheck off to the station, and Licollick, who said that he felt as well as ever, except that it hurt him to chew, insisted that the party should go on.

ACCUSED OF SLAYING FATHER

Son Declares He Acted in Self-Defense in Family Row.

Charged with beating his father to death with an iron frying pan, Joseph Zuk, 23 years old, of 13 Humboldt Boulevard, Jamaica, is a prisoner in that place, accused of homicide. It was only when the family feared that the father, Albert Zuk, 50 years old, was about to die that they sent word to the police that during a family row the night before Joseph had attacked his father. When Detectives Killane and Connolly reached the house they found the father dead and the son getting ready to leave.

The family are Poles. In his talk to the detectives the young man said that his father attacked him the night before and that he acted in self-defense. While the elder Zuk was badly beaten about the head and face, the family did not think his injuries serious enough to call a doctor.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 27.—The Yankees came to town to-day, and trimmed the Browns to the tune of 4 to 2. Wallace's men were clearly outplayed, but the score, minus errors, should have been 2 to 0 in New York's favor, two of the Yankees' four runs clearly being unearned. "Red" Nelson was the goat. He pitched better ball than Warhop. The hits were evenly divided, each team getting eight. Nelson got poor support, and made costly breaks himself. Black made a costly muff in the first inning, which allowed two men to score, Nelson, by a wild pitch, allowing Daniels to steal second in the second inning. Then Daniels scored on Hemphill's hit.

New York's fourth run was scored in the eighth inning. Nelson started the trouble by passing Hartzell, who took second on a balk and scored on Caldwell's single. The Yankees made the Browns work hard for their two tallies. The box score shows that New York made twice as many errors as the Browns, but New York always managed to back up Warhop.

Brilliant outfielding by Daniels prevented St. Louis from scoring in the second. With one man gone, Wallace hit to right. Krichell followed with a fearful drive to left field fence. Daniels pulled it off the boards. He followed this up by capturing a foul off Nelson's bat.

In the fifth, a smashing double play crushed St. Louis hopes. Nelson worked Warhop for a base on balls with one out. Shotton followed with a line smash that took Warhop off his feet. The New York pitcher had no chance to duck, dodge, or evade the ball. It went sailing at him amidships. All he could do was stick out his glove and trust to luck. The ball stuck there, and it was comparatively easy for Mr. Warhop to swing around and double up Nelson off first base.

Walsh Pitches No Hit Game.

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—Ed. Walsh pitched the first no-hit, no-run game of his career to-day against Boston. It was the second game of this kind this season in the American League. Chicago won, 5 to 0. Only one of the visitors reached first base, Engle getting a base on balls. The locals fielded well behind Walsh, who struck out eight batsmen. Wood of Boston is the only other man who has pitched a hitless and runless game in this league this season. The locals bunched hits off Collins, and with the assistance of an error and a wild pitch scored five runs. Early in the game Henriksen and Speaker collided when running for Tannehill's long fly. Speaker retired from the game and Henriksen was taken to a hospital suffering severe pains in the shoulders, ribs, and legs. The score:

Detroit Downs the Athletics.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 27.—Before the second largest local crowd in its history, and in one of the greatest battles of the year, Detroit to-day downed Philadelphia, 4 to 3, in the opening contest of the three-game series. Summers had the edge of the pitching duel with Bender, but he also received the better support. Two hits, a pass to Cobb and Delehanty's sacrifice fly gave Detroit two runs in the first. In the third Bush walked, advanced to third on Cobb's single, and scored during a double play which retired Cobb and Crawford. Barry's double, with two out gave the Athletics two in the fourth, and they tied the score in the next inning on Lord's double and Delehanty's error. Detroit won the game in the sixth, when Delehanty singled, advanced on an infield out and wild pitch, and came home on an infield out. A foul tip from Murphy's bat in the sixth broke one of Schmidt's fingers and Stanage replaced him. The score:

HUCKLEBERRIES' POW-WOW.

Adjunct Tribe of Travers Island Band Hold Festivities on Island Home.

The Huckleberry Indians, an adjunct tribe from Travers Island, denizens of the Summer home of the New York Athletic Club, held their midsummer pow-wow yesterday afternoon on the organization reservation, at Huckleberry Island, in the Sound, with an attendance of about 150 of the braves of the association. This was supplemented by forty of the Flubdubs, a neighboring band from Larchmont.

As in times gone by, the island yesterday was an unsafe place for those who lacked the necessary identification slip. The torture tepee awaited those who ventured on forbidden ground, and, following the custom of previous functions, many scalps of interlopers were added to those already hung at the entrance, for more than a dozen would-be braves attempted to make their way to the reservation without the proper recommendations.

The sign over the entrance, "Abandon hope all ye who enter here," was lived up to to the letter of the law, with the result that the interlopers found that their "butting in" found a punishment fitting the crime. When Brave Deeley, the Curator of the Huckleberrys, got through with the interlopers and showed them the various snakes in possession of the band new converts were found and new Indians made.

After being put in touch with the many mysteries of the island the new braves were put through the stunts, which are part of the curriculum, and the Indians found their numbers increased by an apparently unwilling list of converts.

The disagreeable weather failed to put a damper on the materialization stuff, and everything went off with the same eclat as on previous occasions. Supplementary proceedings were held at the Travers Island clubhouse, and altogether it was voted a gala day.

BEECHHURST Y. C. SERIES.

Whitestone Organization Holds Successful Races Over Triangular Course.

The annual regatta of the Beechhurst Yacht Club of Whitestone, L. I., was held yesterday afternoon. The races were sailed over a triangular course of five miles, on Long Island Sound, opposite the clubhouse. There were nine classes, in which twenty-four boats were entered.

The spacious piazzas, lawns, and pier were all crowded with enthusiastic spectators, representing many Long Island yacht clubs. A string orchestra furnished music for the occasion, and the visiting yachtsmen were entertained by the club.

An interesting feature of the occasion was the contest between the Mohican and the Ohio, two of the fastest steam launches of the Naval Reserve. The trophies were handsome silver cups in various elaborate designs. Among the prominent yachtsmen who contributed to the success of the occasion were Vice Commodore Wilson, Atlantic Yacht Club; Lieut. Dickson, 2d, N. M. N. Y.; Commander G. G. Fry, N. R.; G. A. Corry, M. B. Y. C., and Mr. Brugeres, A. Y. C.

The results were as follows:

Woman Deaf Mute Hit by Car.

Miss Susan N. Brady, 40 years old, of 20 Fowler Street, Flushing, a deaf mute, was hit by a trolley car of the New York & Queens County Railroad at the Main and [illegible] Streets crossing, Flushing, yesterday morning, and her skull was fractured.

GIRLS SWIM FROM BATTERY TO ISLAND

Elaine Golding of Bath Beach Finishes in 6 Hours and 1 Minute.

Under the most trying conditions that could have possibly confronted a competitor, Miss Elaine Golding of Bath Beach and Miss Lillian Howard of Brooklyn accomplished a remarkable feat when they both swam from the Battery to Steeplechase Park, Coney Island, yesterday. Three women started in the event, but the third, Mrs. Arthur G. Bouton of New Dorp, S. I., was seized with a cramp off Fort Lafayette and was compelled to retire.

The three women were started on their long journey at 10:36 A. M., and Miss Golding, the first of the two to finish, reached her goal at 4:37, being in the water 6 hours and 1 minute. Miss Howard, who was hindered at the start and lost considerable ground by the interference of the police boat Patrol, finished at 5:18, being 6 hours and 35 minutes in the water. Long before the women were lined up for the start it began to rain in torrents, and it appeared to many as an utter impossibility to attempt the swim. The swimmers, however, were persistent in their desire to get under way.

At the time of the start, 10 o'clock, the docks and every point of vantage along the water front had been sought by the eager crowd which was on hand to witness the event. It was the first attempt at long-distance swimming for the victor, and after finishing the course at Steeplechase Park she said, now that she has demonstrated her ability at this as well as short distances, she would rest contented on her laurels. All three women got off on even terms, leaving the stern of the Patrol and entering the water on a straight line. Miss Golding and Mrs. Bouton were first to show their heads above the surface, and with a strong overhand stroke set out to the middle of the stream.

Each contestant was accompanied by a launch in which were friends, relatives, and a group of photographers and moving picture men. Three small rowboats, with a coach and one man at the oars, also went along with the contestants. They swam toward Governors Island, and were compelled to combat a strong incoming tide. After striking the island they came in close to the high wall which surrounds the place, and benefited by the small current. Miss Howard, in taking a somewhat different course at the start, was hindered by the turning of the Patrol, and the other two contestants drew away from her early in the race.

Miss Golding passed Pier 29, Brooklyn, at 11:08, being about 100 yards ahead of Mrs. Bouton. Back in the rear about a full half mile Miss Howard was struggling and trying to make up the lost ground. The upper end of Governors Island was reached by the Bath Beach contestant at 11:10, and after using the strong overhand stroke from the start, she changed over here to the breast stroke. While she was going along under this stroke, Mrs. Bouton steadily gained on Miss Golding, and at one time it was thought that she would overtake her. Miss Howard at this time was still a half mile in the ruck and unable to gain.

The better part of the first two hours of the swim, which was confined to the bay, forced the swimmers to oppose the heavy tide, and after resuming the overhand stroke Miss Golding again drew away from Mrs. Bouton, and for the remainder of the swim led her by almost a half mile. At 12:55 Miss Golding was seen just off Thirty-ninth Street, Brooklyn, and, being spoken to for the first time by her mother, who, in company with Mr. Golding, was aboard the officials' boat, said, "The water is fine." Mrs. Bouton at this stage was fully 200 yards in the rear. The two leaders were swimming in midstream, and by some strategy on the part of the coach guiding Miss Howard they sent her over to the Brooklyn shore as the Narrows were reached.

The change of course benefited the tail-ender, and she soon began for the first time during the voyage to pick up on Miss Golding and Mrs. Bouton, who entered the Narrows at 1:45. From the Narrows the tide changed in favor of the contestants, and after their hard struggling they came into a new stretch of water which favored their stroke. Fort Hamilton was passed by Miss Golding at 2:20, and the stiff wind sweeping in from the sea was turning the water into whitecaps which broke in her face almost every second and impeded her progress to a great extent. The same applied to Mrs. Bouton, who complained of trouble with her eyes, which she often rubbed with either hand in changing her stroke. She said that the salt water was itching her eyes and made her work very difficult.

The struggle between Fort Hamilton and Norton's Point, which opens out into the sea, was the hardest of the journey. After once reaching the point the end was in sight, and Miss Golding passed around the place at 3:30. Mrs. Bouton was taken with a cramp off Bath Beach and had to abandon the journey, returning to Staten Island in the launch which accompanied her.

It was thought that Miss Howard had also given up when Miss Golding rounded the point, as she was not in sight and all attention was turned to the leader. The waters at this point were very rough, and the whitecaps broke over Miss Golding and Miss Howard, at times covering them entirely from view. Miss Golding stuck to her task with the pier in sight, and journeyed the remainder of the course alone. When about 300 yards from the finish the crowd of bathers on the beach sighted Miss Golding, and a loud bomb was fired. The crowd from the park, on hearing the news, rushed to the water's edge, and when she was brought up to the beach after finishing at the pier, it crowded around and made a great demonstration.

As she touched land for the first time after leaving the Manhatan starting point two more bombs were exploded, and the Steeplechase Band, in waiting for the victor, began to play.

Miss Golding then went to her dressing room, where she was first given a cup of hot beef broth, and also two bricks of ice cream. Miss Howard finished a few minutes later, and received a like demonstration at the finish. It was her first long-distance swim, and she weathered the storm with great courage.

Miss Golding is considered to be one of the greatest female swimmers in the world. She is in her twentieth year, and weighs about 190 pounds. She began to swim at the age of three years, and since has competed in numerous events at distances ranging up to five miles. In winning the event yesterday she will be presented a handsome silver loving cup, donated by George C. Tilyou of Steeplechase Park, and Miss Howard will receive a silver medal.

Special Yacht Race Postponed.

It was the intention of the Yacht Racing Association of Jamaica Bay to have sailed its first race of the special series for cups offered by the Canarsie Yacht Club off Rockaway Point yesterday. As the day was a miserable one, with rain falling steadily at the starting hour, only two sloops and two motor boats reported to the committee. The wind was east, and as the yachts had to buck an ebb tide that was running like a mill race, the sail craft found great difficulty in making a start.

The boats were G. Browne's Sindbad and Elvira, the property of J. R. Anderson, Jr. The yachts had to cover the course in three hours. Not one was able to finish within the time limit, so the Regatta Committee, made up of Dr. L. Heimer, Bay View Yacht Club; Martin L. Plage, Canarsie Yacht Club, and Vice Commodore Thomas King, decided to call off the contest and give each boat that started 1 point on the series prize. The power craft were Argo, the property of E. H. Watson, and Myrtle, which belongs to J. H. Paterson. The committee also decided to postpone the race on Sept. 3 until Sept. 10. It was done, as many of the yachtsmen announced that they were anxious to go cruising over Labor Day.

Who Is This Phenom?

A telegram from Norfolk, Va., says: In the struggle to land the National League pennant, it now seems probable that Manager McGraw of the New York Giants will secure the assistance of Dave Robertson, the giant southpaw college twirler, for whom a half dozen big league clubs have offered neat sums. Robertson, according to reliable reports here, has agreed for an additional bonus to join the Giants at once. Robertson proved a wonder in college circles in the Spring, winning every game he pitched. In May he joined the Elizabeth City team in a semi-professional league, winning twenty-six out of twenty-seven games pitched, and in addition led the league in batting. Probably a score of scouts have looked him over and unanimously agree that [illegible]

FREDRICKSON WINS.

Only One Life Saver Finishes Long Swim to Coney Island.

Bucking a strong northeast wind which was kicking up a heavy sea, Raymond Fredrickson of Brooklyn finished strong in the swim of the United States Volunteer Life-Saving Corps yesterday afternoon from the Battery to Coney Island. Out of thirteen starters in the race and one man from the River Squad, Fredrickson was the only one to finish the gruelling fifteen-mile swim. F. Murphy of Ridgefield Park, N. J., gave up about a mile short of the distance, stopping a half mile from Norton's Point. Fredrickson was in the water 6 hours 2 minutes and 30 seconds. The start was made at 11:07½, and the finish caught at 5:10.

With one exception, all of the twelve men who dropped out were forced to do so on account of what is known among salt-water swimmers as "salt-water blinders." The salt water, getting into the eyes of the swimmers, literally blinded them, and in one instance a swimmer was found headed back to the Battery instead of to Coney Island. He was picked up completely blinded by the water, and remained so for about half an hour after coming out. W. P. Shott of Fort Washington Point was suffering from cramps when he was picked up by the police boat Patrol. He and Fredrickson were the only ones who did not have trouble with their eyes.

One-half hour after the girls got away the fourteen men who were to attempt the swim were started by Commodore Charles Snyder. The swim was restricted to fifteen, of which the following thirteen swam: L. Moser, Paterson, N. J.; W. J. Bronner, Battery Division; D. Ferris, Sea Gate Division; C. Benedict, Norton's Point; J. Conklin, Port Morris Division; O. Hurst, South Beach Division; W. William, Coney Island; F. J. McAneny, Sheepshead Bay; F. Murphy, Ridgefield Park; W. P. Shott, Fort Washington Point; R. Fredrickson, Coney Island; Capt. J. F. Breslin, Bay Ridge, and W. J. Halin, East River. E. Spinner of the River Squad was not entered in the race, but he started with the rest.

Shott was the first to take the lead, and, rounding South Ferry, headed the swimmers for Buttermilk Channel, on the east side of Governors Island. Ferris was but fifty yards behind him. The other life savers followed, accompanied by their rowboats, in which were an oarsman and a trainer. The last man when Shott was abreast of Governors Island was just about heading over from South Ferry.

Just as the leading swimmers were leaving Governors Island, and were headed off toward Hoffman Island, Commodore W. E. Longfellow, who was managing the swim from his auxiliary, discerned some distance off a swimmer alone. He immediately ordered the boat to put over to the man, and when they came near enough they saw that the swimmer, Halin, was in apparent distress, swimming a rolling stroke that made him appear to be all in, and he was headed in just the opposite direction from that which he should be taking. Without any hesitation Commodore Longfellow, although he was all dressed, jumped overboard, but when he reached the swimmer's side Halin refused to quit, and turned in the right direction. His rowboat, which was several hundred yards off, was warned to keep close, and a few minutes later Halin quit. He was completely exhausted, and had to be put ashore at one of the life saving stations.

The police boat, Patrol, helped out in keeping watch of the swimmers, and they, too, came in for some excitement. In the boat accompanying Shott were two reporters, besides an oarsman and two trainers. The rain and the heaving sea combined apparently to swamp the boat, and when they reached a point opposite Hoffman Island Shott claims he had to quit swimming, so as to allow the Patrol to pick up the badly scared men in the boat, which was very low in the water. As a matter of fact, Shott had an attack of cramps, which hastened the Patrol in picking up all six men.

EAST AGAINST THE WEST.

Californians Play at Newport To-day for Place in Tennis Finals.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 27.—Maurice E. McLoughlin and Thomas C. Bundy, the Californian members of the international team, again stand as the rivals of two of the expert lawn tennis players of the East, Gustave F. Touchard and Beals C. Wright, the latter a former National champion, who is strenuously endeavoring to regain his lost laurels, as the thirty-first allcomers' National championship tournament nears its end on the courts of the Casino. For the places in the final, which will be decided to-morrow morning, Touchard will oppose McLoughlin, while Bundy will hold the court against Wright.

So closely have the students of form figured the ratings and performances of the men that the betting, always considerable on the eve of the finals, has become an even proposition. The followers of Touchard are taking all of the McLoughlin wagers offered. Wright has not been tested in this tournament, with the single exception of yesterday, when the poor judgment displayed by Nathaniel W. Niles made it possible for him to win, and so Bundy is regarded as the stronger of the two men when they meet for the final. It was Bundy who nipped Wright's hopes a year ago, when he defeated him in the final of the allcomers by the score 6—3, 6—3, 6—8, 10—8.

Another feature of the closing matches which is attracting considerable attention is the fact that it will determine who are to compete in the singles of the international ties against the British Isles team on the courts of the West Side Tennis Club at New York next week. The defeat of Raymond D. Little by the boy Walter M. Washburn is believed to have eliminated him. If McLoughlin defeats Touchard he will probably get the place beside Larned, and it will insure his going to Australia. Then if Bundy comes through as the challenger he will have the honor, and so the closing competitions are fraught with important results which will put the men on their mettle.

Paterson Gets Bowling Tournament.

Paterson, N. J., has been awarded the 1912 tournament of the National Bowling Association, it was announced last night. Action was taken at a meeting of the Board of Governors of the association held in this city Saturday night. A delegation from Washington, D. C., was present and asked that the tournament be held there, but after the Paterson delegation had presented its arguments the board unanimously selected the New Jersey City. No definite date has been fixed for the tournament, but it will probably be held some time between Jan. 15 and March 1. More than 800 teams from various parts of the country are expected to compete. Mayor McBride headed the Paterson delegation in pleading that the tournament be held in that city. Washington was represented by Thomas Grant, Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and G. G. Hamner, representative of the City Bowling Association of Washington.

Langford and Jeannette Matched.

Sam Langford and Joe Jeannette, the two negro heavyweights, who are accorded ranks next to Champion Jack Johnson in the pugilistic scale, have been matched for a ten-round bout before the Madison Square Athletic Club, at Madison Square Garden, on Tuesday, Sept. 5. The deal was closed by Harry Pollok, representing the club, and Joe Woodman and Dan McKetrick, managers of Langford and Jeannette respectively. According to a notice sent out by the club yesterday it was necessary to hang up a purse of $10,000 to secure the bout, as promoters in France and Australia were ready to put up a purse of this size. Langford and Jeannette have already figured in six bouts. In 1905 Jeannette won in eight rounds, and the following year Langford won in fifteen rounds at Chelsea. In 1907 they went twelve rounds to a draw in Lawrence, and next year [illegible]

LEGALIZED BOUTS BEGIN THIS WEEK

Wells-Brown Contest at Madison Square Garden the Headliner—Strong Cards at Other Clubs.

The coming week looms up as the most important in the affairs of pugilism that New York has experienced in eleven years—since the repeal of the old Horton law, which practically put an end to public bouts in New York. After eight years with the lid down so tight that bouts were out of the question, save for an occasional stag of a private nature, with mediocre boxers as entertainers, and three years of boxing under the club membership system, New York again returns to the old system of legalized bouts, open to the public. The principal difference between the new and old order of things is that bouts are restricted to ten rounds instead of twenty-five and no decisions will be rendered.

Practically all the clubs which have been operating under the membership rule will continue to stage bouts according to the regulations of the Boxing Commission. The Fairmont, Twentieth Century, and Madison Square Athletic Clubs have already furnished the necessary bond and received their licenses from the Boxing Commission. The National Sporting Club has put up the required bond and expects to receive its license before Thursday, on which date Manager O'Rourke expects to stage his first bout under the Frawley law. The Sharkey, Olympic, Brown's Gymnasium, and Long Acre Clubs, the only other clubs recently in operation on this side of the Bridge, have announced their intention of taking out licenses, but up to the present time the new commission has not received their applications. In Brooklyn an organization is being perfected which plans to stage high-class bouts, such as the Whirlwind A. C. put on last Winter in the Clermont Avenue Rink until that building was closed by the Fire Commissioner.

The new law will go into effect on Tuesday, and several high-class bouts have already been scheduled for the first few weeks. The first contest under the provisions of the Frawley bill will be held on Tuesday night at the Fairmont A. C., with Joe Jeannette and "Porky" Flynn as the headliners, and during the week at least three bouts of considerable importance will be staged. Two heavyweight bouts of National importance will be put on during the second and third weeks under the new régime, one introducing Sam Langford versus Joe Jeannette and the other bringing together Carl Morris and Jim Flynn, and many matches of equal strength are in the works. In fact, the various clubs are indulging in a lively scramble to sign up the champions and near champions of the various classes.

The big event on this week's pugilistic calendar will be the ten-round bout between Matt Wells, the English lightweight champion, and Knockout Brown, which will take place at Madison Square Garden Wednesday night under the auspices of the newly formed Madison Square Athletic Club. The pair will make 133 pounds at 4 o'clock, this feature being in Brown's favor, as Wells's best weight is a bit higher. Brown can easily make the weight, but there seems to be a question whether Wells can do so and remain strong. The Englishman has made a strong impression in his bouts since coming here, and his chances of winning are regarded as better than Brown's in spite of the latter's work against the champion, Ad Wolgast, in two bouts last Spring. Wells has removed all doubts about his cleverness, and he has the strength which should carry him safely over the ten-round route against the most rugged of lightweights. He has been training hard at Rye Beach, his partners employing the awkward right-hand style of Brown so that this may prove no handicap Wednesday night. Brown is doing his training at Savin Rock, and as he is always in shape, there is no question raised as to his condition. It is generally expected that this bout will draw the greatest crowd of fistic lovers since the Garden was in use in the days of the Horton law.

The new régime will be ushered in by Jeannette and Flynn at the Fairmont Athletic Club Tuesday night. The Boston heavyweight recently appeared here in a bout against Jim Barry, and his showing was a big surprise to local fistic enthusiasts. He has improved wonderfully of late under the tutelage of Sam Langford, who has taught him many of the inside points of the game, and he is expected to give the Hoboken negro a hard battle. The latter, who ranks in the Big Four of pugilism, has had sufficient work recently to be in fine trim for the bout, and he hopes to atone for his recent failure to get better than a draw in ten rounds with Tony Ross. A victory by Flynn would undoubtedly result in the cancellation of Jeannette's scheduled bout with Langford and mean the substitution of Flynn. With so much depending on the outcome both men can be expected to show their best.

Lightweights will hold the centre of attraction Thursday night at the National Sporting Club, the contestants in the main bout being Tommy Murphy and Pal Moore. This bout is a return affair for Moore, who was decisively outpointed by Murphy in their last contest at the Madison A. C. last Winter. Moore at that time put up the poorest exhibition he has ever shown in New York, and was forced to take second honors practically all the way. Both boys have enjoyed a long rest since their last encounters in the roped arena, and the reports from the rival camps are that both are in tip-top condition. Pal regards the bout as a stepping stone to another clash with Knockout Brown, and Murphy is out to regain the prestige which he has lately lost in the lightweight ranks.

The Twentieth Century A. C. will put on the last bout under the club membership system to-night at the St. Nicholas Rink, when George Knockout Brown, the Greek middleweight of Chicago, faces Larry English of Albany. Willie Lewis was originally scheduled as Brown's opponent, but called off the match, and English was substituted. The substitute bout is not regarded as strong as the original match. English has the advantage in height, weight, and reach, but Brown is more aggressive, and has a much better defense. On Friday night the Twentieth Century A. C. plans to put on another show with a pair of ten-round bouts between little fellows as the feature.

None of the other local clubs has announced a show for this week.

New York Caledonian Games.

Billy Queal, thrice conqueror of the famous Alfie Shrubb, up to this year the greatest distance runner the world has ever known, will be seen in action at the annual games of the New York Caledonian Club, Labor Day, in Washington Park, Grand Street, between Newtown and Maspeth, L. I. Queal will take part in all the events of one mile and over, and anticipates duplicating the performance of Shrubb made several years ago at these sports, when he captured the one mile, three mile, and five mile races in the same afternoon.

Queal is at the present time as great a runner as Shrubb was at his best, and with the greatest turn of speed within the ability of a man capable of journeying fifteen miles with the best in the world. Queal, who is but 23 years of age, is a perfect running machine. In competition for but two years, he has come along with great strides during the past year, during which time he has defeated, at a variety of distances, besides Shrubb, such men as Longboat, Holmer, Ljungstrom, Swanberg, St. Yves, and men of like calibre.

BOYS FALL OFF ROOFS.

Saved from Instant Death by Clotheslines and May Recover.

Two small boys fell off roofs on the lower east side yesterday and because they struck clotheslines each probably will recover.

Six-year-old Israel Fostlich, who lives on the top floor of the five-story tenement at 54 Cannon Street, slipped up on to the roof late in the afternoon and started walking back and forth the width of the building balanced on the very outermost edge of the coping which hangs over the yard. David Mandel, who lives in the house, saw him, and called to the boy to get back. The lad looked down at Mandel, who was standing in the yard, but made no move to obey him. Then suddenly he lost his balance and toppled off the roof. He flung out his hands as he fell and caught the coping.

Mandel shouted to him to hold on, and then he started up through the house as fast as he could run. As he reached the roof, however, the boy lost his grip and plunged down into the yard. Several clotheslines became wrapped around his body and broke his fall. Dr. Brunett, who came from Gouverneur Hospital, said his left leg was broken, and he might have a fractured skull.

Ten-year-old Milton Erlich, who lives at 134 Avenue D, was the other youngster to tumble. He was playing tag with other boys on the roof of the five-story tenement at 307 East Ninth Street, when he sipped and pitched over the roof's edge. He landed in the rear yard to the terror of every one who saw him fall. Dr. Ridge, from Bellevue Hospital, found that the boy probably had a fractured skull and hurried him to the hospital.

SUBWAY PROGRESS SLOW.

Hard Rock and Tangles of Pipes and Wires Delay Excavation.

Work upon the new Lexington Avenue subway at Sixty-second Street and Lexington Avenue, is progressing very slowly, on account of numerous difficulties encountered in excavating. Four holes have been dug on each side of the street. A mass of hard rock was encountered about four feet beneath the surface. A worse difficulty than this, however, is a mass of pipes and intersecting wires and a large brick well, in which the pipes and wires meet in the exact centre of the deepest excavation. Surrounding this well is a mass of rock, in which only one drill is being used. The engineers expect to begin blasting this week. They will use very light blasts on account of the gas main, situated about five feet from the blasting hole.

The rain which fell Saturday night and yesterday morning nearly filled every hole that had been dug except the main one.

HELPED TO STOP RUNAWAY.

Policeman Shelley's Mount Did His Part in a Central Park Chase.

Mounted Policeman Shelley, attached to the Arsenal Station in Central Park, last night paced his horse alongside a runaway until he could catch hold of its bridle and, with the help of his own trained animal, bring it to a stop. Joseph Levine, 25 years old, of 1,516 Park Avenue, was the driver of the runaway, which was harnessed to a light vehicle.

On the East Drive, opposite Eighty-ninth Street, the horse took fright at a passing automobile and dashed south. At the junction of the East and West Drives, it turned into the West Drive, and at Eighty-fourth Street Levine, who had been vainly tugging on his lines, was thrown out. He was badly shaken up, and received several bruises, but refused medical attention.

NEWS OF THE GOLFERS.

Professional golfers competed in an interesting four-ball match over the links of the Inwood Country Club yesterday. The affair consisted of thirty-six holes, and when it was over J. J. McDermott of Atlantic City, the National open champion, and Isaac Mackie of Fox Hills were returned winners by a 5 and 4 margin at the expense of Jack Hobens of Englewood and Tom Anderson, Jr., of the home club.

Because of the weather the golfers did not get started until late, so that practically the entire thirty-six holes were played in the afternoon. Putting in deadly fashion throughout both rounds, Mackie proved the star of the occasion, getting scores of 74 and 73. He rarely missed a put less than eight feet. McDermott was not at his best, while Anderson and Hobens failed to fit well. Mackie and McDermott stood 4 up at the end of the first eighteen holes.

Even before Harold H. Hilton has set foot on these shores preparations are making that will serve to place the redoubtable Briton in trim for the National amateur golf championship tournament to be held at Apawamis Sept. 11 to 16. It was learned last night that a four-ball match had already been fixed up for next Sunday over the links at Rye. Great Britain's title-holder will have Fred Herreshoff for a partner against Walter J. Travis and Oswald Kirkby. Hilton is due to reach this port to-morrow, and it is expected that he will have a round at Apawamis prior to Sunday. Regarding his chances of winning the American title there are those willing to predict that he will not find his task an easy one. In fact, J. G. Anderson, the Massachusetts golfer, who played in the last championship on the other side, has been quoted as saying that if Hilton wins it will only be after a harder struggle than that which gained him his present crown.

Robert C. Watson, Secretary of the United States Golf Association, has issued another warning to the amateurs intending to take part in the National tournament. He again calls attention to the fact that entries close with him at his office, 51 East Forty-fourth Street, on Monday, Sept. 4. While an unusually large field is certain to be on hand, it is likewise possible that several of the best of the Western players will be unable to start.

Officers of the Western Golf Association announced recently that it was doubtful if H. Chandler Egan, a former National champion; Mason Phelps, present Western title-holder, or Paul Hunter would be able to attend. In the event of this star trio remaining away Chicago's hand in the championship struggle will be considerably weakened.

The leading amateurs in the Philadelphia and Pittsburgh districts will muster on the links of the Whitemarsh Valley Country Club this week for the third annual championship tournament of the Pennsylvania Golf Association. They will tee up on Wednesday and continue to the week's end. Among those who have entered are W. C. Fownes, Jr., of Oakmont, the National champion; E. M. Byers of Allegheny, George Ormiston of Oakmont, H. B. McFarland of Huntingdon Valley, Howard W. Perrin, and A. W. Tillinghast, both of the Philadelphia Cricket Club. There will be a thirty-six-hole medal play qualifying round on Wednesday, when the top thirty-two contestants will earn the right to continue on at match play. So as to give all a chance, cups have been offered for the defeated sixteen of the championship, a third sixteen, and beaten eights in these various sets.

No less than three State amateur championship tournaments will be held in New England this week. They are the Massachusetts, at the Essex County Club; the Rhode Island, at the Agawam Hunt and Metacomet Clubs, the two nine-hole courses being thrown into one for the occasion, and the New Hampshire, at Rochester, N. H. The Massachusetts meeting will attract the best field that has been seen at Manchester in a long while. F. W. Whittemore and J. G. Anderson, two of the favorites, will also be seen at Apawamis two weeks hence.

The championship tournament of the Women's Western Golf Association will be held over the links of the Midlothian Country Club, near Chicago, this week. Mrs. H. L. Pound won it last year. This golfer, along with Miss Myra Helmer, Miss Vida Llewellyn, and Miss Ines Clark, to say nothing of a number of others has been playing well in tournaments recently. It is expected that the cream of the Western talent will come on in October for the women's National tournament at Baltusrol.

RECIPROCITY BREEDS RECIPROCITY

The news that reciprocity between the United States and Canada is winning all along the line has reached the West Indies and aroused ambition for a like happy experience. They are very keen about it, for they have noticed the prosperity of Cuba and Porto Rico under the stimulus of trade with the United States and would be glad to duplicate it. Their hearts are with England, their motherland; their markets naturally are with us, but their trade relations are with Canada. All this would be changed if we gave them such a market for sugar as Canada has provided by tariff concessions.

If we could see our way to untax West Indian sugar we would do more than provide ourselves with cheaper sweetening. Where the West Indians do their selling they do their buying, and we could secure an outlet for our manufactures by buying to better advantage what the islands sell. This leaves out of consideration politics of an interesting sort. Annexation of the Antilles to the motherland is an impossibility, but annexation to Canada is an alternative under consideration. There is no such thing as loyalty of the West Indies to Canada. As between Canada and the United States interest might well determine the choice, and that lies in our control. The by-product of considering rationally the self-interest of the West Indians and ourselves might be as well worth estimating as the profits of cheaper sugar and better markets for our products at one and the same time.

THE VELOCITY OF DIVORCE.

The Commissioners on Uniform State Laws have been sitting in Boston to devise a marriage act for all the States. Three Representatives, Norris of Nebraska, Sheppard of Texas, and Howard of Georgia, have been working upon a proposal to invite the Governors and Attorneys General of the States to a conference with the President upon this subject. The thirty-seven Governors who will meet in Spring Lake, N. J., next month, may discuss the problem. Meanwhile the report of the Director of the Census upon the "threefold velocity" of divorce, made two years ago upon the basis of an investigation covering a score of years, is borne out by more recent data.

The Census Bureau estimated that, despite the obstructive efforts of the Church and of lawmakers, the ratio of divorces to marriages had increased from 1 to 34 in 1870 to 1 to 12 in 1907. In a letter to The Times of Jan. 24, 1909, Prof. Walter F. Willcox estimated the ratio then obtaining as 1 divorce to 10 marriages. Statistics compiled in Kansas City early this year showed a ratio of 1 divorce suit to every 4 marriage licenses granted in that city; the State of Washington granted during 1910 in its most populous county 1 divorce to every 6 marriages, and Secretary of State Hayward of Iowa published figures for the State revealing 1 matrimonial action in court to every 7 marriages.

Can anything be done legally to abate the threefold and constantly accelerating velocity of divorce in the United States? We know that more than four-fifths of the actions for divorce are not contested by the defendant, that they are brought by mutual consent, and this proportion is constant, irrespective of restrictions upon the number of causes allowed for divorce in a particular State. In nearly 4 out of 5 cases the divorce was obtained in the State where the marriage was performed, and the fifth case corresponded with the case of every fifth person who removes for any of a multitude of reasons from his native State. The "divorce colonies" in the West had little influence in swelling the 820,000 divorces granted during the score of years.

Authorities like Prof. Elliott Howard, Dr. Samuel W. Dike, Rabbi Krauskopf, Prof. E. A. Ross, and Walter G. Smith are agreed that marriages are not quickly dissolved, as divorces are granted after an average [illegible] in wedlock of ten years; that [illegible] do not obtain divorces in order to marry, or marry in order to be divorced. They are pretty nearly agreed [illegible] divorce is but a symptom of [illegible] courts is invoked. Nearly half the decrees are for desertion, and one-fifth of them, directly or indirectly, are for intemperance, usually of the husband. For such causes Prof. Howard believes that the remedy does not lie so much in the further restriction of divorce as in "a rational system of social and sex education" that will restrict marriage to those who are fit for marriage.

The fashioning of new divorce laws seems, therefore, to be of relatively small importance. Conflicting State laws have a very narrow margin, indeed, of evil influence. Notwithstanding their spectacular qualities and scandalous nature, there are few really evasive and collusive divorces, few "easy" decrees granted by the courts. The matrimonial problem is primarily not one of law, but of morals and conduct and character, falling within the field of religion rather than that of law. But it has acquired year by year an astonishing social significance, and it presses for solution.

PANIC AND FEW EXITS.

Twenty-six persons were trampled to death in Canonsburg, Penn., and many others so badly crushed and maimed that they either cannot live or will be crippled for life, because the electric fuse of a moving-picture machine blew out, and frightened a few who communicated their fright to others. There was no real cause for alarm, there was no fire, only a panic. These people were killed and injured, killed and injured each other, in fact, because they were panic-stricken. Panic is likely to occur anywhere when people are crowded together.

Yet this panic would not have resulted so seriously if the picture show had not been exhibited on the second floor of a building, with a crooked hallway, an ill-lighted stairway, and insufficient exits. It seems inexcusable for such an ill-equipped and unsafe theatre to exist even in a small Pennsylvania town. But there are moving-picture shows innumerable in this city in small halls ill-adapted to this purpose, and without sufficient exits. A great loss of life might occur in one of them any time the panic spirit possessed the crowd. Panic develops quickly, without warning. The Canonsburg hall was always prepared for a great slaughter. The scenery was set for the tragedy. Undoubtedly there will now be a general investigation of the halls in which moving pictures are exhibited. Some good may result.

THE LIGHTNING CALCULATOR.

Barnum's lightning calculator, a contemporary of Gen. Tom Thumb, Lavinia Warren, and the What Is It?—not to mention the moral cosmorama and the always edifying if melodramatic entertainment in the "lecture room"—is dead at the ripe age of eighty. Prof. Hutchings was in his time an extraordinary personage. He is remembered well by folks who were children in the sixties of the last century, because he could do sums in his head with a rapidity which seemed incredible, in a flash, as it were. For children, of course, there was never much entertainment in the sums he did. For a grown-up man to add, multiply, subtract, and do queer tricks with vulgar fractions by choice seemed incomprehensible. But his extraordinary skill was never disputed.

Hutchings's "head for figures," indeed, was a quite unusual gift. It seems that with such an endowment he might have made a fine career, become accountant and then financier. It is a common idea that a successful financier must have a fine head for figures. One could picture Hutchings running through a set of books at his lightning speed and finding the crooked entry in the twinkling of an eye. But he never did anything so useful, unless, indeed, to provide wholesome amusement to the simple mind is as useful work as any the best of us can do. Hutchings was an "Uncle Tommer," briefly, in his young manhood, and then Barnum discovered his gift and employed him for six years. The remainder of his life he clung to the "show business." His gift of rapid calculation was no more to him than the art of palming to the prestidigitator. He never made a mistake in his sums, and perhaps he made no mistake in fashioning his career. But it seems a pity that more was not made of his extraordinary gift.

THE RECALL IN PORTUGAL.

Last Monday the Constituent Assembly of Portugal adopted the Constitution of the new republic after three months' labors and amid great popular rejoicing. The incident is instructive just now because the Constituent Assembly had dropped the clause giving the right to strike. In Latin nations, however, Governments are made for the people, and people are not controlled by Governments beyond their liking. Accordingly, there were riots when the strike clause was dropped, and it was promptly inserted again. The result followed fast. The week had not ended before there were strictly constitutional strikes. Incendiaries set fire to factories, mobs hindered the firemen at their work, and the soldiers promptly restored order, the Constitution to the contrary notwithstanding, but not until the factories had been completely destroyed.

It is worth while to ask whether Portugal or its workingmen are the better off because this exercise of the referendum and recall, in fact if not in name, allowed the people to wreak their rage? If the Constitution had [illegible] strikes and had been en[illegible] [illegible] have not been [illegible] more work in the factories destroyed? And did the authorization of strikes prevent the enslaving of the strikers by the military under the necessity of society to preserve itself, whatever constitutions may say about anything? Is there any workingman or unionist in the United States who possibly can think that such events stimulate any general desire that their class shall have uncontrolled domination of capital here? Is capital, whatever its errors, capable of such unsocial acts as labor has committed in several countries within the past few days? The world's history for this month erects a warning sign, "Stop! Look! Listen!" across the path of any disposed to take the advice of agitators to enter upon a course of conduct such as has distressed Europe in recent days.

CLEANING UP DAY.

Next Friday, Sept. 1, is designated as "cleaning up day" in this State. The new law prohibiting the destruction or defacement of milestones, guide posts, &c., and the defacement of trees and buildings with advertisements, without the owners' written consent, goes into effect. The object of this law is to restore the beauty of the prospect along the roads of the State. The money paid for most of this roadside advertising is simply thrown away. The defacement of the landscape angers people. An advertisement that annoys more than it allures is an unprofitable investment.

The Good Roads Committee of the Automobile Club of America is going to make a function of the clean up. Fifty automobile clubs of the State are to take part in the destruction of disfiguring signs which have not been removed before the law goes into effect. It is good work. It will be a pleasure to have the highways freed from caricatures, needless warnings, and vain boasts in big letters.

"THE JUDICIAL VETO."

Mr. Emerson Stringham, in a recent letter to The Times, takes the bull by the horns. If a Legislature and the Executive pass an act, thereby implying that, in their opinion, it is constitutional, "we should not tolerate the undoing of their work by five out of nine well-meaning but middle-aged or aged lawyers."

That is also Mr. Roosevelt's view. To be sure, the ex-President has not sought to justify it, as Mr. Stringham does, by reference to the fact that Switzerland and the German Empire, both with written Constitutions, do not subject the acts of their Legislatures to judicial review. But neither does Mr. Stringham, who quotes this distinction as pointed out by Prof. McIlwain and Judge Thayer, rest content with their assumption that, whatever the practice in other lands, it is the "power or duty" of the American courts to determine whether a legislative act infringes the supreme law. In Marbury vs. Madison, the case in which Chief Justice Marshall defined this "power or duty," he declared that suits must be submitted to the test of the statute and of constitutional law. But suppose these actually conflict, and in terms contradict each other:

> If a law be in opposition to the Constitution; if both the law and the Constitution apply to a particular case, so that the court must either decide that case conformably to the law, disregarding the Constitution; or conformably to the Constitution, disregarding the law; the court must determine which of these conflicting rules governs the case. This is of the very essence of judicial duty.

Without observance of this essential judicial duty, what power could prevent Congress and the Executive from repealing the very provisions of the Constitution that set a limit upon their activities? They might lay export duties upon particular States. They might pass and enforce ex post facto laws. They might take property without due process of law. They might lay a direct tax disproportionately to the census. Can Mr. Stringham tell us how otherwise than by the interposition of what he calls "the judicial veto" the written Constitution of the United States can command the respect of the statute lawmakers?

FERRIES AND THE NEW CHARTER.

It is worth while to put together the facts that the new Charter hearings happen to come just as the ferries to Brooklyn advance their fare to 5 cents. The reason for putting the facts together is that the Charter provides a separate department with a salary charge of some $100,000 for ferries which are losing money under private management, and which surely would do worse under the city's management, if that should be necessary to keep the ferries running at all. Such ferries as the city now manages are run as a bureau of the Dock Department, and there is no suggestion that, if the city is to run them at all, they are not run as well as could be expected.

This is true even though the ferries are not profitable. They provide a public convenience out of public money of a quality better than private capital limited by considerations of solvency could afford, and as well as could be expected considering the blight which falls upon any undertaking when public is substituted for private management. The result of setting up a separate ferry department, as is provided in Chapter XXIV., would be that there would have to be a duplicate staff of engineers, dock builders, laborers, and others with which the Dock Department is already equipped, and under present conditions is able to handle the ferries almost as a by-product.

The fact that the ferries now charge 5 cents signifies that they have ceased to be passenger ferries, having been superseded by tunnels and bridges. They have become mere dray ferries, serving private firms, and more largely the distribution of freight between terminals, of which the ferries are extensions. Efficiency would be promoted rather by intrusting the ferries to the interests which they serve than to the city, with an administration charge so much larger than private management would need. The fact that the ferries have been compelled to raise the rate to a figure signifying that passenger service is neither desired nor accommodated ends the argument that ferries should be run by the city to restore declining real estate values. Nothing would restore them but the restoration of the human tides whose absence is denoted by the increased fares, and the city cannot control the passenger movement. Even making the ferries free would hardly induce people to ride where they do not want to travel.

The making of the bridges free to drays dealt the final blow to the ferries, and cost the city more than the loss of the tolls which had been collected. If the city is to go into the transportation business it ought to keep a balance sheet and a profit and loss account. The lack of such bookkeeping explains the inconsistencies and the mad enterprises into which the city is constantly betrayed.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Forty Days Put to Poor Use.

In this era of rapidly improving means of transportation it is natural enough that every once in a while somebody should be moved to ascertain how quickly the circuit of the earth can be accomplished. This information might be acquired, of course, without moving out of any large city in which one happened to be, simply from a few hours' study of easily obtainable railway and steamship "folders," but in the arrangement of a hypothetical journey no allowance would be made for the endless chapter of big and little accidents, and the conclusion reached would involve the use of the word "if" so many times that most people would regard it as the statement of a dubious possibility.

Really to determine how long it takes to go around the world somebody has to do it. Even when this has been done and a new record established, however, nothing except the fact of the doing has been definitely settled, for the next man who makes the trip is about as likely to take a little more as a little less time in accomplishing it, depending in no small measure upon whether he is or is not favored by luck and weather and uncontrollable circumstances of half a hundred kinds.

For the moment the record is Jaeger-Schmidt's—39 days, 19 hours, 43 minutes, 37 seconds. He and his paper have their reward, the one in fame of a certain sort and the other in advertising, also of a certain sort, but both the fame and the advertising seem to be rather irrelevant to any real superiority in man or newspaper, and from some points of view the one has rather foolishly wasted his time and strength and the other not less foolishly its money.

Of the world which Jaeger-Schmidt has circled he has seen very little, and that its least interesting, least characteristic part, for all railway stations and tracks are much alike, and even more closely similar are all steamships. He cut in two the record of Phileas Fogg, but he had none of the stolid Britisher's delightful adventures—a misfortune due, doubtless, to the fact that his tour, unlike that of his predecessor, was not personally conducted by a man of genius, which makes a difference. Had Jaeger-Schmidt rescued and married a beautiful widow in foreign parts, his trip might—or might not—have been worth while, but all he has brought back to his office is weariness and satiety, and those can be acquired without going so far from home.

Unavoidable, but Not Unmitigable.

As it is asserted on what seems to be good authority that defects in rails of the kind that wrecked the Lehigh Valley train at Manchester prove neither carelessness of inspection nor failure to use the best processes of manufacture, the accident must apparently be classed among those that can be called strictly and properly unavoidable. That so many passengers were killed and injured, however, seems to have been due to the presence in the train of two cars less strong than can be and are built.

Therefore, it can hardly be said with accuracy that the disaster could not have been mitigated, even though such derailments cannot be wholly prevented. Moreover, if it be true that industrial science is as yet incapable of making a rail that is certainly without concealed cavities or imperceptible points of excessive hardness, there is no reason for assuming that never will these defects be conquered or an effective method of discovering them found.

Science is not infallible, and its powers are limited, but even though a perfect rail cannot be made, it is not credible that defects are beyond detection.

Scientific Doubts Removed.

Somebody in the Department of Agriculture, in a moment of truly departmental inspiration, recently developed in his powerful mind a fear as to the right of the Weather Bureau to spend money in studying earthquakes. He may have noticed that the words "weather" and "earthquake" do not begin with the same letter, and so reached the conclusion that they have nothing to do with each other; he may have been drenched by an unpredicted thunderstorm and from that experience logically deduced the duty to give pain to the negligent prophets. Anyhow, he laid his doubt before Secretary Wilson, and the Secretary, realizing the importance of the question raised—or its possible utility as a means of turning public attention from a part of his little realm where in his opinion it has been too long fixed to one that has never been very affectionately regarded—passed the momentous problem over to the Controller of the Treasury for solution.

The Controller, having duly pondered, announces that the study of earthquakes by the Weather Bureau officials has got to stop, and to explain his stern determination to permit no more expenditures by the bureau for that purpose, he says that as seismology concerns underground conditions and meteorology those of the air, the two can have no possible connection, and the Government must suffer wrong no more from such obvious misuse of its funds as has been going on.

This is, indeed, a noble, a beautiful, decision, and within a few days the Controller, modest man, will be vastly embarrassed and annoyed by the encomiums he will receive from scientists in all parts of the world. They will insist on his accepting honorary membership in their societies and they will burden him with degrees, medals, and ribbons innumerable. Possibly they will first want to know, as a mere formality, how he discovered that there is no relation between weather and earthquakes, for there has prevailed for some years past in scientific circles something half belief and half suspicion that there was a relation of one kind or another between the two. This, of course, will now have to be abandoned, however reluctantly, the Controller's competency to decide the matter being universally recognized.

It is to be hoped that Mr. Moore and his colleagues will not be too severely punished for earthquake expenditures made before the Controller spoke. Their error, though grave, was committed in honest ignorance. In our opinion, a public reprimand, say, by Solicitor McCabe, would be punishment enough. If that be held insufficient, let them be ordered to resign voluntarily.

TEACHERS' PSYCHOLOGY.

Discusses "Motivation," "Focusing of Apperceptive Capital," and So On.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The verbal vagaries of educators had a high fling a few weeks ago at the National Education Association meeting in San Francisco. The "insurgent" party won in the elections for officers of the association, so maybe we'll hear a bit less of this cabalistic kind of language in the future, which was uttered by an Illinois school Superintendent in explaining "motivation." This expert first defined the word and then showed very clearly (?) what things are meaningful and significant to the children of the elementary schools, that motivation of work is accomplished, even if the motive does not operate with uniform intensity, that there is a relation between motivation and rote work, that by motivating work we have an effect in securing general training. Warming up to his "motivating," he emphasized, in the light of recent studies in formal discipline, that general training will result from solving specific problems to the degree in which they are motivated.

A doubter writing about it in America, having given us a pause for breath while he asks what it all means, wonders what inspiration "motivated" the expert to analyze for teachers in elementary schools "the effects of motivation on the child to show that it focuses his apperceptive capital on the problems he desires to solve, develops ardor in his work, results in his manifesting more originality, greater initiative, and larger independence in attacking his work, and stimulates him in attaining greater results in all fields of endeavor."

These words are for the benefit of teachers of elementary schools; and the praise of "motivation" and the good results of a dose of it is couched in the identical language in which the following have been lauded in past years: Apperception, vertical writing, concentration, group system, departmental teaching, and the doctrine of interest. They are all invented to delude parents and public officials into believing that self-seeking educators have at last found the philosopher's stone and that with it they can turn sows' ears into silk purses.

ROBERT P. GREEN.

New York, Aug. 26, 1911.

INHERITANCE TAXES.

Hopes State Will Restore Moneys Exacted Before New Law Was Passed.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The State of New York has taken a formal step in the passage and signing of the Harte bill, governing the taxing of decedents' estates, and has taken itself from the pirate class of States. But the very passage of the bill and its enactment into law is a confession of the immorality of the administration of the previous law as interpreted by four Judges of the Court of Appeals against the saner views of their three associates. To put itself entirely in the right, and to relieve itself from the charge of having received stolen goods, it should now insist on the restoration of taxes exacted since the decision of the Court of Appeals above referred to from non-resident estates upon intangible property, the evidences of which were in safety deposit vaults in the State of New York.

I speak with feeling on this subject, as in my capacity of executor of the will of a friend who was a resident of New Jersey I was compelled to pay more than $3,000 to the Controller of the State of New York, because my friend had been so ill advised as to keep his securities with a safety deposit company in the City of New York. Such an act of justice would call for a large sum of money, but it would add immeasurably to the fair fame of the State and would in the end redound greatly to its advantage.

EDWARD C. PEARSON.

Lake Pleasant, N. Y., Aug. 26, 1911.

Long Island Railroad Service.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The series of letters which appeared in The Times a few weeks ago on the indifference of the Long Island Railroad Company to the comfort and rights of its passengers, as shown by the glaring inadequacy of the accommodation on certain trains, were a most minute expression of the indignation which for a long time has been growing in the minds of the unfortunate commuters on the road, and steps were being considered for such a representation on the subject as even the apparently wholly callous management of the road would be compelled to take cognizance of. As one of those who contributed to that correspondence, I think it only fair and right to note the fact, and I take great pleasure in doing so, that the Long Island Railroad is at last beginning to show some consideration for the protests of its patrons and has put extra cars on many of its trains in which formerly the passengers were herded instead of seated; and on such trains commuters can now travel with a comfort never before enjoyed. As one of those who share in this new and pleasing experience, I wish to thank The Times for its part in contributing to it.

OBSERVER NO. 2.

New York, Aug. 26, 1911.

Non-Metric Decimals.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When it comes to discussing the metric system there is nothing to help it in the decimal feature of it. The decimal system of currency has made American boys, and later the men of the shops, more familiar with the general use of decimals than any other people, and so has placed them in position to appreciate and rightly weigh both the advantages and the disadvantages of the system. As a consequence, when it came to the minute measurements required by accurate and repetitive manufacture, American men of the shop were working to thousandths of an inch when the best work of the metric countries was being done to millimeters, which are about four times as big. The decimal system in our shops began with hundredths of an inch, then extended to thousandths of an inch, and now tens of thousandths of an inch are familiar units wherever the best work is done, and typewriters made to these measurements are sold in every metric country in the world.

Treatment of Lunatics.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Since leaving New York I have had every opportunity of comparing the treatment of the insane in the United States with the methods in vogue in Great Britain. Sir Bertrand Dawson, King George's physician, gave me a letter of introduction to St. Luke's Hospital, London, in which the insane are confined. I also visited other representative asylums outside London, and I have come to the conclusion that we are somewhat behind the English in their treatment of those whose minds are unbalanced. The local Justices visit the asylums regularly without previous notice to the keepers, the object of which is obvious. There are no lunacy scandals in England because no sane person can be immured in England as is possible in the United States. The law must be amended, and, in agitating for such an alteration, I have the promised support of three New York Supreme Court Judges.

AURA AND SOUL.

They Are Not the Same and Not Reproducible by the Camera.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Neither Dr. W. J. Kilner of London, nor Dr. MacDougall of Haverhill, Mass., nor Dr. Patrick S. O'Donnell of Chicago has ever claimed that the atmosphere surrounding the human body represents the soul. None of these gentlemen has ever claimed that he was able to obtain photographs of the atmosphere surrounding the body. All this talk has emanated from the heated brain of a highly imaginative newspaper reporter, but has no foundation in facts, and I am sorry for the man who palmed off this editorial on your good self.

I have given a number of demonstrations, and many of the doctors who have been present were able to see the aura, including the "etheric double," and are now investigating on their own behalf to find out what the auric force really is. Dr. Kilner has never claimed to be able to define it. I have a letter before me from Dr. Kilner, in which he speaks about the report which appeared in the papers here, as well as in London, that Dr. O'Donnell had succeeded in taking a photograph of the "vital spark," and he says:

> So far I have been unable to photograph the aura, in spite of the most extensive experiments with the finest and quickest exposure plates on the market. I have not been rewarded with the faintest semblance of a result in that direction, and unless Dr. O'Donnell has invented some special plate, which I think impossible in this brief time, I don't see how he can have achieved this result. The aura has always baffled the camera in my experience.
>
> My discovery of the aura was not an accident, but the outcome of years of work on the theory that some such radiation surrounded the human body. I was looking for something rather of a different nature to the aura, however, when I found the existence of these emanations.
>
> I cannot tell you the nature of the aura; I simply know that it exists, and I hope and believe that after further research, it will prove of great benefit to the medical faculty in diagnosing disease. Some of my colleagues consider that this is the fringe of a great discovery, the outwork of a very big thing. During the past three years I have made extensive experiments on subjects of both sexes, and all ages, and have recorded them, and I find that the aura alters in shape and appearance with the health and ill health of the person.

The phenomenon is entirely physical. There is nothing occultist or clairvoyant about it.

Dr. O'Donnell denies absolutely that he ever made the remarks attributed to him.

Allow me to add here that two weeks ago I gave nine demonstrations in Chicago at which there were present seventy doctors, and all but one were satisfied that the aura exists, and that it may be utilized for the purpose of diagnosis. Some of those present came twice, and some of them three times, before they were satisfied with their investigations. The aura is not an optical illusion, neither is it a phantom of imagination. It is a physiological fact, not a theory. Any one who is willing to see it, and is not color blind, can find it with the means placed at his hands by Dr. Kilner's discovery, although with some it requires from two to four observations to perceive it.

Questions for Suffragists.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Suffragists always deny that they are seeking rights and privileges, too. When asked if they think men should be compelled by law to support their wives, they usually dodge the issue in some way. The following quotation from the suffrage organ, The Woman's Journal, is exceedingly illuminating:

> The following citations from the Civil Court will prove a need of legal reform in California—and among the unjust laws which it is implied will be changed when the women have the vote is the following:
>
> The wife must support the husband, when he has not deserted her, out of her separate property when he has no separate property and he is unable from infirmity to support himself.

I do not think many anti-suffragists will see any injustice in this. Nothing could more clearly show the animus of the suffragists—the spirit that moves them.

Misplaced Stamping.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Is it possible for you to do anything to modify the reckless way the New York Public Library rubber-stamps its ownership throughout the text of its books?

I have just been absorbed in a novel of cleverly arranged cross-purposes and misunderstandings. Only in the last sentence can we know whether the hero is to go off to South Africa or live a life of happiness with the heroine. "Oh! Alice," he cries, "can you forget all and be mine?" Her answer appears in a heavy red rubber-stamp: "N. Y. Public Library, Central Circulation. The End."

Must I pay $1.25 for a new book to find out how the author wrote it, or can the librarian be made to tell me?

They Beg of Women.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Under the guise of newsboys and often with a badge issued by some school or society, our prominent streets and crossings are fairly overrun with ragged boys who approach women only, begging coins; they carry one or two dirty papers, which are not for sale. Cannot this nuisance be suppressed, or is New York content to let beggars take root under its very eyes?

Which Does He Leave?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a purist-in-the-making I am disturbed over a problem of usage recently brought to my notice. When writing the obituary paragraph of a man should one say: "He leaves a wife," or "He leaves a widow"? Which, and also why? I do not remember to have seen in any woman's obituary the phrase: "She leaves a widower." Will somebody please explain to

HARVEST TIME IN THE SUBURBS.

Oh, these are the soul-soothing Halcyon Days for the dwellers in open spaces,
The patient, good people of innocent ways—the Suburbs' long-suffering races.
Remember the time-honored quips and the jests and cartoons on Suburbanite planting,
The clever remarks, sarcastic flings, the puns and the knocks and the ranting.

Suburbanites hoeing their peas up in hills together with corn and tomatoes,
And planning supplies for a half-dozen friends from a three-by-five batch of potatoes,
And digging and sowing and raking away and cutting the queerest of capers
At the rate of twenty-four hours to the day—to judge by the comic papers!

So much for the scribes' and cartoonists' sport in the planting days when the Spring is young,
But wait! Hold your horses, my bonny boys! another song remains to be sung.
It may be quite warm in the train going home, and strap-hanging's somewhat annoying,
But suburbanite fancy is straying afar and pleasanter dreams enjoying;

While city folks worry and hustle and fret, suburbanites have no misgiving,
For mother out in the garden at home is dodging the high cost of living:
To spite all the jesters the peas have come up, the lettuce and corn is a winner,
And while father rides homeward the Brussels sprouts are being pulled out for dinner;
Tomatoes are blushing up brighter each day, the celery's tender and yellow,
Spinach, beans, parsley, and radishes there are fresh and spicy and mellow.
Take note, all ye skeptics, ye fun-poking scribes, the Suburbanite's harvest's a hummer:
While you do your jollying he sows his seeds—and he gathers his crops in the Summer.

BUILDER OF MONITOR DENIED TIMBY CLAIM

Letter of the Late Thomas Fitch Rowland Declared It to be Without Foundation.

IDEA OF TURRET VERY OLD

As Matter of Policy John A. Griswold, the Writer Says, Paid Royalties to Professed Inventor.

Capt. George L. Norton, editor of The Marine Journal, in the last issue of that paper, publishes a letter he received from the late Thomas Fitch Rowland of Brooklyn, in which Mr. Rowland, who built the famous Monitor that destroyed the Confederate ram Merrimac in Hampton Roads, declares that there is no reason for the claim that the monitor was the invention of the late Theodore R. Timby of Brooklyn. Mr. Timby's claim was recently revived as a result of the effort made to have Mr. Timby's remains transferred from this city to the National cemetery at Arlington. The Navy Department was asked to designate a battleship to convey the remains to Washington, but as yet no action favorable to that plan has been taken by the department.

Owing to the widespread publicity given the renewal of the Timby claim, Capt. Norton reproduces the letter written in 1903 by Capt. Rowland, which is in part as follows:

> This is an ancient story that I have long been familiar with, and I possess clippings from several newspapers published in different cities of almost stereotype sameness, all of which, in my opinion, lack the essential element of truth. The gentleman for whom these articles are constantly claiming credit did not first invent the revolving turret, and is not entitled to the slightest consideration for anything done in bringing into existence the original Monitor. I very much doubt whether he saw the Monitor, or knew much about the vessel, until after the engagement off Fortress Monroe, March 9, 1862.
>
> As you know, I constructed the Monitor at the Continental Works at Greenpoint; was there all the time, and knew everybody who took interest in the conception, detailed design, and completion of the original Monitor. My duties required me to become so, and to be there all the time. I never saw or heard of Mr. Timby; neither did Mr. Warren E. Hill, my faithful assistant throughout all the time of the original Monitor's construction. Mr. Timby was not the inventor of the revolving turret, for that method of functioning guns in warfare was well known and utilized centuries before Columbus discovered America.
>
> Returning to the story of Mr. Timby's claim. Soon after March 9, 1862, he presented himself to Capt. Ericsson, who was well aware that the turret invention was neither Mr. Timby's nor his own, and probably the Captain, with his well-known terseness of manner, turned the claimant over to the financial managers of the syndicate. The late Hon. John A. Griswold evidently considered it impolitic to have any discussion upon the subject of invention, just at a time when the zenith of glory had been attained by the Monitor's success; therefore, he personally assumed the negotiation of the matter, and learned from Mr. Timby that he had made application for a patent, or had filed a caveat for his invention of the revolving turret, which patent had either been rejected or the caveat was still in the secret archives of the United States Patent Office. Thereupon he negotiated an agreement with Mr. Timby, which, in general terms, was an arrangement to assist him in obtaining some sort of patent, or patents, and they were successful in obtaining the issues alluded to.
>
> It was commonly reported and believed at the time that Mr. Griswold agreed to pay Mr. Timby $5,000 per turret for all such constructions the Ericsson syndicate should decide to use, and I always believed that gentleman performed his part of the contract. If Mr. Timby did not receive the $5,000, then I am mistaken, because I always regarded Mr. Griswold as a man of the highest integrity, and one who always did precisely as he agreed to, for I received hundreds of thousands of dollars from him in payment of contracts, and such was my experience in dealing with him.
>
> This is about all I have to say at present, but before concluding I wish to record a protest for myself and my assistant, Mr. Warren E. Hill, (the only two persons known to me at present as being still alive who had anything to do with the construction of the original Monitor,) against the numerous claimants for unearned notoriety in connection with the conception or the building of that ironclad vessel, and also my opposition to large sums of money being paid to impecunious persons or public monuments erected as memorials to anybody services which were not performed.
>
> Faithfully yours,
> THOMAS FITCH ROWLAND.

The above is only a part of Capt. Rowland's letter. He went into the history of the construction of the famous warship in detail, and referred to the financial backing that made it possible for Ericsson to have it built.

Theodore R. Timby, who for forty years fought for recognition as the inventor of the revolving turret, was 91 years old when he died, in November, 1909.

NEW COURT HOUSE SITE BILL.

Stilwell Would Now Give First Chance of Selection to Estimate Board.

State Senator Stephen J. Stilwell of the Bronx has drawn up a new Court House Site bill which he hopes will meet the objections raised by Mayor Gaynor and other critics of his previous efforts in this direction. This bill is his fourth on this subject, and he plans to present it to the Legislature when it reconvenes. The Senator says that the measure has the approval of the committee appointed by fourteen civic bodies to hasten the building of the Court House.

The bill, combining many of the features of its predecessors, gives to the Board of Estimate absolute power for six months to select a site. They may select any in the city, even the one in City Hall Park now occupied by the Tweed Court House. If they fail to act during their allotted period their jurisdiction ends and passes to the Court House Commission appointed in the second administration of Mayor McClellan. The commission may select any site it chooses except a city park. The commission must inform the Board of Estimate in writing of its selection, but the board is without power to negative or modify such selection.

If the second six months passes and no choice is made the bill provides that the function of the commission shall pass to the Justices of the Supreme Court of the First Judicial District, with the power of selection resting in the majority. Over their choice neither the commission nor the Board of Estimate has any veto power.

LECTURES IN BRONX PARK.

Programme of Autumn Series in Museum Building Announced.

The New York Botanical Garden has announced its programme for nine Autumn lectures to be delivered on Saturday afternoons, beginning with next Saturday. Admission to the lecture hall in the museum building of the Garden in Bronx Park will be free to the public, the doors opening at 4 o'clock. Here is the programme:

Sept. 2, "The Berlin Botanical Garden," Dr. W. A. Murrill; Sept. 9, "Plants and People of Pinar del Rio, Cuba," Dr. C. Stuart Gager; Sept. 16, "The Fruit Industry of the Northwest," Dr. George V. Nash; Sept. 23, "The Vegetation of the Dismal Swamp of Virginia," Dr. Arthur Hollick; Sept. 30, "The Progress of the Development of the New York Botanical Garden," Dr. N. L. Britton; Oct. 7, "Some Scenic and Floral Features of Cuba," Dr. Marshall A. Howe; Oct. 14, "The Movements of Plants," Prof. R. A. Harper; Oct. 21, "Methods of Detecting Adulterations in Food and Drugs," Dr. H. H. Rusby.

END ALL NIGHT DANCE WITH MARCH ON LINKS

Costumed Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard M. Thomas at Newport Have Parade at Sunrise.

DANCERS BEAT THE DRUMS

Boston Hosts Have Sunday Picnic in the Woods with Luncheon in Tent Despite the Rain.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 27.—One of the longest dances in duration on record in Newport circles terminated this morning at 6 o'clock at the Newport Golf Club, where Mr. and Mrs. Leonard M. Thomas gave their fancy dress dance, beginning at 11 o'clock Saturday night. To close the entertainment about 6 o'clock this morning a grand march was formed, led by Moncure Robinson with Henry Conried's band, with some of the guests playing the drums. Then out upon the golf links they marched and back to the clubhouse.

Casino registers to-day include L. M. Stockton of Boston, John Clinton Gray of New York, visiting Mr. and Mrs. Pembroke Jones; Russell E. Sard of Albany, the guest of Robert Goelet; Mrs. Woodbury Kane, Edmund L. Goodman, E. Eugene Gallatin, Mr. and Mrs. Dulany Howland, and P. W. Livermore of New York, the latter visiting Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Beeckman; Paul J. Dashiell of Annapolis, visiting Mrs. William F. Fullam; Randolph C. Grew of Boston, the guest of Mrs. French Vanderbilt; Ogden L. Mills, King Collins of Providence; Miss Helen C. Robertson of Providence, visiting Miss Louise Otis Everett; Mrs. Charles P. Nelson of New York, at the Ocean cottage; Thornton Earle of New York, Mrs. Herbert McBride Clinton, a guest on the steam yacht Repose II., and Maxwell Norman of Newport.

Frederick H. Prince, Jr., and Norman Prince of Boston entertained a company of fifty guests to-day with a picnic in the woods of Hazard Farm, having luncheon served under the trees in a tent, beneath which the guests were unmindful of the heavy rain which fell for the greater part of the day. Conrad's band from Berger's played for the dancing.

The arrival of the German cruiser Bremen from New Bedford this afternoon adds to the life of the Newport colony, as the officers are quite well known to the Summer residents.

The Baroness Raoul de Graffenried, who is occupying the Sterner cottage, gave a tea this afternoon, assisted by her daughters, the Misses Violet and Gertrude Schuyler Hamilton. The Baroness, who was formerly Mrs. Schuyler Hamilton, Jr., the owner of The Moorings, on Halidon Hill, has been living in Paris many years, where she married the Baron de Graffenried.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Goelet entertained some sixty guests with dinner this evening at Stoneacre, in honor of Congressman and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, their guests.

A number of the members of the Clambake Club entertained seventy of the players taking part in the National lawn tennis tournament at the Casino this afternoon at the Clambake Club, where the full course clambake was eaten by the players, who were welcomed to the club by President William R. Hunter.

Mrs. John J. Mason gave an informal dinner party at Wabun this evening for forty guests, who were principally young people, followed by informal dancing. During dinner the orchestra played. Mrs. Mason has cards out for numerous other entertainments, which will include a number through September and October, as Dr. and Mrs. Mason are to remain at their Newport residence until the middle of November.

Mme. Marie Von Unschuld will give a lecture and recital in honor of the one hundredth anniversary of Franz Liszt, with special reference to his Hungarian rhapsodies and his various transcriptions, at the residence of Miss C. Ogden Jones in Ochre Point Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Berwind entertained with a dinner to-night at the Elms in honor of Mrs. William Douglas Sloane of Lenox, who is the guest of Mrs. Frederick Brownson.

Mr. and Mrs. Pembroke Jones will give a large entertainment at Sherwood Sept. 2, when they expect to have the Russian dancers for the entertainment of their guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Payne Whitney will give a dance at Manchester Sept. 2, which will be attended by a number of the Summer residents from Newport.

WHITNEY WEDDING ABROAD?

Reported That It Will Be In Caux, Switzerland, on Sept. 7.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Aug. 27.—It has been announced here that the marriage of Miss Dorothy Whitney, daughter of the late William C. Whitney, and Willard D. Straight, representative of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. in the Far East, will be celebrated in the American Church here on Sept. 7. Miss Whitney and Mrs. Bend, who has been her companion since the death of her mother, are at the Palace Hotel, Caux. Mr. Straight is stopping at the same place.

According to present plans it will be a family wedding, and the only guests will be relatives, who will arrive in Geneva on Sept. 4. This party will include Mrs. Almeric H. Paget of London and Harry Payne Whitney.

Formal announcement of the engagement of Miss Whitney and Mr. Straight was made on July 20 by Miss Whitney's brother, Harry Payne Whitney. Miss Whitney is the youngest child of the late William C. Whitney. She sailed for Europe early in the Summer, and Mr. Straight followed shortly afterward.

Mr. Straight comes from Oswego, N. Y., and after graduation from Cornell in [illegible] went to China, where he has been connected with the Chinese Imperial Customs, The Associated Press, and for a time was Consul General for the United States at Mukden. More recently he was the representative of J. P. Morgan & Co., [illegible] Loeb & Co., and the National City and First National Banks of New York.

Dean Bailey's Niece to Wed in Egypt.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Aug. 27.—Miss Lena Smith of Lansing, Mich., niece of Liberty Hyde Bailey, Dean of the Cornell College of Agriculture, sailed from New York yesterday for Egypt, where she will marry Andrew Van Halter, an American engineer employed at Cairo. Mr. Van Halter was graduated from the Michigan Agricultural College, and while there he met Miss Smith.

Helpless Invalid Needs Wheel Chair.

The District Nursing Association of the Brooklyn Bureau of Charities is trying to raise money to buy a wheel chair for a man who is helpless from chronic rheumatism. He is a civil war veteran, and receives a small pension, but has to depend on a daughter for a home. A chair was lent, but it has been taken from him to give to some one who has a prior claim. Contributions may be sent to the Brooklyn Bureau of Charities, 69 Schermerhorn Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., marked No. 0142.

BUSINESS INSURANCE.

Large Policies Taken Out by Business Concerns on Lives of Their Valuable Employes.

Boston.—An important development of the past few years in the insurance field has been the increasing popularity of so-called business insurance. Many business enterprises owe their existence or success to one man whose experience, technical knowledge, selling ability, or capital make him an essential asset of the organization. The death of such a man might well prove to be an irreparable loss, and it is to offset this contingency that corporations are taking out insurance policies on the lives of their valuable men.—Boston News Bureau.

THEY'RE NOT ENGAGED.

No Doubt About That Now if Brooklyn Couple Ever Were.

There is no engagement between A. Merton De Mott of 49 St. John's Place, Brooklyn, and Cora Estelle Muller, sister of Mrs. Frederick Fulton Marquand of the Hotel St. George, and now at her Summer home in Northport, L. I. That much is certain, for De Mott and Miss Muller are agreed upon that. They differ on the question as to who broke it off, and De Mott isn't even ready to say there ever was an engagement, the while he is positive that if there was one he was the one to sever it.

Ten days ago or more a Brooklyn newspaper was informed through a letter signed "Mrs. A. Martin" that the young couple from the Park Slope were engaged. There was a second letter on the same subject, and then a third, signed by Mrs. Marquand. Each time Mr. De Mott denied it, explaining that there was nothing more than an "understanding" between himself and Miss Muller.

De Mott says that the communications were made without his knowledge or consent, and that the effort to announce an engagement made him indignant to the point of informing Mrs. Marquand and her sister that whatever understanding existed was thereby broken off. A day or so later, he says, he received from Miss Muller this cutting note:

"You may consider our engagement at an end from now on," she wrote, and yesterday a Brooklyn paper quoted Mrs. Marquand as saying that the engagement was off in view of the young man's "peculiar attitude."

LONG DISTANCE COURTSHIP.

Gillette Travels Every Week from Chicago to Maine to See Miss Brookmire.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 27.—Traveling nearly 1,500 miles for the privilege of a few hours' companionship with the girl who is soon to be his wife, Howard Gillette, Chicago banker and broker, is visiting New England weekly this Summer to meet his fiancée, Miss Cornelia Brookmire of St. Louis, who is dividing her time between Biddeford Pool, Me., and Shelburne, N. H.

In the annals of courtship Mr. Gillette has probably won the long distance record by his round trip from Chicago to Maine, which is close to 3,000 miles.

A Maine law which requires a marriage to be performed by a minister resident in the State and licensed by it has interfered with their plans to be married in Maine by Miss Brookmire's former minister. It is expected that the Rev. Philip Schuyler, the chosen minister, may secure a Maine license to perform the ceremony. Failing to do so, he will officiate perhaps at some point out of the State, and then the Bishop of Maine will be asked to perform a like ceremony at the bride's Summer home.

EXPORT CHILDLESS WOMEN.

Country Would Be Better, Says Methodist Preacher at Conference.

Special to The New York Times.

WINONA LAKE, Ind., Aug. 27.—Dr. George R. Stewart, pastor of the First Methodist Protestant Church of Cleveland, Tenn., said in his sermon here today before the Winona Bible Conference:

"You can, with great advantage to the country, load up 5,000 giddy, godless, childless women and ship them out of this country and bring in an equal number of good, old-fashioned mothers. Women and lap-dogs do not make a country; it takes fathers, mothers, and children.

"I believe that this country needs obedience to authority. If a boy does not obey his father and mother, that is incipient anarchy. Once, I asked a successful dog trainer how he did his work and he answered: 'I take the dogs when they are pups and then I gain complete control over them, and keep them doing the same things over and over again until it becomes a sort of second nature.' That is the secret of bringing up children. The man who said he raised his boys on prayers and hickory had the secret."

ABSCONDING CASHIER'S PLEA.

Fleishmann, Who Fled from Los Angeles, Wants Another Chance.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 27.—H. J. Fleishmann, who some years ago defaulted as cashier of the Farmers and Merchants' Bank of this city, leaving behind him a deficit of more than $200,000, wants to come back to Los Angeles, and has written to a friend of this city begging for another chance. Fleishmann is now an automobile salesman in New York City.

The story of Fleishmann's downfall was the old one. He made himself a small "loan" to play the New York stock market. The market went against him, and instead of being able to repay the "loan" as he expected he found himself forced to "borrow" more and more. Finally he found himself where he knew he could not overtake his losses, discovery and exposure stared him in the face, and he fled.

The Farmers and Merchants' Bank indemnified itself as far as it was able from the real estate he left behind him. In his letter he pleads that had it been possible for him to retain these holdings he would have been more than able to pay back every cent he took. It was said last night that some of his friends will try to find him a clerical position in some bank here.

NEGRO ESCAPES POSSE.

Man Entered Oklahoma Home Disguised as a Woman.

DURANT, Okla., Aug. 27.—After a search of eighteen hours for the negro who attempted to attack Mrs. A. Wilkerson at Colbert, fifteen miles south of here last evening, the pursuit was dropped today by Sheriff Hamilton. Intense excitement followed the affair, and another burning was feared.

It developed to-day that the negro was dressed in woman's clothing when he entered the Wilkerson home. Mrs. Wilkerson fled when she discovered that the negro was a man. He seized her three-year-old child and threatened to kill it if she did not return. She ran to her husband, who was working in a field, and gave the alarm.

After carrying the child some distance toward Red River, the negro dropped it and fled. It is thought that he escaped to Texas, and the pursuit was kept up to Denison.

ENDS VACATION BY SUICIDE.

It Was the First in Three Years for a Bank Teller.

LITTLE FALLS, N. Y., Aug. 27.—Arthur Rhodes, teller of the First National Bank of Dolgeville, this county, committed suicide by shooting in Cold Brook last night. He was taking the first vacation he had had in three years and was visiting his mother.

Mr. Rhodes yesterday borrowed a pistol from Supervisor Conradt, an old friend, saying that he wanted to kill some cats. This morning his body was found in a field. He is survived by his wife. Ill-health is the only cause assigned for the suicide.

Postal Employes' Outing.

The Postal Employes' Mutual Aid Association will hold its annual Summer entertainment at Luna Park, Coney Island, next Thursday. The profits of the entertainment, as usual, will go to the mortuary fund of the association. The outing is in charge of Henry Lippman, Chairman; J. W. Tiedemann, L. J. Gallagher, and H. W. Connelly.

Steam Launch Excelsior Disabled.

The steam launch Excelsior, 32 feet long, belonging to the Excelsior Yacht Club, was disabled off Stapleton, S. I., yesterday afternoon, when her motive power broke down. The launch, with ten passengers, was taken in tow by the revenue cutter Calumet and brought to the Morse dock, South Brooklyn.

SUFFRAGISTS ADOPT A BATTLE ANTHEM

Follow the Idea of an Italian Composer Who Agreed to Write the Music.

MINNETTA TAYLOR, AUTHOR

A Leading Woman of the West Before Her Death—Anthem to be Sung at City Convention Here.

The National anthem of the suffragettes has just been decided upon. Last May, when the women paraded up Fifth Avenue, an Italian composer who watched them from the Waldorf exclaimed: "They should be singing!"

The idea was at once taken up, the composer offering to write the music. A prize of $100 was offered for the best anthem, and Minnetta Theodora Taylor got the prize for her "Ballot Song of American Women," which follows:

I.

Once more awake the spirit of the just
And a world-wide flame is kindled from the dust.
Women, for the right we know,
For the duty that we owe,
For all souls now here and coming, vote we must.

CHORUS.

We the People! All the People! How it rings!
Justice broad and free, the living heart of things!
Sisters working for the right,
Brothers striving for the right,
We the People! All the People! How it rings!

II.

Our voice is for the wisdom of the free
Ever growing since our parents crossed the sea,
Silence in the court of wrong,
To the weakling must belong,
Let our spirits, strong and earnest, speak and see.

III.

We are walking where the forces all have trod,
A weary way where we can only plod;
But we're toiling in the space
Where the martyrs took their place
And our mighty shout is risen to our God.

IV.

Ye Powers of Evil, earth is not your own!
Women helping, you shall yet be overthrown.
And a better life shall rise
Than has gladdened human eyes;
And true peace shall blend the nations into one.

V.

Let us stand together, women, hard and fast!
Let us vow to keep the faith until the last!
By the truth the world has learned,
By the falsehood it has spurned,
We will vote and rise above the vanished past.

Minnetta Theodora Taylor died two weeks ago, five days after writing the poem. She lived in Greencastle, Ind., and she was the founder and first President of the Western Association of Writers. She was for several years President of the Indiana State Federation of Women's Clubs. She was a linguist of extraordinary powers. It is said that she could speak forty-five languages.

The music for the National suffrage anthem will be published in the October issue of The Woman Voter, organ of the Woman Suffrage Party, and sung at their City Convention in New York on Oct. 26.

COMEDY OPENS WITH 'SPEED'

First Play Produced Under the Management of Cecil De Mille.

The Shuberts announced last night that William Collier's Comedy Theatre will be opened for the season on Saturday night, Sept. 9, with the first New York performance of "Speed," a new play offered under the management of Cecil De Mille. This will be Mr. De Mille's first venture as a producing manager.

"Speed" is by Lee Wilson Dodd, author of "The Return of Eve" and many magazine stories. The two principal rôles will be played by Orrin Johnson and Oza Waldrop. The theme of the play deals with the troubles of a family which becomes possessed of an automobile and the speed mania.

The piece is booked for only three weeks at the Comedy, as other attractions are scheduled to follow it there. It may continue its run at another playhouse.

Mr. Harris Will Sell Tickets.

When the box office of the Harris Theatre is opened this morning the first tickets will be sold by William Harris. During his career of fifty years Mr. Harris has had experience in about every side of the theatrical business, but he has never before been a ticket seller, and he is going to take the position in the box-office window this morning to complete his education as an expert in theatrical matters.

Rehearsals Shut Off "Pop" Concerts.

Because of a misunderstanding regarding the date for certain Liebler & Co. rehearsals, the season of Elliott Schenck's "Pop" concerts on the roof of the Century Theatre was brought to a close last night, a week earlier than was expected. All of the Liebler rehearsals are being held there, but Mr. Schenck understood that the roof would not be required until Labor Day. The Lieblers, however, had arranged to begin its use to-day. The stage of the theatre is being used for the scenery of "The Garden of Allah," and the smaller rehearsal rooms are occupied with various companies preparing for "the road," leaving only the roof for "The Blue Bird" rehearsals. There are to be several changes in the Maeterlinck play.

Algerian Dancer in "The Garden of Allah."

Mlle. Faddma, an Algerian dancer from Biskra, has been engaged by Liebler & Co. for the dance-hall scene in the production of "The Garden of Allah." Hugh Ford, who is staging the play, says she will give the real Algerian dance, and not such exaggerations as have been shown in this country.

"Louisiana Lou" Produced.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 27.—"Louisiana Lou," the new musical comedy which will begin a run at the La Salle Opera House, Chicago, a week from to-night, had its first performance at the Davidson Theatre here to-night. Milwaukee found it a sentimental comedy with pretty songs supplemented by fine costumes and attractive stage pictures.

SAN DIEGO'S CITY FARM.

Exposition Company Is Growing Flowers on It for 1915 Fair.

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 27.—Many cities have canvassed the idea of starting a municipal farm, but it has remained for this city to put one in operation.

The Panama-California International Exposition is to be held in 1915 in San Diego, and two of the principal features of this exposition are to be the floral and horticultural exhibits. When it came to consider ways and means of procuring the huge amount of flowers, vines, and trees necessary, the projectors were dismayed to find that it would be impossible to secure the quantities wanted without going to enormous expense and gathering them from every State in the Union.

Director General D. C. Collier declared that the plants would be propagated in Balboa Park in San Diego, a tract of 1,400 acres in extent, in which the Panama-California International Exposition is to be built. The city Park Commission was called in and the proposal was adopted enthusiastically.

Thousands and thousands of plants were set out. The Park Commission called on the people of the city for cuttings of every description. They were forthcoming. It took 10 men several weeks to set these out.

Thousands of trees have been set out in such a manner that when the exposition opens Jan. 1, 1915, they will form a perfect forest around the grounds. There will be 1,000,000 geraniums, which in this climate grow in profusion outdoors; 1,000,000 red roses, 1,000,000 white roses, twenty acres of California poppies, the little golden yellow beauty that grows wild all over the State; 100,000 palm trees of different varieties, the same number of black acacia, and all sorts of creeping vines and ornamental shrubs.

Opening the municipal exposition farm has had one result that was not expected. It has put all the park Superintendents on their mettle, with the result that San Diego is enjoying a wonderful exhibition of flowers.

ARRIVALS AT THE PIER.

Narragansett Visitors Are Kept Indoors by the Heavy Rain.

Special to The New York Times.

NARRAGANSETT PIER, R. I., Aug. 27.—Despite the heavy rain, a number of the cottagers took their usual dip in the surf and afterward assembled on the terrace of the Casino, where a concert by a band of musicians from New York, in addition to the usual programme by the orchestra, drew a large crowd.

Among those entertaining at luncheon were Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Coxe of Philadelphia, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Alexander of Elizabeth, N. J.; James Thompson of Baltimore, Mrs. John C. Poor of Washington, D. C., and Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Rumsey of New York.

Malcolm Stevenson of New York was host at another luncheon party, and among his guests were G. G. Amory and F. S. von Stade.

Among others who had luncheon at the Casino were Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Harrison, Harrison Tweed, Mr. and Mrs. W. Fraser Harrison, Miss Bidwell, and Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Brown.

Assembled at the small tables on the terrace were Dr. Alfred F. Hopkins, Miss Josephine Gibson, Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Mersman, P. S. P. Randolph, Jr., Ferdinand Featherstone, Warner Jones, Miss Ruth Waters, Miss Dorothy Waters, Miss Kate Penn Smith, Miss Sarah Welsh, John Welsh, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Strebeigh, Mrs. Richard Lee Morrell, George Robinson, Mrs. John C. Norris, and Benjamin K. Gatins and Dr. John E. King of Baltimore.

The Rev. Philip M. Prescott of Washington, D. C., preached this morning at St. Peter's by the Sea. The recitative and aria from Mendelssohn's "Elijah" were sung by George F. Freeman of Providence.

John H. Hanan, accompanied by Albert Church, sailed for New York to-night on the yacht Edithia II.

Mr. and Mrs. Craig Colgate, William J. Bowe, Mrs. Catherine Bowe of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Barbour of Hartford, Conn., are at the Mathewson.

Among late arrivals at the Gladstone are J. C. Cowdin, Raymond Belmont of New York, J. C. B. Woods, Maus Wheelwright of Providence, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Stowell and E. B. Stowell, Jr., of Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Reynolds, who have been at the Arlington for several weeks, returned to-day to Providence.

Charles C. Goffe and J. Raymond Boyce returned to-night to New York after a stay of several weeks at the Pier.

The final match in the series for the Raleigh Cups will be played here to-morrow between the Cooperstown team and the Meadow Brook team, who will come over from Newport.

Casino registrations include Edwin B. Smith of Philadelphia, who arrived here on the yacht Margaret to-night, accompanied by T. Murray Anderson, Nelson Catherwood, and W. O'D. Iselin of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Harrison of Philadelphia entertained at dinner to-night on the Casino terrace, and among their guests were Mr. and Mrs. W. Fraser Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Drexel Paul, Malcolm Stevenson, and C. Perry Beadleston.

Mrs. Irving Chase of Waterbury, Conn., gave a dinner to-night at the Casino.

George E. Learnard, who spent Sunday at his villa here, returned to-night to New York.

Cigarette Sets Hotel Afire.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Aug. 27.—The stub of a lighted cigarette, carelessly thrown into an open suitcase filled with light fabrics, caused a fire in the Burnet House in Vine Street, between Third and Fourth Streets. All available fire companies turned out, and the fire was extinguished with small loss. All of the guests left the building in safety and soon returned.

Found Gem Lost for Days.

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—A diamond said to be worth $1,800, which L. M. Rosencrants, a diamond merchant of Chicago, lost while in Minneapolis on his way to Seattle, some time ago, was found today while Rosencrants was again in the city on his return journey to Chicago. The gem was found in the tufts of a large leather chair in the depot waiting room. It had been for days within the reach of any person who happened to sit in the chair.

The Latest Labor Union.

The latest trade to be organized is that of the fancy umbrella handle makers. Their union will meet this week at Odd Fellows' Hall, 98 Forsyth Street, to elect officers and draw up a constitution and by-laws. Wages, the members of the union say, have been dropping for a year or two, and they believe they may be able to have them raised again through their organization.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Forbes-Robertson will begin his third season in America in "The Passing of the Third Floor Back" at the Majestic Theatre, Brooklyn, on Oct. 23.

Lawrence D'Orsay, who will star this season under the management of John Cort in "The Earl of Pawtucket," is expected on the Atlantic Transport liner Minneapolis to-day. Mr. D'Orsay has been spending two months at his home in England.

The third company of "The Gamblers" that will be sent on the road this season under the management of the Authors' Producing Company is now in rehearsal with Charles Mackay and Lillian Kemble in the leading roles. The tour will begin at Norristown, Penn., on Sept. 18.

The only newcomers that will be seen in the cast of "Pomander Walk" at Wallack's Theatre next Saturday will be Cynthia Moore as Mme. Lachesnais, Maude Milton as Mrs. Poskett, and Rosa Phillips as Ruth Pennymint.

Max Hirschfeld has been engaged by Werba & Luescher as director for Lulu Glaser's [illegible]

SHE CLIMBED DENT BLANCHE

Mme. Girard Home Again with Tale of Alpine Peril.

Among the passengers arriving yesterday on the French liner Espagne from Havre was Mme. Gabrielle Girard of Staten Island, who went across last May to take the ashes of Père Dubois, a Swiss merchant who lived in this city, back to his native land for interment.

While at Vevey Mme. Girard was eager to climb Dent Blanche, which looms up into the clouds with its snow-clad peak, nearly 14,000 feet above the town. Her friends tried to dissuade her from making the attempt without guides, ice picks, ropes, mules, and other incidentals that are said by the natives to be absolutely vital when an American wishes to leave the level of the plains.

Attired in a blue serge walking suit with low shoes, Mme. Girard started at 4 o'clock one morning to make the ascent with four guides, and reached the summit of the peak at 11:30 A. M. She was the fourth woman to climb the Dent Blanche. On the way up she was lowered by a rope over a projecting cliff so that she might gather a spray of edelweiss.

"The descent was perilous, but intensely exciting," said Mme. Girard. "The guides and I made what might be called a human chain. We slid along the ice for miles, first going to the right, and then turning to the left for another descent. Once we slid along a straight path for fifteen minutes without stopping. It was very exciting indeed."

RAISED OUR FLAG IN ALASKA.

Patrick Ford, Soldier of Many Experiences, Dies in Washington Home.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Patrick Ford, who is said to have lowered the Russian flag at Sitka in 1867 and raised the Stars and Stripes over Alaska when the United States took possession, died to-day at the Soldiers' Home in this city. He was 70 years old and had been in the United States Army since he was twenty. His life was connected with many great and stirring events.

His first enlistment was in 1852, when he went with the Third United States Infantry over the old Santa Fé trail to a post in New Mexico, where numerous battles with the Apache Indians were fought. In one of these conflicts he was seriously wounded; on another occasion during a forced march his command had only rice and a few beans for seven days.

Re-enlisting in Washington in another company at the outbreak of the civil war, he was in command of a squad of eighteen men who patrolled the headquarters on Pennsylvania Avenue of Gen. Winfield Scott, his command later being detailed to maintain the strict guard at the front of the White House. He was transferred, and with the Army of the Potomac saw many hard battles. At Antietam he was wounded, later being captured and sent to the Belle Isle and Libby prisons. After being exchanged he was made Sergeant and saw service until the close of the war, at which time he was transferred to California.

He was sent to Alaska, in 1867, with the Fourteenth Infantry. His family was with him in Alaska and one of his children, born there in 1867, was the first white child born in Alaska under the American flag.

DEATH OF E. A. HOWLAND.

Identified with the Business Development of Mount Vernon.

Edward A. Howland of 211 Second Avenue, Mount Vernon, died yesterday morning of pneumonia, following an operation in a hospital in this city. He was in his sixty-sixth year.

For many years he was engaged in the real estate and insurance business, and he leaves a considerable estate. He was Vice President of the old Taxpayers' Association, and was Secretary, Treasurer, and manager of the Mount Vernon Suburban Land Company, a member of the old Board of Trade and of the present Chamber of Commerce, had held every office in Clinton Hook and Ladder Company of Mount Vernon, and was a Trustee of the village and one of its first Aldermen when it became a city. His father, the late James Howland, was a member of the Homestead Company that settled and laid out Mount Vernon. Mr. Howland is survived by a widow and two sons.

WILLIAM H. SUMMERS DIES.

Wealthy Los Angeles Pioneer Leaves Many Eastern Relatives.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 27.—William Harvey Summers, 81 years old, who had lived in this city since 1873, died last night. Mr. Summers came here from Upper Alton, Ill., and laid the foundation for his fortune by selling candy in a small shop. He afterward went into the real estate business.

Mr. Summers was married four times. His first wife was Miranda Wheeler, an Ohio girl. The second wife was Lottie De Groot, and after her death he married her sister, Emma. Both were Los Angeles girls.

In 1900 he married the wife who survives him, Kittie Keating of Litchfield, Ill. He leaves one sister, Mrs. Dr. Garton of Upper Alton, Ill.; two nieces, Mrs. J. G. Farmer of Cedar Rapids and Mrs. Daisy Woodbury of Burlington, Iowa, and two nephews, Charles Garton of Philadelphia and Will Garton of Brooklyn.

PROF. CURTIS DIES ON BOAT.

Instructor in Greek at Yale Stricken with Heart Disease.

ROCKLAND, Me., Aug. 27.—Prof. Edward L. Curtis, instructor in Greek at Yale Divinity School, and until recently Acting Dean of the school, died on the Boston boat on the way to this city from Castine, last night. His body was brought ashore here to-day and the remains were shipped to New Haven by train to-night. Death was due to an acute attack of heart disease.

Prof. Curtis was 57 years of age and a native of Ann Arbor, Mich. He was the son of the Rev. William Stanton Curtis, who was at one time President of Knox College, and was later connected with Hamilton College and the University of Michigan. Previous to assuming the Chair of Greek at Yale, twenty years ago, Prof. Curtis taught in the McCormick Theological School at Chicago. He was graduated from Yale in 1874 and studied two years at Berlin.

A widow, one son, and three daughters survive. The family had been spending the Summer at Castine.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION

At the lower level to which stocks declined last week more resistance appeared to offer to the pressure which was put upon prices, but beyond this fact the record of the week afforded but little encouragement to those who had hoped that the recovery which had set in the previous week would be carried further. The Stock Exchange resumed business at the beginning of last week under the favorable influence of the settlement of the British labor troubles, but so far from finding incentive in that for a further rise in prices the market under renewed liquidation and in response to further bear operations dragged downward to new low prices for the year. By the close of the week every one of the active stocks, with the exception of Atchison, sold down to the lowest prices reached in 1911. Other favorable developments of the week, including the adjournment of Congress, called forth no more response from the market than had the settlement of the labor troubles abroad. This was partly due to the fact that other incidents of adverse import were regarded as outweighing the favorable developments, and partly it was the result of the general temper of the market which continued under the depression of discouragement in influential banking quarters, which has been one of the most striking features of the situation which has confronted the security markets this past month. The factors responsible for this feeling of discouragement have not been eliminated, cannot, indeed, be eliminated, except by a slow process of readjustment, and herein apparently lies the underlying explanation of the continued unsettlement of the market. But declines in security values in the long run bring their own cure, so to speak, for there comes a time when the public at large, the people who buy stocks, not to sell them at a profit the next day or the next week, but who buy to keep, gradually come to the view that prices have discounted all the adverse influences, and when that point is reached any further depression by bearish operations of traders invites speedy recovery. There was some indication last week that less long stock in proportion to the volume of the transactions was coming into the market than during the earlier weeks of the decline, but there was lacking proof that general buying of stocks was proceeding in any large volume. There was enough in the way of actually unfavorable developments and enough uncertainty attaching to the immediate future to hold buying in check.

At the outset of the week attention was drawn to the effect which light traffic is having on railroad expenditures for maintenance, by the publication of the news that the Harriman Lines were adopting a policy of retrenchment which calls for the laying off of several thousand men. This was followed by a recrudescence of strike threats by the machinists employed on the Union and Southern Pacific Lines, and this factor became one of the important elements in the market situation. The fear of a strike on these lines was necessarily disturbing, although a calm view of the situation suggests the improbability of the men carrying out the threat which they have made. When the Union Pacific management, over three weeks ago, definitely refused the demands of the men, it was prepared to face a strike if necessary. Indeed the officers of the road expected that their refusal of the men's demands would result in an immediate strike, but over three weeks have gone by and the men have not struck, and, meanwhile, the roads have had all this time to strengthen their position and conversely to weaken the position of the dissatisfied employes. It was only a question of time when the repeated demands of railroad employes for increased wages would bring the railroads to the point at which they would have to face the issue. Up to the present the railroads in recent years have given in even to demands which were considered exorbitant, rather than take the chance of a strike. The Union Pacific has taken the lead in departing from this policy, and by doing so has, it may well be said, put a check on a tendency the inevitable result of which would have been reduction in railroad dividends, if not in the case of the Union Pacific, at least in the case of some railroads less fortunately situated. The influence which probably proved the deciding factor in the decision made by the Union Pacific to resist these latest demands was the rate reductions ordered in the Spokane case. To have granted the demands made by their machinists would have cost the Harriman Lines, according to estimates of officers of the road, about $5,000,000 a year. That is perhaps five times the loss that is expected from the Spokane rate reductions, but the two together would represent close to 3 per cent. on the Union Pacific's common stock. Not all of the Southern Pacific's loss, of course, would be reflected in the Union Pacific earnings, but the proportion which the loss in earnings bears to the capital stock of the Union Pacific illustrates strikingly just where the demands of the employes was leading. In taking the stand which it has taken, the Union Pacific is doing service, not only to its own security holders, but to those of all the other railroads as well, for the present margin over dividends in the case of many roads is too scant to be impaired by wholesale increases in wages.

The importance of meeting this issue is all the greater at this time, when it is evident that one of the influences at work in the security market is the fear that prevailing dividends on railroad stocks cannot be uniformly maintained. Such is the clear meaning of the prices at which some standard railroad stocks are selling, and it may even be said in the case of some of them that they have gone far in the recent decline toward discounting a reduction from the present rate of dividends. Some roads have entered upon the new fiscal year with less assurance of earning their dividends than they had at the outset of the past fiscal year, and as the record for the period shows the surplus in some instances proved uncomfortably small. The new fiscal year is still young, and profits may yet be increased, but it is clear that present conditions offer no warrant for assuming increased burdens in the shape of larger compensation to employes. This, too, is considering the question altogether apart from the fact that in the Union Pacific case the demands for increased wages and the threat of strike are being made in defiance of agreements previously made between the road and its men, and which still have months to run.

The exactions of organized labor, and the fact that labor has not been liquidated since the 1907 panic, which resulted in liquidation in other directions, has been one of the unfavorable factors in underlying conditions, and this factor would have been accentuated by any further concessions made to railroad employes at this time. Reduction in the present rate of railroad wages is not likely in the absence of depression greater than any now prevailing or any that is feared, but an indirect liquidation of labor within moderate limits may yet be accomplished through an increase in efficiency, the production, in other words, of more work for the same pay, which is equivalent to a reduction in the rate of wages. Such increase in efficiency may be prompted by such incidents as the firm refusal of the Harriman Lines to allow further concessions in wages and the laying off of many thousand men by those lines. There are thus favorable as well as unfavorable elements in the situation which is now being met by the Harriman Lines, and which concerns not them alone, but all the railroads of the country.

With the approach of the time for the publication of the Government cotton and general crop reports, the former due on Friday of this week, attention is likely to be directed to a greater extent than in the recent past to the condition of the crops as a factor in the stock market. The hope is still entertained that the crop report will show improvement particularly in corn over the indications of the August reports, while the generally entertained belief is that the extraordinarily good promise of the August cotton report will be reduced by little if any more than the normal August deterioration, which would still leave assurance of this crop of cotton being the largest which the country has ever raised. The harvesting of this cotton crop is already well under way, as the heavy receipts at primary points attest. This and the harvesting of other crops find reflection in the increased demand for freight cars shown in the fortnightly bulletin of the American Railway Association issued on Saturday. Between Aug. 2 and Aug. 16 there was a reduction of over 24,000 in the number of idle cars. Thus are the crops, even though as a whole they have fallen short of the expectations entertained at the outset of the season, increasing the traffic on the railroads. The crops indeed are good enough, and they would promise much more for general trade this Fall and Winter than they actually do promise were it not for the uneasiness and discouragement which ill-judged political activities have inflicted upon business.

THE MARKETS OF EUROPE

SLUMP ON BERLIN BOERSE.

Bankers Get Some Comfort When Paris Continued Heavy Credits.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 27.—Typical war panic conditions prevailed on the Berlin Boerse last week. Circumstantial reports of the imminence of Franco-German hostilities over Morocco precipitated a slump in all issues, notably imperial German loans and leading German industrials. Phoenix iron shares declined over six points.

The pessimism caused by the uncertain political situation was aggravated by unfavorable reports from the American steel and iron market and by falling prices on the New York Stock Exchange. Canadian Pacifics again experienced a heavy decline.

The only agreeable symptom of a particularly gloomy week was the prospect of a renewal of the Atlantic shipping pool, which caused a slight rise in German shipping shares.

The banking world extracted some comfort from the announcement that French banks have decided to prolong heavy credits which they extend to German houses. This is interpreted as a certain indication that the Franco-German war is regarded as remote by Parisian authorities.

LONDON MARKET DEMORALIZED.

Moroccan Situation Caused More Worry Than English Strike.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—Firmness prevailed in the money market during the earlier part of the week, but a distinctly weaker tendency now prevails. Scarcely was the railway strike settled when Morocco cropped up again.

Probably the Stock Exchange would have paid less attention to the scaremongers had there been plenty to do, but in idle times nervousness quickly develops, and at one period during the week Morocco seemed likely to accomplish what the strike apparently could not—complete demoralization of the market.

Then the slump in Americans did not help matters, for a bad American market very often means all-round depression. Under the circumstances, therefore, it is not surprising that the approaching settlement is viewed with some anxiety.

On the other hand, the Bank of England's position grows stronger each week, and with the Moroccan situation improving, there seems no reason to look for any radical alteration in present conditions for some time to come.

SLACK BUSINESS IN PARIS.

More Cheerful Feeling Over the Moroccan Situation.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 27.—The diplomatic negotiations over the Moroccan question, being regarded in a favorable light, the atmosphere on the Bourse was more cheerful toward the end of the week.

Slack business of any kind remains, however, the principal feature, and price fluctuations almost entirely depend upon advices from New York and London.

The settlement near at hand is another factor against the market closing firm. American stocks were depressed.

MARKET IS ACTIVE IN FINISHED STEEL

Mills in Pittsburgh District Running at 85 to 90 Per Cent. of Maximum Capacity.

SHADE TIN PLATE PRICES

Enormous Stocks of Ore Brought Down the Lakes This Summer—Pig Iron Output Larger.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 27.—The pace set by finished steel operations in the Pittsburgh district at the middle of the month was maintained last week. Mills in this district operated at 85 to 90 per cent. of maximum capacity, which was about 10 per cent. better than the rate of operations maintained at the mills further west. The preponderance of Eastern and export business in the tonnage now being rolled is responsible for the reversal of last Winter's situation as regards East and West.

The slight falling off in orders during the past week has not weighed on the minds of the leaders of the trade, being generally ascribed to the prevalence of the August vacation habit. August's shipments have shown that the consumptive capacity of the country is good, for the material bought and delivered during the Summer evidently has been barely sufficient to meet midsummer requirements, stocks all along the line being lower than before the July holidays. With the opening of September some increase is naturally to be expected in consumption.

There has been much discussion over the figure the railroads would cut in the buying movement in the Fall. It is a question whether the steel trade has not been underestimating the buying the railroads have been doing during the Summer. [illegible] car interests in the Pittsburgh district have been running at more than [illegible] per cent. of capacity, all on the most expensive steel car construction. The railroads are not buying as many new cars, but those purchased are of a costlier and more permanent type.

[illegible] systems, the Erie and the Pennsylvania, aggregated $5,200,000.

Although the Carnegie rail mills here are running for the most part on export business, orders for standard Bessemer rails for domestic delivery, placed with local manufacturers during the week, aggregated 13,000 tons. Inquiries by Eastern roads for open-hearth rails, which were pending at the close of the week, called for 22,000 tons.

Shading on Tin Plate.

Sharp competition for forward business is largely to blame for the present ragged prices in finished steel. Producers have grown apprehensive over the continued reluctance of the trade to buy for forward delivery. The shading that has developed in tin plate is practically all on forward contracts, the mills being fairly well sold up to the end of the present quarter. A number of the larger independent producers of tin plate are willing to sell for deliveries from Oct. 1 through the first quarter of next year at $3.60, which is 10 cents under the official price.

This concession applies, of course, only to attractive business, but the offering of concessions through the entire Winter indicates the desire of the mills to accumulate some "back-log" business on books. Considerable buying of tin plate has been closed for deliveries after Jan. 1.

While steel bars and all grades of merchant steel show looser prices, with maximum shading of $2 a ton, prices on refined iron bars have firmed up slightly, partly because of the increased railroad demand with the close of the Summer, and the better operation of tool plants, machine shops, and foundries. Equipment concerns are much busier than during the Spring, the amount of industrial extensions now under way aggregating almost double last Spring's new work.

The greatest price irregularity probably is to be found in sheets, black sheets showing shading of $2 a ton and over and galvanized $1 to $1.50 a ton. The sheet steel industry is clearly being overbuilt, and there is spirited bidding for contracts which will run through the Winter.

Crude Steel Shipped East.

Crude steel demand will continue good throughout September, some of the finishing mills already having begun specifying on their fourth quarter contracts as a result of having underestimated their needs for the third quarter. Some crude steel was shipped East by Pittsburg [illegible] that has not happened since the [illegible] of June. Crude steel prices [illegible] firm, the shading thus far reported having been all by [illegible]. There are no [illegible] at the steel mills, and the [illegible] for September will be immediately reflected in the [illegible]. Merchant stocks of foundry and Bessemer pig iron, held by the furnaces in the Valley region, have [illegible] strong hands. Two or three idle merchant furnaces are likely to go into blast on foundry iron within the next thirty days. Prices are unchanged. The last important business in foundry iron was the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Company's purchases, which aggregated 12,000 tons, after almost ten days' buying, in large and small lots, for deliveries of thirty days to four months. That interest now has its needs covered up to the first of the year. Beyond Jan. 1 the furnace interests of this entire section refuse to quote. Prices for prompt foundry grades are unchanged—on the basis of $13.50, furnace, for No. 2 foundry, and $13 for forge.

The last important business in basic iron was the series of three purchases a fortnight ago, which showed a steady price of $13, Valley furnaces, for prompt delivery or fourth quarter. Bessemer iron remains undisturbed in its position at $15, Valley furnaces, with the Steel Corporation influence solidly arrayed to support that price on account of the large tonnage of steel billet contracts on a sliding scale basis, governed by Bessemer iron monthly averages.

Pig Iron Output Greater.

Steel Corporation furnaces are turning out a larger amount of pig iron this month than at any time since they began curtailing last February, at which time they were loaded up with considerable stocks. The Steel Corporation has brought down the lakes enormous stocks of ore this year, notwithstanding the fact that the stocks of last season's ore at many Steel Corporation plants were sufficient to last past midsummer. At the present rate at which ore is being brought down, the Steel Corporation soon will find itself with a full year's supply of ore at the lower end of the lakes—unless there is a very heavy resumption of business between now and Winter.

The revival in the Connellsville coke regions has reached the point where it has caused a shortage of labor—although the ovens in operation represent just two-thirds of the total available capacity of the region. This fact furnishes an object lesson of the tremendous exodus of foreign workmen from the Connellsville region since the short boom of 1909, when every plant in the region ran for six months to its highest capacity.

The weekly rate of output in the Connellsville region has gained 40,000 tons in a month. For the week ended Aug. 19 the total production was 313,700 tons, against 270,700 tons for the week ended July 15. Shipments for the week ended Aug. 19 were 9,053 cars, as against 8,800 cars for the week ended Aug. 12.

WHEAT GOES UPWARD AS FROST APPEARS

Inferior Grading, Fall in Winter Wheat Receipts, and Russian Scarcity Are Other Factors.

The wheat market has displayed a lack of interest during the week, and a narrowness of fluctuations, which has been extremely disappointing to both bulls and bears. Prices slowly drifted off about 1¼ cents and then slowly rallied. The news did not seem to have any effect on speculation. Buyers and sellers were conspicuous by absence in all the markets.

In the American Northwest the weather conditions were fairly favorable and new Spring wheat is beginning to move with some freedom. The quality of the wheat is inferior and only about 10 per cent. of the arrivals are grading contract. The movement is expected to increase naturally but there is distinct difference of opinion as to the extent of the marketing. Views on the American Spring wheat crop are greatly at variance still. One estimate was put out during the week of only 102,000,000 bushels for the three States while others are as high as 170,000,000 bushels, and the general estimates are around 135,000,000 to 165,000,000 bushels, against 177,000,000 bushels last year.

In Winter wheat there has been a further falling off in the volume of receipts. There was a decrease during the week of about 300,000 bushels from the previous week, and the total was 8,000,000 bushels less than last year. The interior shipment showed a million bushels decrease for the week, but were about the same as for last year. Exports from Atlantic ports decreased about a million bushels for the week. There seems to be a considerable holding tendency on the part of farmers. Plowing for the new crop is progressing well and advices indicate as large an area as last year and possibly some increase.

In the Canadian Northwest, the weather conditions up to the close of the week were in the main favorable. There was a little frost scare early, but the frost did not prove to be severe. On Saturday there was another frost scare, and the Manitoba market was 1¼c a bushel higher. Harvesting is in full swing in the Canadian Northwest, and it is believed that only a moderate amount of wheat would be injured by frost. The Canadian Pacific crop report estimates the total wheat crop at 183,000,000 bushels for the three provinces, oats 170,000,000 bushels, barley 28,000,000 bushels, and flax 8,000,000 bushels. Lyle estimated the crop at 175,000,000 bushels. Last year the crop was officially reported at 120,000,000 bushels, and the Grain Dealers' Association made it 104,000,000 bushels.

In Europe the markets have been very steady, with some evidence of a hardening tendency to prices. The world's exports of wheat are not large, and there is possibly a little uneasiness over the question of supplies. This uneasiness is not, however, very pronounced. The new crop of wheat in Western Europe is moving with freedom, and owing to the very dry conditions at harvest it is in unusually good milling shape. The attitude of foreign buyers seems to be influenced just at present by the crop reports from Manitoba, and the offerings of wheat from Russia. All recent advices tend to confirm a deficient crop in Russia, and it is not being offered with any great freedom. Two estimates of the world's crop were made during the week—one by Broomhall of Liverpool was 16,000,000 bushels less than last year, and one by Beerbohm of London of about 40,000,000 bushels under last year. These estimates make the world's crop approximately 3,500,000,000 bushels. This year's crop is the third biggest in succession, the three crops ranging from 3,500,000,000 to 3,550,000,000 bushels, and exceed all previous records.

CORN.

The situation in the corn market has been of rather limited speculative interest this week, with narrow movement of values. There has been no disposition to operate with any freedom in futures, and the movement of corn has not been such as to influence operations materially. The weather conditions have been more favorable. There have been further rains during the week. The rains were the heaviest of the Summer, and the most general. While early corn is said to be injured beyond recovery, and is expected to be a relatively short crop, late corn is generally believed to be in fairly good shape, and the weather conditions have made for improvement if there is any change at all. The advices regarding the promise for the crop are much mixed. Bulls are claiming that the Government report will tend to confirm the short crop estimates, but there is a well-defined opinion that the weather conditions for the month have meant actual improvement in the promise of the crop. A good many are confident that the results will be from 200 to 300 million bushels more than the August first Government indications.

The situation in the feedstuffs market is a very unusual one this year. Not only is the American supply of feedstuffs short, including corn, oats, hay, barley, and the forage and pasturage crops, but the European feedstuff supplies have also been seriously hurt by the great heat and drought of the Summer. The Argentine corn was a practical failure. To what extent this will influence demand for American feedstuffs is as yet uncertain, but the European situation is so serious that recently the German Government reduced the freight rates on feedstuffs 50 per cent. on the Government railroads. There is some export business doing in corn all the time.

OATS.

The market has been very steady, with prices influenced by decreasing receipts of oats West and steadiness in the cash markets. Although the receipts are much lighter than last year, the visible supply for the past week showed a relatively much larger increase than a year ago, indicating some restriction in distribution. The Government report on oats is not expected to show much change from the last report. Reports on the Canadian crop are quite favorable. Popular estimates of the Canadian crop are fifty to a hundred million bushels more than last year, when the outturn was about 286,000,000 bushels, out of which the exports were 3,000,000 bushels.

PROVISIONS.

The market for hog products has shown a slow, hardening tendency. The movement of hogs has been small at the West, and while prices have been disturbed a little by the reports of sporadic cases of hog cholera, the influence of the reports was not great. The holding of live stock on the part of the country seems to be quite persistent, and all kinds of live stock are moving moderately. The lard market has been influenced to some extent by the general strength in all edible fats, and a material rise in cottonseed oil, cocoanut oil, and in butter fats of all kinds. The European situation is a very unusual one this year. There is a short crop of feedstuffs, and also a short crop of edible fats. Recently Europe has been a buyer in American markets, and exports of lard and all edible fats have greatly increased over last year.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The upward trend of cottonseed oil values was unabated during the past week, with the movement marked by heavy trading in the future market, thought to represent a reduction in the outstanding short interest. The situation relating to underlying conditions did not change radically, and it was evident that the slow policy of farmers in disposing of their seed was directly restricting business in new crop crude oil, and consequently hedge pressure was light. The cotton situation, although a factor of great importance, did not enter into the market as a potent influence, the general disposition being to view the outlook in an optimistic light. Incidentally, the bulls on the oil situation are not discrediting claims of a bumper yield, generally adhering to their assertions that higher prices are warranted by the anticipated increase in consumptive demand at present levels, and that values have already discounted the possibilities of a record production.

Export inquiry was good, with home consuming demand fair, but apparently checked by the rapid gain in values, which amounted to from 1 to 2 cents a gallon, and represented advances since the low of the season of approximately 4 to 5 cents a gallon. A surprising feature of the recent advance has been the disproportionate gains of the near positions, as during the height of the bear campaign it was asserted that the carryover of oil and the combined effects of the early movement of cotton with bright crop prospects would result in large discounts for the nearby options. Slow marketing of new oil, however, and good control of the carryover served to upset these calculations and shorts have had difficulty in evening up commitments.

As levels approach 6c, however, much conservatism is being noted, as it is realized that the consumptive demand of cottonseed oil will depend largely upon the levels of prices, with inflation tending to check the inquiry. Moreover, a sustained advancing market at this time, unless cotton crop prospects decline materially, would be rather unusual, as with movement of new cotton cottonseed will accumulate and hedge pressure increase.

COTTON.

In absence of conclusive information as to the final development of the cotton plant, speculation showed a further diminution during the week. It was apparent, however, that bullish messages predominated, and that the crop in the South was undergoing at least normal deterioration for the month of August, while the disposition on the part of many authorities to make due allowances for usual exaggeration in private crop accounts, tended to minimize the importance of some of the more sensational advices at hand. Beneficial rains were recorded in various sections of Texas, but shedding, insect damage, and an overabundance of rainfall was complained of elsewhere.

On Friday, Sept. 1, the Government will issue its report, and guesses as to its probable showing vary from a condition of 73 to a probable showing of 80 per cent. On July 25 the condition was 89.1 per cent., and if average deterioration of about 6½ per cent. was shown the prospects would be unusually fine. However, it is generally conceded that more than the normal depreciation in conditions has occurred during the month, it being a matter of conjecture as to the extent of the deterioration above the normal. The fact is noteworthy that the National Ginners' Association was credited with a report of 76 per cent., with rumors later stating that a Government condition of 74 was being forecasted. Other private estimates were less sensational, foreshadowing a decline in condition of possibly 8 to 11 points. Last year the Government made the condition 72.1 in its September report. The greatest production recorded was in the crop year of 1904, when the Government made the condition 76.1 at this period of the year. The outturn of that season was close on to 14,000,000 bales when the area picked was 32,444,000 acres. It will be remembered that the area planted this season was approximately 35,000,000 acres, and the benefits of the high state of cultivation that has been given to the crop are practically everywhere apparent. To date the reports of abandonment in acreage have been relatively insignificant, and the amount of cotton to be replanted is also said to be of unusually unimportant proportions. With these features, therefore, it is obvious that the cotton crop of this year can undergo considerably more than the customary deterioration of 6½ per cent. for the month of August, and still yield an outturn unprecedented. The frost date is still an unknown quantity, but relative to this the knowledge that the plant is from 1 to over 2 weeks earlier than last season tends to lessen apprehension at this time.

Despite the belief, however, in a majority of quarters that the coming report when diagnosed carefully will be bearish, the complaints of recent date have prompted scattered short covering, and it was thought to be significant that pressure from the South subsided materially. On the other hand, it was difficult to awaken fresh demand in the speculative market, which seemed to give the impression that the buying accountable for the recent upturn was of a precautionary nature. The technical position of the market is looked upon as strong but confidence reigns among bears. An incident not favorably alluded to during the week by advocates either of higher or lower prices was the intervention of Southern politics into the situation. This took the form of a mild denunciation directed against the recent official Government reports, it being intimated that the figures given were antagonistic to the welfare of the Southern farmer and of material assistance to local bears. Obviously assertions or insinuations of such a character are unwarranted. It is indubitable that the Government furnishes, to the best of its ability, an accurate impression of actual conditions as they seem with unbiased returns imperative. The aggressiveness of these certain Southern statesmen was not without a little effect, however, as it was thought that possibly the officials engaged in the compilation of the coming Government report may be influenced to a minor extent. Moreover, the "Farmers' Union" was again advising the holding of cotton for 15 cents, but this holding advice lacks novelty, being a yearly occurrence, and is not recognized generally as an important factor. In the end it will be probably convincingly proved that supply and demand conditions alone can regulate values of the raw material, so that impulsive expostulations will have only temporary effect, and incidentally what more suitable method of ascertaining the intrinsic worth of the raw material can be had than our own Exchanges, where both consumer and producer is on an equal footing? Of course the gathering of information for the purpose of arriving at actual crop conditions has unfortunately not as yet been facilitated by scientific methods, so as to totally eliminate the possibility of erroneous reports, and therefore the plea for "accuracy," &c., is well based. However, it is to be assumed that the methods of computing crop conditions operate both ways, and on this account it would seem as though milling interests (who contrast conspicuously with prosperity) have been subjected to a partial injustice.

The trade situation in this country has undergone but little deviation from its recent course, and slow improvement in the amount of business is manifest, although this is still at the expense of prices in certain grades of dry goods. The favorable part of these reductions is their stimulus to the inquiry, while at the same time the continued curtailment, which is now extremely heavy, serves to reduce stocks and to make for healthier fundamental conditions.

MASTER'S SALES.

NOTICE OF SALE.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE United States for the Northern District of New York.—EBEN H. GAY and JOSEPH W. JACKSON, Complainants, against HUDSON RIVER ELECTRIC POWER COMPANY, Hudson River Water Power Company, Hudson River Electric Company, Hudson River Power Transmission Company, Ballston Spa Light & Power Company, Saratoga Gas, Electric Light & Power Company, Empire State Power Company, and Madison County Gas & Electric Company, Defendants.—In Equity.—Consolidated Foreclosure Cause.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that pursuant to a decree entered in the above-entitled consolidated foreclosure cause in equity, dated the 13th day of July, 1911, and duly entered and filed in the office of the Clerk of the United States Circuit Court for the Northern District of New York, at Utica, N. Y., on the 14th day of July, 1911, I, the undersigned, Special Master appointed in and by said decree to make the sales hereinafter mentioned, will on the [illegible] day of August, 1911, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon of that day at the main entrance of the County Court House in the Village of Ballston Spa, County of Saratoga, State of New York, offer for sale and sell at public auction to the highest bidder or bidders therefor, upon the terms and conditions prescribed in said decree and upon the terms and conditions herein set forth, the property and premises, real, personal, and mixed, rights, privileges, and franchises hereinafter and in the mortgages foreclosed in and by said decree more fully described, to wit: Mortgage made by the Hudson River Water Power Company to The Trust Company of America, as Trustee, dated the 15th day of November, 1899, and the mortgages supplemental thereto, securing an authorized issue of $2,000,000 of bonds; Mortgage made by Hudson River Electric Company to the Morton Trust Company, as Trustee, dated the 18th day of December, 1901, and the mortgage supplemental thereto, securing an authorized issue of $3,000,000 of bonds; Collateral Mortgage made by Hudson River Water Power Company to the Morton Trust Company, as Trustee, dated the 19th day of July, 1902, securing the guaranty by the Hudson River Water Power Company of the payment of the principal and interest of the aforesaid $3,000,000 of bonds of the Hudson River Electric Company; Mortgage made by the Hudson River Electric Power Company to Knickerbocker Trust Company, as Trustee, dated the 2d day of January, 1904, and the mortgage supplemental thereto, securing an authorized issue of $5,000,000 of bonds; Collateral Mortgage made by Hudson River Water Power Company to the Knickerbocker Trust Company, as Trustee, dated the 8th day of April, 1905, securing the guaranty by the Hudson River Water Power Company of the payment of the principal and interest of the aforesaid $5,000,000 of bonds of the Hudson River Electric Power Company; Refunding Mortgage made by the Hudson River Power Transmission Company to the Knickerbocker Trust Company, as Trustee, dated the 15th day of June, 1905, securing an authorized issue of $1,250,000 of Refunding Bonds, of which $750,000 in face value are outstanding; Mortgage made by Saratoga Gas, Electric Light & Power Company to the New York Security & Trust Company, (now known as The New York Trust Company,) as Trustee, dated the 1st day of February, 1897, securing an authorized issue of $200,000 of bonds, of which $123,500 in face value are now outstanding; First Mortgage made by Madison County Gas & Electric Company to the North American Trust Company, (now known as The Trust Company of America,) as Trustee, dated the 1st day of January, 1902, securing an authorized issue of $200,000 of bonds; First Consolidated Mortgage made by Madison County Gas & Electric Company to the North American Trust Company, (now known as The Trust Company of America,) as Trustee, dated the 1st day of August, 1904, securing an authorized issue of $500,000 of bonds, of which $50,000 in face value are now outstanding; excepting however therefrom the properties of the Madison County Gas and Electric Company, which will be sold at another time and place as hereinafter provided.

The several properties hereby respectively noticed for sale will be sold subject to all taxes, assessments, and other public charges chargeable upon the said respective properties prior to the lien of the mortgages on said respective properties foreclosed by the terms of said decree, and each and all of the aforesaid respective properties will be sold subject also to any mortgages which are prior in lien thereon to the respective liens and respective mortgages foreclosed in the aforesaid consolidated cause, existing in favor of any person or persons, corporation or corporations, not a party to the said consolidated cause, or to any of the causes arising upon the bills or cross-bills of foreclosure consolidated herein. A statement of the approximate amounts and general character of said prior liens or encumbrances will be read at the sale. The properties sold hereunder upon the foreclosure of the Refunding Mortgage of the Hudson River Power Transmission Company will be sold subject to the prior and superior mortgage of the Hudson River Power Transmission Company made to The Mercantile Trust Company, as Trustee, dated March 15th, 1898, to secure an authorized issue of $500,000 in face value of bonds, all of which are now outstanding.

It shall be a condition of the sale of each of the properties, real and personal, described herein and hereby offered for sale, that the purchaser or purchasers shall, as a part of the consideration for such sale and in addition to the price bid, assume and pay all sums, if any, required to pay and discharge any and all claims that shall be finally determined by said Court, upon interventions filed by any creditor, other than a bondholder, of any of said mortgagor companies, to have a lien superior in rank to the lien of the respective mortgages; Provided, however, that such claims shall be asserted herein by intervention filed on or before the 21st day of August, 1911, otherwise such claims not so asserted shall be barred from participation in the benefits in said decree provided. The said purchaser or purchasers shall also assume all pending, uncompleted and not fully executed contracts in respect to such property so purchased, whether leasehold or otherwise, made in the name of the respective companies, by the Receivers since their appointment in the creditors' bill in equity on the 31st day of October, 1908, or in the foreclosure causes thereafter instituted therein, or made by the said Receivers in their own names as Receivers, for the operation, maintenance and betterment of the respective plants and systems operated by such Receivers as a going concern, and shall also assume liability for all claims in tort or for negligence of the Receivers, or their agents, servants or employees, whether in suit or presented or not, arising during the period of operation of the respective plants by said Receivers appointed by said Court, which shall not have been paid and discharged by said Receivers by the time of the delivery of the deed under said sale to the purchaser or purchasers, or his or their assigns or successors.

In the event that such purchaser or purchasers shall refuse after written demand made to perform any such contract or to discharge any such indebtedness, obligation, or liability, the person or persons holding the claim therefor may, upon fifteen (15) days' notice to such purchaser or purchasers, their successor or successors, assign or assigns, file his or their petition in said Circuit Court to have such claim enforced against the respective property aforesaid in accordance with the usual practice of said Circuit Court. And such purchaser or purchasers, and his or their successor or successors, assign or assigns, shall have the right to appear and make defense to any claim, debt or demand so sought to be enforced, and either party shall have the right to appeal from any judgment, decree or order made thereon. Jurisdiction of said cause is retained by the said Circuit Court for the purpose of enforcing the foregoing provisions in said decree contained, and the said Circuit Court reserves the right to re-take and re-sell said respective properties in case the purchaser or purchasers, his or their successors or assigns, shall fail to comply with any order of the said Circuit Court in respect to the performance of such contract or the payment of such indebtedness, obligation or liability within thirty (30) days after service of a certified copy of such order. No purchaser will be held personally liable under Article XXII. of said decree for any unpaid indebtedness of the Receivers or for any work done or materials furnished under any unfinished contract, except such as shall have been done or furnished after the delivery of possession of the properties sold to such purchaser and with his consent. Subject to that exception, the said method in said decree provided for enforcing the liability of the purchaser for the unpaid indebtedness and other obligations of the Receivers or for their unfinished contracts shall be exclusive of all other remedies.

The purchaser or purchasers of the said properties, or any of the said parcels, shall be deemed to have purchased all contracts, including those for the sale of light, heat, and power made by the respective mortgagor companies prior to the appointment of the Receivers on October 31, 1908, unless the said purchaser or purchasers shall, within six months after confirmation of the sale or sales hereunder, file in said Circuit Court with the Clerk thereof an election in writing not to take or assume such of said contracts as are specifically set forth in said election; and no performance of any such contract by such purchaser or purchasers before the expiration of said period of six months shall be deemed to be or construed to be an acceptance of any such contract.

Any party to said consolidated cause, or any holder of any of the bonds or coupons secured by any of the mortgages therein foreclosed, may purchase at such sale and may hold the property purchased in his, its or their own right free from any trust or right of redemption.

The said sale or sales will be made to the highest bidder, upon the conditions in said decree set forth and upon the following terms and conditions:

(a) The Special Master will accept no bids for the properties less than the minimum sums respectively assigned to the several properties as hereinafter set forth, which minimum sums are by said decree fixed by the Court in order to prevent a sacrifice and to protect the interests of all concerned, as the least sums for which said properties shall be respectively sold, unless the said Circuit Court shall hereafter otherwise order. The properties to be sold under the foreclosure of the aforesaid mortgage, made by the Hudson River Water Power Company, dated November 15th, 1899, and the mortgages supplemental thereto, and the Collateral Mortgages of said Hudson River Water Power Company, dated respectively July 19th, 1902 and April 8th, 1905, will be offered for sale in two parcels and bids invited respectively therefor. One of said parcels, in said decree described as the First Parcel, is that part of the property of the Hudson River Water Power Company which is in said decree adjudged to be subject to the First Mortgage lien of the said mortgage of the Hudson River Electric Company to the Morton Trust Company, as Trustee, and for such parcel no bid will be received at less than the minimum sum of $[illegible]0,000; and no bid will be received from any bidder for said parcel who shall not first deposit with the Special Master the sum of $2,100. The other of said two parcels is all the rest, residue and remainder of the property of the Hudson River Water Power Company subject to said mortgage of the Hudson River Water Power Company to The Trust Company of America, and for such parcel no bid will be received at less than the minimum sum of $1,950,000. No bid will be received from any bidder for such parcel who shall not first deposit with the Special Master the sum of $80,000.

(b) The properties directed to be sold under the foreclosure of the said mortgage made by the Hudson River Electric Company to the Morton Trust Company, as Trustee, dated December 18th, 1901, and the mortgage supplemental thereto, which are not embraced within the properties offered under the foregoing subdivision (a) and the following subdivision (c) hereof, will be offered for sale in one parcel as an entirety, and bids invited therefor at not less than the minimum sum of $1,000,000. No bid will be received from any bidder for such property who shall not deposit with the Special Master the sum of $46,800.

(c) The properties directed to be sold under the foreclosure of the said mortgage, made by the Hudson River Electric Power Company to the Knickerbocker Trust Company, as Trustee, and the mortgage supplemental thereto, which are not embraced within the properties offered under the foregoing subdivision (a) hereof, will be offered for sale in three parcels, and bids invited respectively therefor. One of said parcels is that portion of the property of the Hudson River Electric Power Company adjudged to be subject to the prior lien thereon of the mortgage of the Hudson River Electric Company to the Morton Trust Company, as Trustee, dated December 18th, 1901, more specifically described in the First Parcel of Article XXVIII. of said decree, and for such parcel no bid will be received at less than the minimum sum of $20,000. No bid will be received from any bidder for such parcel, which is designated as said First Parcel, who shall not first deposit with the Special Master the sum of $1,000. The second of the said parcels is the property, and right, title and interest of said Receivers of the Hudson River Electric Power Company therein and thereto, known as the Willock Block, in the City of Pittsburg, State of Pennsylvania, and no bids will be received for such parcel at less than the minimum sum of $5,000. No bid will be received from any bidder for such parcel who shall not first deposit with the Special Master the sum of $300. The third of said parcels is all the rest, residue and remainder of the properties of the Hudson River Electric Power Company subject to its said mortgage, not hereinabove in subdivision (c) hereof otherwise provided for, and for such parcel no bid will be received at less than the minimum sum of $975,000. No bid will be received from any bidder for such parcel who shall not first deposit with the Special Master the sum of $45,000.

(d) The properties to be sold under the foreclosure of the said Refunding Mortgage made by the Hudson River Power Transmission Company to the Knickerbocker Trust Company, as Trustee, will be offered for sale in one parcel as an entirety, and bids invited therefor at not less than the minimum sum of $450,000. No bid will be received from any bidder for such property who shall not first deposit with the Special Master the sum of $21,000.

(e) The properties to be sold under the foreclosure of the mortgage made by the Saratoga Gas, Electric Light & Power Company to the said New York Security & Trust Company, (now known as The New York Trust Company,) as Trustee, will be offered for sale in one parcel as an entirety, and bids invited therefor at not less than the minimum sum of $90,000. No bid will be received from any bidder for said property who shall not first deposit with the Special Master the sum of $4,200.

The Special Master, after having so offered the said properties separately, will then offer the whole of them (not including the properties of the Madison County Gas & Electric Company) for sale en masse as an entirety at not less than the minimum sum of $4,540,000, and if the highest bid received by him for the aforesaid properties shall exceed the aggregate amount of the several highest bids for each of said properties when offered separately, then the said properties will be struck off and sold as an entirety to the person making such highest bid for all of said properties; and the proceeds of such highest bid will be divided into eight parts in proportion to the amounts bid separately on each of the said eight constituent parts and distributed pursuant to the directions in said decree contained in the same manner as if said eight constituent parts had been sold separately; provided, however, in case no bid shall be received for any one or more of said parcels when offered separately, the aforesaid respective minimum prices for such parcel or parcels will be computed and taken as the respective amount or amounts to be assigned to such parcel or parcels for the purpose of ascertaining such aggregate amount of bids; and also in determining the proportion of the purchase price attributable to such parcel or parcels respectively out of the proceeds of such sale of the entirety. If there shall be no such bid for such entirety then the separate parcels will be struck off to the respective highest bidders therefor pursuant hereto.

The deposits to qualify bidders as herein provided may be either in cash, or in a check or checks certified by a National or State bank or Trust Company situate in the State of New York or in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and no bid will be received from any bidder for the said eight parcels when offered as an entirety who shall not first deposit with the Special Master the sum of $200,000, either in cash or in a check or checks certified by a National or State bank or Trust Company situate in the State of New York or in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. The cash or checks deposited by any bidder in order to qualify him to bid upon any of the separate parcels herein described may be used by such bidder in making up the deposit required from such bidder in order to qualify him to bid for the properties when offered as an entirety. Such cash or check so deposited by any bidder will be held as a pledge that such bidder will make good his bid if accepted by said Circuit Court. The cash and checks so deposited, except those deposited by any bidder whose bid shall be provisionally accepted, will be returned by the Special Master at the conclusion of the sale to the bidder or bidders from whom they were received. The cash and checks so deposited by any bidder or bidders, whose bids shall be provisionally accepted as provided in said decree, will be returned by the Special Master to the bidder or bidders from whom they were received, if such provisional acceptance shall thereafter not be confirmed by said Circuit Court. The cash or checks deposited by any bidder in order to qualify him to bid at the said sale or sales will be forfeited and applied to the expenses of said sale or sales, and otherwise, as may be directed by said Circuit Court in the event that the bidder shall not make good his bid. In the event that any successful bidder shall fail to make good his bid or bids as the said Court shall direct upon confirmation to him of such sale or sales, the said Circuit Court may order a resale of the property covered by such bid or bids and the said bidder will be liable for all the expenses thereof and for any deficiency of price realized thereon to the extent of the payments theretofore made by such bidder. In addition to the cash deposited upon any bid at the time of said sale or sales as hereinbefore required, which shall be received as a part of the purchase price, there shall also be paid in cash by the purchaser or purchasers upon the confirmation of such sale or sales and from time to time thereafter as the said Circuit Court may direct, such further portions of the purchase price of the properties requisite to make all payments hereunder except upon the bonds used by such purchaser in making payment for the properties purchased.

Any purchaser of any of the properties sold hereunder may satisfy and make good the balance of his bid, above the sum or sums required to be paid in cash, in whole or in part, by delivering to the Special Master Receivers' Certificates, issued in said cause, under the order of said Circuit Court by the said Receivers of the Madison County Gas & Electric Company, the bonds or coupons respectively appertaining thereto secured by any of the mortgages foreclosed in and by said decree in the manner and to the extent and upon the terms provided in and by Article XVIII. and the other Articles of said decree. The said Receivers' Certificates, bonds and coupons, unless negotiable in form and payable to bearer, shall be duly endorsed or assigned in blank. And all of such Receivers' Certificates, bonds and coupons, so delivered to the said Special Master, whether at the time of the sale or subsequently, will be received at such price or value as shall be equivalent to the sum which would be payable out of the net proceeds of the sale of the particular property for a part of the purchase price of which such Receivers' Certificates, bonds, or coupons are tendered, to the same extent as if said sales were made for cash, to the holder or holders of said Receivers' Certificates, bonds or coupons, for his or their just share or proportion, in that character of such net proceeds upon a due accounting, apportionment and distribution of such net proceeds.

The Special Master may, in his discretion, accept temporarily, instead of the actual delivery to him of said Receivers' Certificates, bonds and coupons, the certificate of any Trust Company satisfactory to him that it holds said Receivers' certificates, bonds, and coupons, subject to the order of said Special Master and will deliver them to him on demand for cancellation or other disposition.

The said Circuit Court reserves the right to reject any bid or bids and retake and resell any of the property purchased, upon the failure of any purchaser to comply with the terms of sale or with any order of the Court requiring payment, within thirty days after the entry of such order in respect thereto.

It is stated in said decree as follows:

"The properties covered by the mortgage made by the Ballston Spa Light & Power Company to Horace E. McKnight and Robert M. Medbery, as Trustees, are in no wise affected by this decree," and also that

"The properties and rights covered by the deed from the Hudson River Electric Company to the Hudson Valley Railway Company, dated August 12, 1904, and recorded in the office of the Clerk of Saratoga County on August 24, 1904, in Liber 250 of Deeds at Page 253, are in no wise affected by this decree."

The sales of the shares of stock of the Empire State Power Company made hereunder, are made subject to the final determination of the limited intervention proceedings heretofore instituted in said cause by Eugene L. Ashley in respect thereof.

Bids for the respective properties when sold hereunder, must provide for a payment or payments in cash of such sum or sums as the said Circuit Court may deem sufficient to meet the payments required to be made in all subdivisions (a) and (b) of Article XIX. of said decree; and in the event of the insufficiency of the respective proceeds of sale of the separate properties in said decree directed to be sold to pay in full the respective amounts in said decree directed to be paid out of such proceeds for the purposes set forth in all of said subdivisions (a) and (b) of said Article XIX. of said decree, the said Circuit Court reserves the right from time to time to require the payment of such respective deficiency by the respective purchasers under said decree. In the event of the failure or refusal of any such purchaser to pay such respective amounts so required to be paid, within thirty (30) days after the entry of the order requiring such payment, the said Circuit Court reserves the right to retake and resell the particular property sold under said decree upon which such deficiency arises and to apply the net proceeds of such resale to the payment of the deficiency with which such respective purchasers are chargeable, rendering unto such purchaser the surplus, if any. But no such purchaser will be personally liable for the amount of such deficiency, or any part thereof, and the said remedy in said decree provided for enforcing the payment of such deficiency against such purchaser will be exclusive of all other remedies.

The said decree provides in Article XXXIII. thereof, that the properties hereby offered for sale shall be sufficiently described in this notice of sale if described substantially as follows, and they are now so described, to wit:

(a) In respect of the Hudson River Water Power Company: The dam, power house, and the fixtures and equipment therein contained and appurtenant thereto, situate at or near Spier Falls, on the Hudson River, in the counties of Warren and Saratoga, State of New York, and also all and singular the lands, hereditaments, buildings, water rights, systems, interest, easements, rights, privileges, franchises, licenses, shares and bonds, lines and property more specifically mentioned or referred to in said Article XXVI. of said decree, under and pursuant to which said sale is to be had. In said Article XXVI. of said decree the aforesaid two parcels of the said properties are separately distinguished.

(b) In respect of the Hudson River Electric Company: All the lands, hereditaments, buildings, sub-stations, pole lines, water rights, systems, interests, easements, rights, privileges, franchises, licenses, shares, bonds, notes and choses in action, lines and property, more specifically mentioned or referred to in Article XXVII. of the said decree, under and pursuant to which said sale is to be had.

(c) In respect of the Hudson River Electric Power Company: The steam power electric generating plant situated in the City of Utica, New York, and the other property, real and personal, rights and franchises and shares of stock, of every kind, nature and description, and wheresoever situated; and also all the lands, hereditaments, buildings, pole lines, water rights, systems, interests, easements, rights, privileges, franchises, licenses, shares, bonds, notes and choses in action, and lines and property, more specifically mentioned or referred to in Article XXVIII. of said decree under and pursuant to which said sale is to be had. In said Article XXVIII. of said decree the aforesaid properties, as divided into said three parcels, are separately distinguished.

(d) In respect of the Hudson River Power Transmission Company: The electric generating plant situated at or near Mechanicville, in the County of Saratoga, State of New York, together with its fixtures, appurtenances and equipment, and also the pole lines, transmission lines, wires, conduits, rights of way; and all the property, real and personal, rights, privileges and franchises of every kind, nature and description and wheresoever situated more specifically mentioned or referred to in Article XXIX. of said decree, under and pursuant to which said sale is to be had. The aforesaid properties of the Hudson River Power Transmission Company are to be sold subject to the mortgage heretofore made, and now a lien thereon, by the Hudson River Power Transmission Company to The Mercantile Trust Company, dated March 15th, 1898, to secure an authorized issue of $500,000 face value of principal of bonds, all of which are now issued and outstanding.

(e) In respect of the Saratoga Gas, Electric Light & Power Company: The real estate and generating plant, together with all the machinery, fixtures, equipment and appurtenances thereof and thereto, situated in Saratoga Springs, Saratoga County, New York; and also all the other property, real and personal, lands, buildings, machinery, mains, pole lines, wires, tools, fixtures, rights, privileges, contracts franchises and immunities of every kind, nature and description and wheresoever situated, more specifically mentioned or referred to in Article XXX. of said decree, under and pursuant to which said sale is to be had.

(f) In respect of the Madison County Gas & Electric Company: The real estate and gas plant and the electric generating plant, together with all the machinery, fixtures, equipment, and appurtenances thereof and thereto, situated in the City of Oneida and in the Village of Canastota, Madison County, New York, and all the property, real and personal, buildings, machinery, mains, pole lines, wires, tools, fixtures, rights, privileges, contracts, franchises and immunities of every kind, nature and description, and wheresoever situated, more specifically mentioned and referred to in Article XXXI. of the said decree under and pursuant to which said sale is to be had.

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that the sale of the aforesaid properties, in the foregoing subdivision (f) of this notice mentioned and described, being the properties of the Madison County Gas & Electric Company, will be had on the 31st day of August, 1911, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at the main entrance of the County Court House in Wampsville, Madison County, State of New York, upon the terms and conditions in said decree provided and in this notice set forth, so far as applicable thereto. The said property of the Madison County Gas & Electric Company will be offered for sale in one parcel as an entirety and bids invited therefor at not less than the minimum sum of $100,000. No bid will be received from any bidder for said property who shall not first deposit with the Special Master the sum of $4,500.

ATTENTION IS DIRECTED to said decree under which all the aforesaid properties are to be sold and to which reference may be had for a more specific description of the properties sold. The said decree is dated July 13, 1911, and is filed in the office of the Clerk of the United States Circuit Court for the Northern District of New York, at Utica, N. Y., and copies thereof may be inspected at the office of the Special Master in Binghamton, N. Y., or at the office of the Receivers, in the City of Glens Falls, N. Y., at the offices of the solicitors for the various Trust Companies, complainants in the respective foreclosure causes, or at the offices of the following Trust Companies in the City of New York, to wit: The Trust Company of America, 37 Wall Street, New York City; Guaranty Trust Company of New York, 28 Nassau Street, New York City; Knickerbocker Trust Company, 60 Broadway, New York City, and The New York Trust Company, 24 Broad Street, New York City.

Dated July 14th, 1911.

Are you going to occupy the position of the man who refused an Atlantic City lot offered him at $1,000, and five years later saw it sell at $30,000? The tide of opportunity is at flood at

LONG BEACH

When you buy lots or homes here you are buying into a MONOPOLY because Long Beach is the LAST REMAINING BEACH FRONT ACCESSIBLE TO NEW YORK.

This means that property bought here MUST INCREASE IN VALUE because New York's population has doubled EVERY TWENTY YEARS and WILL KEEP on DOUBLING.

BUT—

New York's beach front property CANNOT INCREASE ONE SINGLE FOOT.

YOU KNOW VALUES IN ALL THINGS ARE BASED ON THE LAW OF SUPPLY AND DEMAND.

LONG BEACH REPRESENTS NEW YORK'S LAST SUPPLY OF BEACH FRONTAGE and the SUPPLY IS LIMITED.

That's why Long Beach is different from all other properties from the standpoint of investment. That is why every man who invests in Long Beach homes and lots is investing in a MONOPOLY.

Your OPPORTUNITY LIES IN THE NEW SECTION WE HAVE NOW OPENED FOR SALE.

THESE LOTS ARE ALL WITHIN TWO BLOCKS OF THE RAILROAD STATION.

SIXTY NEW HOMES ARE NOW BEING CONSTRUCTED IN THIS SECTION. MANY LOTS LIE BETWEEN HOMES IN PROCESS OF BUILDING. ALL THESE HOMES WILL BE FINISHED BY NEXT SPRING.

Here is where you get aboard as cheaply as did the Long Beach investors in 1907-8.

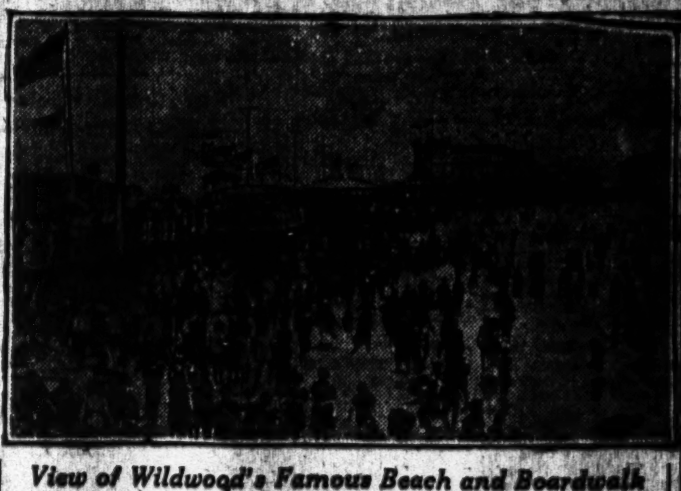
Land Along the Ocean Front in the Heart of Wildwood at Public Sale

The Real Estate Opportunity of a Generation

An event of compelling interest will occur on Saturday, September 2, on which day Baker Brothers, Founders of Wildwood and Wildwood Crest, will sell at Public Sale, in lots to suit purchasers and on easy terms, the Best Land in Wildwood.

This land is located in the most desirable portion of Wildwood and bears the same relation to the whole island in value as Broadway and Fifth Avenue bear to the City of New York. On its western side, along Atlantic Avenue, are many of the finest residences and hotels on the island, and on the east it overlooks the Atlantic Ocean and Boardwalk and the splendid front of the magnificent Ocean Pier.

Land in this center section has never before been offered for sale, and this sale presents unquestionably the opportunity of a generation to secure the most desirable and valuable ground on the entire island. Title is insured.



View of Wildwood's Famous Beach and Boardwalk

Of the land in this sale, everyone who knows this island says: "It is the key to the whole situation. Here values are as firmly established and as certain to increase as if the tract was located in the center of any large and prosperous city."

Custodians of funds, and all who seek investment where security and profit are assured, as well as those who wish to build a home by the ocean, should not fail to be on hand.

Do you know what great fortunes have been made in Atlantic City Ocean Front Property in the last few years? Wildwood is duplicating Atlantic City's growth.

The sale will begin promptly at 11 A. M. on Saturday, September 2, on the Boardwalk directly facing the land.

JOHN A. ACKLEY, Auctioneer.

Write at once for particulars about this great sale, including map of the ground and surroundings.

Wildwood has Efficient Express Service, with Parlor Cars, morning and afternoon, from Market St. Ferries and Broad St. Station. Popular Excursion every morning at 7 o'clock from Market St. Ferries. Round trip, $1. For particulars regarding fare from New York City and surrounding points consult Pennsylvania R. R. ticket agents.

Greatest Week of the Season At Wildwood, N. J.

WED., AUG. 30, BABY PARADE on the Boardwalk. Opening of the Motor Show at the Casino Rink, to continue for 6 days.

MON., SEPT. 4TH, LABOR DAY celebration with numberless events. Japanese Feast of Lanterns on the Boardwalk throughout the evening. A unique, decorative and delightful exhibition.

SURROGATE CITATION.

HAMLIN, FREDERICK R.—The people of the State of New York, by the grace of God, free and independent, to MARY B. WARNER, Mary E. Hamlin, Harry L. Hamlin, George J. Hamlin, Herbert W. Hamlin, Bessie H. Clark, Dorothy Hamlin, Judith Hamlin, George E. Hamlin, Anna M. Hamlin, John F. Hamlin, Frederick A. Hamlin, Mary C. Hamlin, Mancel T. Clark, Jr., and Lew M. Fields, and to all persons interested in the Trust Estate of FREDERICK R. HAMLIN, late of the County of New York, deceased, as creditors, legatees, next of kin, or otherwise, send greeting:

You and each of you are hereby cited and required personally to be and appear before our Surrogate of the County of New York, at the Surrogates' Court of said County, held at the Hall of Records, in the County of New York, on the 10th day of October, 1911, at half-past ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, then and there to attend a judicial settlement of the account of proceedings filed with the Clerk of this Court, April 11, 1908, and of the account of proceedings filed with said Clerk, Aug. 19, 1911, rendered and filed by Julian Mitchell and William M. Gray, as trustees of the last will and testament of said deceased; and such of you as are hereby cited as are under the age of twenty-one years are required to appear by your guardian, if you have one, or if you have none, to appear and apply for one to be appointed, or in the event of your neglect or failure to do so, a guardian will be appointed by the Surrogate to represent and act for you in the proceeding.

In testimony whereof, we have caused the seal of the Surrogates' Court of the said [L. S.] County of New York to be hereunto affixed.

Witness, Hon. Robert Ludlow Fowler, a Surrogate of our said County, at the County of New York, the 19th day of August, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and eleven.

DANIEL J. DOWDNEY,
Clerk of the Surrogates' Court.
ALBERT E. SEIBERT, Esq., Attorney for Trustees, 49 Wall Street, New York City.

SURROGATE NOTICES.

HICKS, EDITH BURCHELL.—In pursuance of an order of Hon. Robert Ludlow Fowler, a Surrogate of the County of New York, notice is hereby given to all persons having claims against EDITH BURCHELL HICKS, late of Summit, New Jersey, deceased, to present the same, with vouchers thereof, to the subscriber, at his place of transacting business, at the office of Stitt & Phillips, No. 113 Fulton Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on or before the twenty-fourth day of October next.—Dated New York, the 20th day of April, 1911. HENRY J. BURCHELL, Jr., Executor. STITT & PHILLIPS, Attys. for Ex'r, No. 113 Fulton St., Manhattan, New York City.

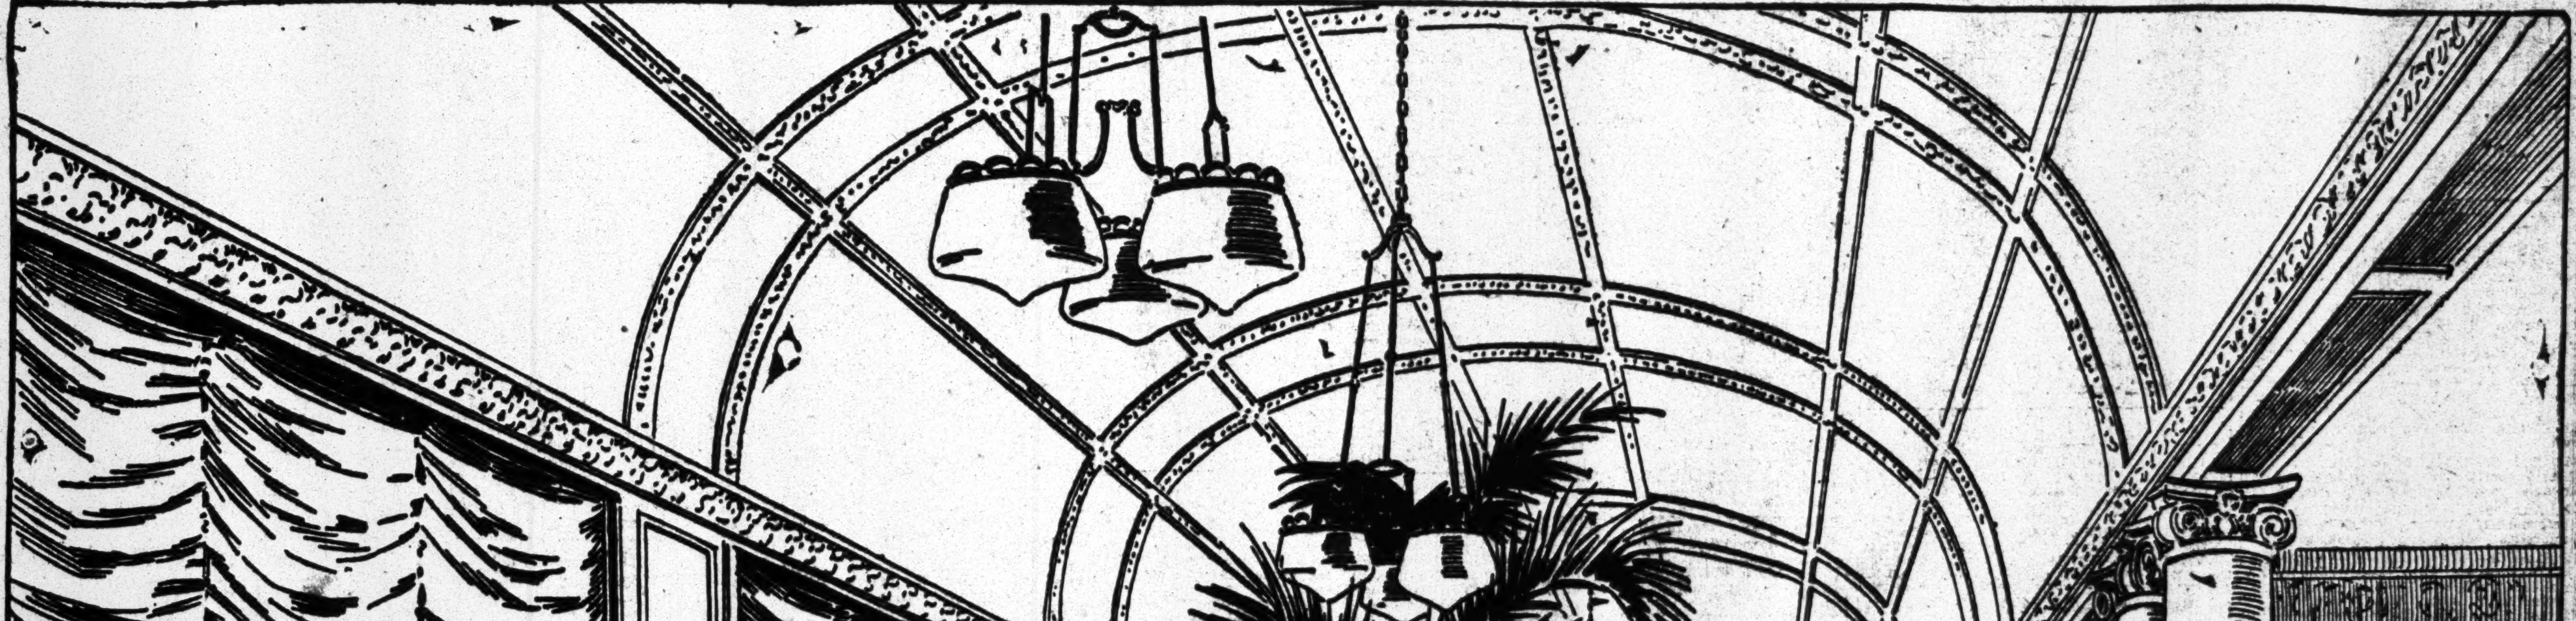
SAVOY HOTEL

LONDON, ENGLAND.

Overlooking the River Thames and Embankment Gardens

The comforts and luxury of the Savoy Hotel, its cuisine and service, combined with the most moderate charges, place it absolutely in the front rank of all hotels in Europe. The beautiful suites—with bathrooms attached—overlooking the River Thames and Embankment Gardens, away from the noise and bustle of street traffic, although in the centre of London, are greatly appreciated by all European and American Travellers.



LUNCHEON ON THE BALCONY OF THE SAVOY RESTAURANT.

THE PREMIER RESTAURANT OF THE WORLD

EXTRACTS FROM THE PRESS:

"On a hot day a meal on the Savoy balcony is a memorable experience. . . . Throw the windows
"wide open, and while you fare sumptuously you watch one of the wonder-sights of the world. That reach of "the river to Westminster is historic and above the foliage of the trees rises Cleopatra's Needle. It is a "pageant of history."
THE EVENING STANDARD.

"At no period of the year does the Savoy Restaurant present a more animated appearance than during "the early days of summer, when there is an unusual demand for luncheon tables on the sunny balcony over-
"looking the River and Embankment Gardens."
THE FINANCIAL NEWS.

"The balcony is the most popular place in the Restaurant on a hot evening, with the windows wide open,
"the scene overlooking the leafy gardens and the River, and with a view of Westminster in the distance is
"a memorable one."
THE DAILY EXPRESS.

"Take luncheon on the verandah of the Savoy in early summer. The wide bosom of the Thames,
"the scene of so many gay and solemn pageants in the history of England, is before your eyes. Between
"the water and the walls of the hotel lies a garden where birds make melody, but which is not yet fully
"canopied by the foliage of the taller trees. Lilacs are in blossom, and there is a big splash of colour where
"rhododendrons flower round the statue of England's most tuneful composer, Sir Arthur Sullivan. Gazing
"on the scene and forgetting the place for the moment one would say it was not London but the Bois de
"Boulogne."
THE PARIS DAILY MAIL.

GUSTAVE SEGGELKE, Manager.

BE EXPLICIT.

¶ When writing an advertisement tell all the facts about the matter in hand, make the explanation as complete as possible; a word picture of what the advertisement is to accomplish.

¶ The "Situations Wanted" advertisements that bring replies are the ones that are most explicit. Make the employer who needs helpers see in his mind's eye, through your description, your qualifications. That is the first step toward obtaining an interview.

¶ The second step is to place your advertisement where it will reach the largest number of employers in the quickest way and at the least cost. The New York Times reaches more high-class employers than any other morning newspaper.

SLOCUM'S CAPTAIN HAPPY IN FREEDOM

Van Schaick, Out of Sing Sing at 71, Hopes to Do Many Years of Useful Work.

HOLDS NO HATRED, HE SAYS

Believes He Did the Best That Could Be Done When His Boat Burned—Was a Model Prisoner.

Without an old acquaintance to greet him, Capt. William H. Van Schaick, paroled from Sing Sing Prison after serving three years and a half of his ten-year sentence following the burning of the General Slocum and the loss of a thousand and thirty-one lives on June 15, 1904, came into the Grand Central Station at noon Saturday and started out to find his wife and friends. He had not notified them of the fact that he had been paroled by the United States Government and he was not even sure of the house in which he would find Mrs. Van Schaick whom he married when he was under indictment for neglect of duty. The first of his old friends to greet him was A. F. Link, who recognized him and pointed out the house in Ninety-eighth Street, where Mrs. Van Schaick has been boarding.

The aged steamboat Captain rang the bell and Mrs. Pierce, the landlady, and an old friend of Capt. and Mrs. Van Schaick answered the bell. "It's Capt. Billy," she exclaimed, when she had recovered from her surprise, and she led him into the parlor. Mrs. Van Schaick was not at home, and was not expected until 5 o'clock in the evening. In the meantime Capt. Van Schaick took a walk around the neighborhood where he had lived for many years. He found few of his former friends and went back to Mrs. Pierce's before his wife returned.

When Mrs. Van Schaick came home, Mrs. Pierce met her and said:

"You have a visitor."

The expression in her face gave Mrs. Van Schaick to understand who the visitor was, for the parole of the Captain had been expected for two months past. She rushed into the parlor and threw her arms around the man she had worked valiantly for, first to save him from a sentence and then to get him pardoned by the Government.

The news that "Capt. Billy" was out of Sing Sing spread through the neighborhood and in the evening a score of friends of the Captain and Mrs. Van Schaick called at the house.

The desire of all the friends of the Captain yesterday was to keep him quiet and away from any excitement. The few who knew where he was and tried to see him were told that he was not at home and that it would be impossible to see him. But he could not withstand the appeals of his friends who interceded for interviewers, and in the afternoon the Captain of the ship that burned with such frightful loss received callers in a bright room in his boarding house.

Capt. Van Schaick appears to have aged greatly in the time he spent in prison, but he was very bright and cheerful as he talked over his plans, and he was at ease when he let his mind wander back over the story of the Slocum. He is very thin and the shake of his hand is not vigorous. The Captain is 71 now, and the injuries he received when the disaster occurred have weakened him. In spite of this, he does not consider himself a broken or a useless man. He has hopes of returning to work after he has had a long rest. His hands are brown and covered with scars of the burns he suffered seven years ago. Yesterday he wore blue knitted slippers, a pair of blue trousers and a white shirt without a collar. He sat in an easy chair and smoked a cigar, talking in a frank and open way of anything that he was asked about.

"I'll pick up right away," he said, "just as soon as I can bust out among the boys again and take a few trips around the bay and up and down the river. They all know me and will be mighty glad to see me back. Oh, no, I shall never be a steamboat Captain again. Too old for that and I don't care for it again. But if I do say it myself, I would be worth my weight in gold to some company that has a lot of boats to look after, because I know everything about a boat from a dish pan in the galley to the pilot wheel. Just now I am going to take it easy, maybe till Spring. Now that I'm out, my wife will brighten up. She's a sensible woman and nothing much bothers her."

"Everybody will be glad that you are out, Captain," said a caller.

"How about the Slocum survivors?" said Capt. Van Schaick, opening his eyes. "They fought me awful hard before. Have they been doing anything recently?"

The Captain has a farm in Amsterdam, N. Y., and it was suggested that he would possibly go up there to live, but he said he thought he would rather stay around the water. Evidently, he would prefer to work as a Superintendent of a boat-line or a shipyard, and considers that a much better life than farming.

"Now that you are free, have you any hard feeling against any one of those who sent you to jail," he was asked.

"Lord bless you, not a soul," said the Captain. "I was my own worst witness, because I just told exactly what happened and they had to have some one to pay the penalty. People that don't know anything about running a boat never could understand what the boatmen all understand, that I did the very best thing that could be done when we saw the Slocum was afire. Not one Captain in a dozen would have remembered about that piece of land where I beached her. A dozen of them said to me afterward, 'Billy, how did you come to think of it?' and I took her in there like this (here he made a quick curve with his hand,) for the tide was going with us, and I had to figure on keeping her stern in. The stern didn't come out, and if it had we would have lost a lot more than we did. Even if the passengers had listened to the crew and stayed in the stern of the boat, we would have saved most of them. But they got wild and jumped. If I hadn't remembered about that little spot of beach and put the boat right there, she would have surely split on the rocks, the boilers would have burst, and the whole lot would have been suffocated by steam."

Here his friends broke in, while Capt. Van Schaick was getting worked up and his quiet and kindly eyes were blazing.

"Captain, Captain, you mustn't talk about that any more," said one. "You're going to forget it."

Capt. Van Schaick laughed good-naturedly and replied: "I always talk too much. I hurt myself before by talking about the Slocum, but this won't do any harm.

"Do you know," he continued, "I stayed with her till the last minute? As soon as I jumped on the beach I looked up and saw the deck that I had just run across crash in, and I almost collapsed when I saw it. The next minute and I wouldn't be here now."

He changed the subject and began speaking of the future.

"I am going to make a lot of visits, starting right in to-morrow," said he. "And I shall see a number of owners of boat lines. They all know me, and have been writing me while I was up there. I think I can fall into something in the steamboat business.

"First, though, I am going up home, to Troy, where I was born. I want to find myself again, and I think I will begin at the beginning. I know everybody, and they will all be glad to see me. They haven't forgotten me, and every little thing that the papers printed about me some one would clip out and send me.

"Don't think I am a broken man, for I'm feeling very well, and look forward to many years of useful life."

At the prison Capt. Van Schaick was a model prisoner. He had not a black mark against him. Recently he has been working in the greenhouse. He spent much time in the library reading history.

"Seventeen years as a steamboat Captain didn't give me much time to read," he said. "But since I have been up there I have read books, and books of history—the history of Japan and Norway and all the countries of the world, practically.

"I had a room part of the time where I could look out over the river, and that helped me out a great deal. I looked after the Bristol, the State's boat, when she was tied up and repaired her when she broke down. Every man in the prison was my friend, and when I left Saturday they all wanted to shake hands with me and tell me good-by.

"I want to say this for THE TIMES," he concluded. "When I was sentenced you said it was a piece of savagery to sentence me for the fire on the General Slocum, and I have always been grateful for that. It always seemed to me that I was more of a victim than anything else, but, now that I am out, I haven't a grudge against any one."

Mrs. Van Schaick, who is forty years the junior of the Captain, was not at home yesterday. She is a trained nurse, and goes out on cases when called. Capt. Van Schaick said that she would probably give up nursing and spend her time with him. At the time of the Slocum disaster Mrs. Van Schaick was Superintendent of Nurses in the Lebanon Hospital in the Bronx, and at the head of eight nurses she went to North Brother Island to assist in caring for those saved from the wreck. She received a certificate of honor from the Government for her services. When the Captain was sent to Sing Sing she procured 230,000 names to a petition asking for his pardon. While her husband has been in prison she has kept up nursing while working for his release.

SUNDAY SCHOOL BOYS LET GO

But Magistrate Reproves Them for Bad Conduct in Cars.

Magistrate Kernochan at the Men's Night Court last night supended sentence on four boys of the Judson Memorial Sunday School who were arrested in the Subway on Saturday night, charged with disorderly conduct. The boys' names were Howard Mayer of 170 West Tenth Street, Thomas Kelly of 59 Chrystie Street, Claude Parsons of 269 West Eleventh Street, and Amerigo Lovan of 139 Macdougal Street. They were returning from a baseball game at Van Cortlandt Park which their team had won.

The Magistrate put the boys on probation, ordering them to report to Probation Officer Garlick for three months. He warned them of the consequences of rough behavior in cars.

The fathers of the boys had to go to court and give assurances for them as to their good behavior in future.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—The winds along the New England and Middle Atlantic Coasts are east to northeast, increasing; South Atlantic Coast, high northeast to northwest, except moderate west to north on Florida coast; East Gulf Coast, moderate and variable; west Gulf Coast, moderate southeast to south; on the lower lakes, moderate and variable, probably becoming north by Monday night and increasing; upper lakes, moderate and mostly northwest.

Steamers departing Monday for European ports will have east to north winds, increasing, with rain to the Grand Banks.

A storm from the South Atlantic moved toward the South Carolina and Georgia coasts during Saturday night and Sunday, and on Sunday night it was central between Charleston and Savannah, with a barometer reading of 29.52 inches at the former place. Northerly gales occurred during Sunday at both places, and moderately high winds were reported as far north as Wilmington. Northeast storm warnings were hoisted Sunday morning from Fort Monroe to Savannah, and on Sunday afternoon hurricane warnings were displayed at Charleston and Savannah, and northwest storm warnings at Jacksonville. The storm will probably continue northward during Monday, attended by rains in the Atlantic States and increasing east to north winds, and rain will probably continue Tuesday in New England and the north portion of the Middle Atlantic States. There were rains Sunday in the Atlantic States, the north upper lake region, and the Northwest, and showers in the West Gulf States, the central Rocky Mountain region, and the Southwest. Over the remainder of the country the weather was generally fair. It is considerably cooler in the plains States and the Northwest, and killing frost occurred Sunday morning in north central Montana. In the Ohio Valley and western lower lake region it is considerably warmer, while in the East and South temperatures have changed but little. There will be showers Monday quite generally over the interior districts east of the Rocky Mountains, except in the Northwestern States, and also in the extreme Southwest. On Tuesday the weather will be generaly fair, except in the northwestern portion of the country. It will be cooler Monday in the central valleys and the lake region and will continue cool Tuesday, by which time it will also be cooler in the Atlantic States. It will be warmer Monday in the extreme Northwest and warmer Tuesday west of the Mississippi River generally, except in the coast States.

Frost warnings have been ordered for Montana, Wyoming, North Dakota, and the cranberry marshes of Wisconsin.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND TO-MORROW.

POLITICAL GRIST FROM UP-STATE

Both Parties Well Supplied with Candidates for the Fall Campaign.

YOUNG ROBINSON REGULAR

On Advice of the Colonel Young Theodore Robinson Has Ceased to be a Reformer.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Aug. 27.—Up in the Fifth Judicial District, which consists of the counties of Onondaga, Jefferson, Oneida, Oswego, Herkimer, and Lewis, there is the liveliest sort of a campaign on over the nomination of two Justices of the Supreme Court. The two Justices whose terms expire on Dec. 31 are Pardon C. Williams, Republican, and Henry Purcell, Democrat, who was appointed by Gov. Dix to serve until Dec. 31 in place of Watson M. Rogers, deceased. The Democrats want the Republicans to indorse the Democratic nominee for one of the Justices to be elected, but this is not probable, from the present outlook. Justice Williams is within one year of the retirement age limit, so the chances are that he will not be renominated.

At present Oswego is the only county which has no representation on the bench in that district. Jefferson has two and Onondaga three, the others one each. Therefore Oswego is making strenuous efforts to secure one of the new Justices. As a result the factions of the Republican Party in Oswego are at odds, each claiming the majority of the delegates to the County Convention, which meets next Tuesday, by which the delegates to the Judicial Convention will be named. The regulars feel certain that the convention will name delegates favorable to the candidacy of Udelle Bartlett of Oswego, while the independent Republican faction hopes to have delegates favorable to Irving H. Hubbs of Pulaski.

Justice Williams and the late Justice Rogers both lived in Watertown, so Jefferson will lay claim to at least one of the nominations, and the Republicans are urging County Judge Edgar C. Emerson of Watertown for the place.

With ex-Committeeman William J. Conners and Mayor Fuhrman fighting State Committeeman Fitzpatrick on the one side, and the Warren crowd fighting Greiner and Daniels on the other, political affairs are at white heat in Buffalo. Mr. Conners is seeking to have removed from office Public Works Supt. Ward, who is being investigated under charges, and the Warren crowd is after the scalp of Postmaster and Republican Leader Fred Greiner. Charges lodged in Washington are that Greiner is too active in politics to hold the Postmastership.

There is every promise of a political row up in the First Assembly District of St. Lawrence. It is predicted that it will be similar to that of 1885, when the late Gen. Newton Martin Curtis, running on an independent ticket with Democratic support, defeated Judge Gerrit S. Conger, the Republican nominee, by 400 in the district, which had from 2,000 to 3,000 Republican majority. This year the Democrats will most likely put forward as their candidate Nathan J. Lovejoy of Oswegatchie. Mr. Lovejoy was the first Democrat to carry the town for Supervisor in twenty-five years. The users of water power in the district—and they are many—are anxious to have a representative at the capital who will aid St. Lawrence in realizing the benefits under the new conservation of water power plan, and it is believed that Mr. Lovejoy, rather than Frank L. Seaker, the Republican nominee, will best serve them. Then, too, there is pique on the part of many Republicans over the turning down of Fred J. Gray for a renomination. Mr. Gray had served six terms in the Assembly.

There is a spirited contest among the Republican lawyers in the Fourth Judicial District. A Supreme Court Justice is to be elected this Fall, as the successor to the late Edgar A. Spencer. The Fourth District has twelve counties, and its representation consists of six Justices. Saratoga has a Justice now—James W. Houghton—yet Republicans there are urging Surrogate William S. Ostrander for the vacant place. Frederick G. Paddock, the County Judge, is being urged by Franklin County, while Fulton County, the home of the late Justice Spencer, will present three names—A. J. Nellis, Horton D. Wright, and Frank Burton. Montgomery County has two candidates, J. L. Moore, the County Judge, and W. B. Dunlap. Schenectady County, the most populous, has no representative on the bench now, and hopes, therefore, to elect E. C. Whitmyer, the present County Judge. Warren County, the home of Justice Joseph A. Kellogg, the appointee of Gov. Dix until Dec. 31, has a Republican candidate in County Judge George S. Raley.

Theodore Robinson of Herkimer County, the energetic nephew of Col. Theodore Roosevelt, who a year ago made a whirlwind automobile canvass of his county as the reform candidate for the nomination for Congress, has forsaken, it is said on the advice of his practical uncle, the independent-reform cause, and is out this year for the straight Republican organization nomination for the Assembly. Last year he was advised that the best way to enter the political arena was from the ground rather than through the second story, but he would not listen. This year he has taken the counsel of older heads and is making another canvass of Herkimer County in his automobile, but it is of the quiet and less strenuous type. His only opponent is H. Leslie Wilbur, a Frankfort lawyer. The district is now represented in the Assembly by Judson Bridenbecker, one of the Democratic insurgents.

Dr. John Seeley of Bath, the Democratic member of Assembly from Steuben, who is serving his second term, is to have no opposition for renomination in the First District. In the Second District the Democratic candidates are G. H. Brewster of Addison and John Comosh of Corning. The investigation into Steuben's affairs is said to make very unlikely the re-election of Thomas Shannon, Republican, in the First District.

OBSTACLE TO RAPID TRANSIT.

Property Owners at Newark Fix Prices for Pennsylvania Co. to Pay.

Because of a dispute between property owners and the Pennsylvania Railroad, the new rapid transit line between New York and Newark may be hampered for some time to come. The trouble is over a right of way across a strip of land between Front Street and the Passaic River in Newark.

One of the property owners is Philip J. Bowers, Vice President of the Builders' Material and Supply Company, which occupies property on the river front. In effect the interests represented by Mr. Bowers have laid down the ultimatum that it will cost the Pennsylvania Railroad $100,000 if it desires to cross the strip of land in question.

HEARD TALE OF THE 'SCHEPS'

Delighted Newark Children Want News of Poor "Uncle Ben," Too.

The children of the South Canal Street Playground in Newark assembled in the recreation house yesterday afternoon at the story-telling hour and heard another of "Uncle Ben's" tales—"The Scheps Who Wouldn't Say Baa"—read to them. This tale proved as fascinating to the Newark City Playground youngsters as did "The Ice Palace," the favorite of the poor old story-teller, who is in Gouverneur Hospital in a pitiable condition from starvation.

As Miss Marie Hughes, the playground teacher, was about to begin reading "The Scheps Who Wouldn't Say Baa," which was published in yesterday's SUNDAY TIMES, as told to a TIMES reporter by 10-year-old Abraham Feldman, a pupil of the Henry Street school, on Thursday at the Seward Park playground, those of the children who had heard the first tale immediately wanted to know how poor old "Uncle Ben" was. But the teacher said: "We will first hear the story, and then I'll tell you about him."

When Miss Hughes began reading the story thus, "Far across the sea is a country called Russia, where the Winters are long and cold and the people build houses and shops on the ice which freezes over the wide, wide rivers. And over there, once upon a time, was a little girl named Lydia. Her mother called her Litkala for a pet name"—the score or more of little folks that crowded into the little playroom of the recreation house straightened back on the little benches in rapt attention. Some of the little youngsters had heard their parents tell stories about Russia, but they were not pleasing tales like this one—tales of hardship they were, for the most part.

After the playground teacher had reached that part of the story where Litkala came into the possession of the cosset lamb the children made all kinds of fanciful comments. Some of them ran like this:

"Oh, teacher, I wish we had a tiny lamb like that!"

"Does 'Uncle Ben' own sheep—is he an animal trainer in the park in New York?"

"Will 'Uncle Ben' come to see us, en bring the lamb en the bears with him, when the doctors cure him?"

Several times while Miss Hughes was proceeding with the tale there was a ripple of "Shsh's!" all over the room. The children were eager to hear every word of the story, and the younger ones who made comments were told by the elder ones to hold their peace.

"Wasn't that little girl nice to that little lamb to put a nice blue ribbon around its neck!" was the remark of one little listener to the tale. "En isn't the lamb good to say 'Baa' when the li'l girl asks it to."

But when the youngsters had heard that part of the story where Litkala asked her school teacher if she couldn't bring her little Scheps to school on the occasion of the visit of the Prefect of the Regierung and show its tricks, they all sat very still. Teacher agreed, and on the day of the Prefect's visit the lamb was shown to him. Litkala said: "Scheps-ala, say 'Baa.'" But the Scheps stood still and refused to obey. This the children thought was very mean of the lamb, and they said so in no uncertain terms, which interrupted the teacher's reading for a time.

When the little folks had heard how Litkala returned the Scheps to the butcher from whom she got it and how the lamb said "Baa, baa" too late they were sorry that the good Scheps had come to a bad end.

At the conclusion of the story Miss Hughes told the children of "Uncle Ben's" condition, and one little girl said: "Will we hear any more stories if 'Uncle Ben' dies?"

SWORE AT A POLICEMAN.

Damages He Got Subsequently Held at Court to be Ill-Treatment.

Policeman James Murphy of the Leonard Street Station arraigned William Murphy of 28 Huber Street in the Night Court last night. The policeman's right hand was bandaged and the prisoner's head had a bandage on it. His lip was cut also.

The policeman told Magistrate Kernochan that he had ordered Murphy to move on at 8:30 o'clock at the corner of Greenwich and Vesey Streets, and that in the mix-up which followed he had been compelled to hit the prisoner.

Murphy said that the policeman had a grudge against him and had picked him out of five to order on. He admitted that he swore at the policeman, who struck him in the mouth and knocked him against the wall so that his head was cut.

"It's a plain case of ill-treatment. You had no need to hit this man," said the Magistrate to the policeman. "I discharge him."

The Magistrate ordered the stenographer to give him the minutes in the case for further investigation.

TROLLEY POLE FALLS.

Breaks Skull of Four-Year-Old Boy in His Mother's Arms.

A trolley pole broke from its fastenings on the roof of a car of the New York & Long Island Traction Company at the East New York terminal, yesterday, and fell among several persons waiting to board the car.

The piece of iron, weighing more than 100 pounds, broke the skull of four-year-old Stanley Wood, who was in the arms of his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Wood, 35 years old, of 52 Pomeroy Street, Kearny, N. J. Mrs. Wood was hit, too, and felled to the ground.

Mother and child were taken to Bradford Street Hospital, where it was said last night an operation would be performed to-day on the child's skull in order to relieve a pressure of broken bone on the brain, in an endeavor to save his life.

SLEEPS IN TWO TOWNS.

Boundary Runs Through Mr. Wriggins's Bedroom—Wants to Know Where to Vote.

Wilbur F. Wriggins, collection attorney for the New York Telephone Company, is in a quandary as to how he is going to exercise his right of suffrage at the coming election, because the line between the Village of South Orange and Newark runs diagonally through his home at 14 Montrose Street, Newark, or 12 Holland Road, South Orange.

Defining the boundary line more closely, it passes through Mr. Wriggins's bedroom, so that he sleeps with his head in Newark, while his feet repose in South Orange. He moved into the house last January, but doesn't know yet where he will cast his vote. Last year he paid part taxes on the lot in Newark and part in South Orange.

MUST SOON PAY TAX ON SECURED DEBTS

Amendment to State Law Fixing Levy at One-Half of 1 Per Cent. in Effect on Sept. 1.

$5,000,000 ANNUAL REVENUE

State Controller So Estimates—Won't Conflict with the Mortgage Recording Tax Law.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Aug. 27.—The State Controller's office is preparing to put into operation the amendment to the tax law providing for the registration of secured debts and the payment of a tax of one-half of 1 per cent. on the face value thereof, which goes into effect on Sept. 1.

"This law, as I understand it," says State Controller Sohmer, "is in substance an extension of Article 11 of the tax law, known as the mortgage recording tax law. The term 'secured debt' is carefully defined to include mortgages on property outside of the State, bonds and other evidences of debt, and practically all forms of taxable securities, except commercial papers, which do not now come under the operation of the mortgage recording tax law.

"It is not intended that this law should interfere in any way with the operation of the mortgage recording tax law, and no debt will be registered by this office under the secured debt law if the provisions of the mortgage recording tax law are applicable thereto."

Mr. Sohmer believes that this is made plain in Rule XI., which he has prescribed, and which says that "no mortgage on real property recorded in the State of New York, or bonds secured by such mortgage, can be registered under the secured debt tax law."

The payment of the required tax forever exempts the debt from liability to local assessment. It is also believed that there will be no attempt hereafter to evade the tax, as has been the case in the past when such debts were assessed as personal property.

It was stated when the secured debts law was enacted that it would net the State a revenue the first year of about $2,500,000. This sum, Controller Sohmer thinks, is too low by half. Letters received in his office and conferences with owners and holders of debts affected by this law, he says, would seem to indicate an annual revenue of at least $5,000,000. One letter, Mr. Sohmer states, says that the writer proposes to have registered under this law bonds aggregating in par value the sum of $1,700,000, the tax on which would be $8,750. Other letters named large amounts, though none was as high as the one stated.

The required blank forms may be obtained and the tax may be paid at either the Controller's office in this city or that in the City Investing Building, 165 Broadway, New York City.

BOSSES STILL RUN THE POLLS.

Loophole in Gov. Wilson's Election Law Lets in the Old System.

Common Pleas Judges all over New Jersey are taking the first steps toward filling the vacancies for civil service election officials in their respective counties as provided for by Gov. Wilson's election reform law of last Winter.

Mr. Wilson planned, through his elaborate election law, to break the grip of the local bosses in the State's election machinery. Through their County Committee they had been able to fill all the election boards with men of their own choosing. To dissociate the election officials from the bosses the Governor's law requires that only those found eligible at civil service examinations, shall be permitted to officiate in the election places. If there were not enough candidates to man the booths, the Common Pleas Judges were empowered to fill the vacancies.

In Hudson, Sussex, Bergen, and Mercer counties in the north part of the State, and in two or three of the counties in South Jersey, the Comon Pleas Judges have put this feature of the new law into practical operation. Very many of the men they picked to fill vacancies are those of the old-time retainers of the bosses. This is due to the fact that when candidates for the places were called for, the bosses hurried their lieutenants forward to take the examinations.

Even with the assistance the bosses thus gave them in geting men to serve at the polling places, the Judges have found the number passing the examinations far short of the number required.

As a consequence the courts in all the counties have been obliged to fill hundreds of vacancies with men not in the eligible lists. In Hudson, the eligibles are 200 short of the total number required. In Essex, there is a shortage of nearly 300. In two of the South Jersey counties there wasn't a candidate, and the courts have been called upon to name the whole list. The Judges did not know where to find the men to serve, and they have requested the Chairmen of the County Committees to send names to them. The County Chairmen have accommodatingly sent in lists of those whom they would have appointed under the old system.

In Jersey City, where there is a bitter strife between the Wittpenn and the Sullivan forces for the Mayoralty nomination, the Wittpenn forces are saying triumphantly that 150 of the 308 election officers the court has just chosen to serve, may be counted on to help Wittpenn all they can, and the "Big Six," who are backing Sullivan, concede that, with so many of his partisans at the boxes, Wittpenn has an advantage.

In Sussex County, Supt. Martin was obliged to make up the entire boards in six polling places by men named by the machine, and forty-eight of the 108 elective officers in the county are of the committee's selection. A list of the new election boards named by Judge Daly in Middlesex County, notes with asterisks the names of those whom the committees named for the court, and there are eighty-eight asterisks in the column.

The bosses are not saying much about it in the public places, but their followers are saying jubilantly that in spite of the Governor's efforts to dissociate the machines from the boxes, the machines are scarcely less in control of them than they have been in the past.

NEW SNAKE IN BRONX ZOO.

Another Giant Anaconda Comes to Join "Big Anna."

There was a stir in the reptile house of the Bronx Zoo yesterday afternoon when a giant anaconda crawled into the cage of "Big Anna," the largest anaconda in captivity, and even Keeper Snyder and Curator Ditmars held their breath when the two boa constrictors embraced in friendly greeting.

The new anaconda is the gift of W. W. Mole of Trinidad. He captured it in a stream on his plantation in practically the identical spot where "Big Anna" was captured two years ago. Keeper Snyder, dashing a bucket of water over the new arrival, christened it "Big William."
